AUCTION SALES.

TOWNLANDS OF GREENAN, DRUMSALLAGH AND BOVENNETT, LOUGHBRICKLAND.

EXCEPTIONALLY VALUABLE FREEHOLD LANDS

WITH RESIDENCE AND FARM BUILDINGS THEREON, FOR SALE

The Property of Mr. ANDREW THOMPSON, who is retiring from Farming.
To be SOLD BY PUBLIC AUCTION at the SALE ROOMS OF MESSRS. McGRATH BROS., NEWRY STREET, BANBRIDGE, on MONDAY, the 28th November, 1938, at the hour of 1-30 o'clock.

ALL THOSE RICH AND HIGHLY PRODUCTIVE LANDS, containing 72a. 2r. 11p., Statute Measure, or thereabouts, held subject to the half-yearly instalment of £19 1s 2d to the Ministry of Finance, Northern Ireland.

On the Lands of Greenan there is a large and commodious Residence known as Greenan House, two-storied and slated, containing 2 Reception Rooms, 5 Bedrooms, Kitchen, Pantries, Scullery, and Dairy. The Offices comprise Stable for 3 horses, Byre for 8 cows, Potato House with Loft overhead, Barn, Calf House, Boiling House, Piggeries with concrete floors, Poultry House, Cart and Implement Garage, all slated and in excellent repair.

There is a very valuable Water Power attached to the Premises, which the Vendor at considerable expense has harnessed for the purpose of producing Electric Light and Heating for the Residence and several of the Offices. The Residence is supplied with water from a spring well by gravitation. The Byre, which is fitted with up-to-date drinking bowls, is also supplied from the same source.

The Holding comprises the following Lots:—

LOT 1.—Area 29a. 1r. 2p., Statute Measure, or thereabouts. Half-yearly instalment £8 16s 1d. Situate in the Townland of Greenan, on which the Residence and Farm Buildings are situate.

LOT 2.—Area 18a. 2r. 9p., Statute Measure, or thereabouts. Half-yearly instalment £5 0s 1d. Situate in Townland of Drumsallagh. There is a substantial Building on this Lot.

LOT 3.—Area 15a. 3r. 0p., Statute Measure, or thereabouts. Half-yearly instalment £2 12s 0d. Situate in Townland of Greenan. On this Lot there is a valuable Quarry.

LOT 4.—Area 9a. 0r. 0p. Statute Measure, or thereabouts. Half-yearly instalment £2 13s 0d. Situate in the Townland of Bovennett. There is a recently erected cottage on this Lot.

The Lands are in the highest possible state of manurial condition, well fenced, drained and watered, the Vendor having spared no expense in the cultivation and manuring of the Lands, which are all laid down with the best permanent grasses. The Residence is most conveniently situate, with neat Lawn in front, Vegetable Garden and extensive Orchard, planted with the leading varieties in full bearing.

The Lands adjoin the County Road and are situate 2 miles from the Market Town of Banbridge. There is a Bus Service on the main Belfast to Dublin Road within three minutes walk of the Residence. The Auctioneer can with confidence recommend these Lands as exceptionally suitable for dairying, tillage and grazing.

Terms:—25 per cent. Purchase Money at time of Sale; balance on completion.

BELFAST SLANDER ACTION.

DEFENDANT SUCCEEDS.

JUSTICE BROWN'S REVIEW.

CRUCIAL DATE IN THE CASE.

The final stage of the slander action brought by James M'Quoid, estate agent, Belfast and Bangor, against Dawson Cotton, solicitor, Arthur Square, Belfast, was reached in the Ulster King's Bench on Friday, before Mr. Justice Brown and a special jury.

The hearing of the action, which had its inception in 1936, began on Monday. The plaintiff alleged that in an interview regarding title with Mr. May, a partner in the accountancy firm of Stewart Blacker Quin, Knox & Co., the defendant slandered him.

The appearances were—Mr. John M'Gonigal, K.C., Mr. S. C. Porter, K.C., and Mr. L. E. Curran (instructed by Messrs. Peden & Reid) for the plaintiff; and Mr. Wm. Beattie, K.C., Mr. Wm. Lowry, K.C., and Mr. J. D. Chambers, K.C. (instructed by Mr. W. H. M. Brownlee) for the defendant.

Mr. Porter having closed for the plaintiff,

Mr. Justice Brown, summing up, said that they had reached the end so far as they were concerned of an interesting case which might last many days somewhere else. The case was of great importance to the parties concerned, and they had heard very fully all the evidence on both sides. He did not, therefore, propose to go right back and give a history of the dealings between the parties right from the first, and he proposed after a few remarks to come down to the date of the interview with Mr. May.

The plaintiff had been established as a rent agent in Belfast for over fifty years, and he had done business for Messrs. Crawford & Lockhart, solicitors, a firm taken over about 1928 by Mr. Cotton, an eminent solicitor, who then came into contact with Mr. M'Quoid.

Neither plaintiff or defendant had been very candid with each other in connection with the Kingscourt property. Mr. M'Quoid did not tell Mr. Cotton that he got a present of £250 from the Ulster Bank, and Mr. Cotton did not tell Mr. M'Quoid that he had got a lady to invest the money in the property, and that he held the property in trust for her.

The only fly in the ointment seemed to have been that Mr. M'Quoid did not seem to have adopted the ordinary form of rental accounts in use in Belfast, and Mr. Cotton seemed to have been at him continually, and asking him to hurry up with his returns.

There was a suggestion that Mr. Cotton had received from Mr. M'Quoid certain commissions which Mr. M'Quoid said he kept, and which Mr. Cotton said he passed on to his client. The Committteee of the Law Society had dealt with the matter and had found that the charge against Mr. Cotton was unfounded.

The crucial date in the case was June 7, 1935, when the interview between Mr. May and the defendant when the slanderous words were alleged to have been spoken. The first question the jury would have to answer was—Did the defendant speak and publish of and concerning the plaintiff the words complained of. The jury, in answering that question should not worry about malice, but simply whether the words were spoken.

INTERNAL EVIDENCE.

The words were denied by the defendant, and they had to consider the evidence tendered. The defendant denied that he said the agreement with Mr. M'Quoid was verbal, but there was internal evidence that the words were spoken, because Mr. May said: "It is unfortunate that the agreement was not reduced to writing.

If Mr. Cotton's statement on oath was true he did not make the statement, and the jury should answer the first question "No." Mr. Cotton said that he could not have said it was a verbal agreement, as he had it in writing, and that he never said Mr. M'Quoid was six months in arrears. What he did say was "two quarters," and that he had to write to him about it and he took offence.

When Mr. Cotton noticed anything wrong with the minute of the interview he rang up Messrs. Stewart Blacker Quin, Knox, & Co., and told them about the alterations, and he produced a note of that made at a time when there was no trouble with Mr. M'Quoid. Which story did the jury accept? If they accepted Mr. Cotton's version, that was an end of the case. If they believed Mr. May's version they came to the second question—Did the said words bear the alleged or any defamatory meaning?

He wanted to make it quite clear that never at any time in that case was there the slightest suggestion by anybody at any time that Mr. M'Quiod had taken one penny piece that did not belong to him. The worst suggestion made against him at any time by Mr. Cotton or on behalf of Mr. Cotton was that his system was not right, that his rentals were not in in time.

He had ruled that the words were capable of a defamatory meaning, but it was quite a different thing to say that they had a defamatory meaning.

If all that was said about Mr. M'Quoid was that he was slow about his work the words were not defamatory. It was not defamatory to say a solicitor was slow in his work. The jury would have to examine the words and see if there was anything in them which would be injurious to Mr. M'Quoid in his profession as a collector of rents.

They might go to a tailor who had promised to have their Sunday suit ready and had not kept his word and say to him, "You promised to have it and you failed." That would not be defamatory. The same thing applied in that case.

If the jury answered that question in the negative that was an end of the case. If they found the words were not defamatory, though they might be abusive, that was an end of the case; but if they answered yes they came to the third question—If the defendant published the words was he malicious in doing so?

That question had been left in because he had ruled that it was a privileged occasion. A man was not allowed to use a privileged occasion to vent a private spite. If Mr. Cotton honestly believed he spoke the truth he was covered by the privilege.

What was the evidence of spite? They had the "guttersnipe" letter and other things, but they were a long time ago, and Mr. Cotton had still business in Mr. M'Quoid's hands.

Even if Mr. Cotton made a mistake in his statement, if he came reasonably near the truth, speaking without documents before him, they would be justified in saying that he was not actuated by malice. If, on the other hand, they believed he was trying to do Mr. M'Quoid an injury, though for what reason did not appear, the jury should act accordingly.

On the question of damages, his Lordship said that if the jury came to consider damages the sum should not be an insignificant one which would hold the plaintiff up to ridicule, but should be such a fair and reasonable sum as would make people say that the plaintiff had got so much out of the defendant and that it would make him smart.

THE RESULT.

After an hour and a half's absence, the jury returned with the paper, which was handed to the judge.

Mr. Justice Brown—The jury have answered the first question. Did the defendant speak and publish the words complained of—Yes. They answered question No. 2—Were the words defamatory—Yes, and the third question as to malice—No.

That is a verdict for the defendant. Pay the jury, Mr. Cotton.

On the application of Mr. M'Gonigal a stay for one month was granted on the usual terms.

AN EXCEPTIONAL HORSE

IN PLUCKIEST MANNER.

BOTTOM WEIGHT AS CHALLENGER.

Black Speck proved himself to be an exceptional horse yesterday when he won the Liverpool Autumn Cup by a head from Lone Mount (writes "Hotspur," the "Daily Telegraph" Racing correspondent).

Until this year Black Speck, who was bred by Major Colmore and bought by Mr. Rank as a yearling for 600 guineas, was regarded as nothing more than a good miler. He revealed unexpected staying powers when winning the Newbury Summer Cup in June and later was an unlucky loser of the Ebor Handicap over 1¾ miles.

In the Cesarewitch Black Speck finished fourth. Carslake did not give him a hard race when he saw that he could not win, and this was the gelding's next appearance—only 16 days later—this time over a mile and nearly three furlongs.

Black Speck did not come on the scene until half-way up the straight, and, once he had taken the lead inside the distance, held on in the pluckiest manner to resist the challenge of the bottom weight, Lone Mount, by a head.

MR. RANK'S GREAT TEAM.

Moody, on whom Gordon Richards put up a pound overweight, was third and Magnet fourth.

Pactolus never looked like winning, and his stable-companion and top-weight, Merry Mathew, ran badly. Never Surprised refused to line up at the start, and was so badly away that he might have stayed at home. J'Accours was also left several lengths.

The running was made by Noble Turk, with Pigskin, Rodeo II, and Faris II. prominent. Noble Turk was still in the lead when the field were well in line for home. He was beaten nearly a couple of furlongs out, however, when Black Speck began to improve, and I noticed Lone Mount for the first time. Moody and Magnet also had chances, but neither stayed home quite well enough.

Mr. Rank is indeed lucky to have such horses in his stable as Epigram, Scottish Union, Michoumy, and Black Speck, but he is such an enthusiastic supporter of racing under both codes that his successes are very popular.

LOYAL PRINCE FAILS.

It was generally considered that Loyal Prince had only to stand up to win the Molyneux 'Chase, but, unfortunately for those whose money made him a hot favourite, that was just what he failed to do falling at the third fence out in the country when going well.

The running was made by Fort Argos, with Mesmerist and Freezy prominent. It was difficult to see as the field approached Becher's, the light being poor, but I noticed that The Uplifter had moved up and was challenging boldly.

When the colours could be distinguished again Fort Argos was still leading, with The Uplifter next and Dinton Lad and Luckpenny not far behind. Atco was well there when they came on to the racecourse again. Approaching the last fence Fort Argos tired, and was passed on the flat by The Uplifter and Atco, who looked like fighting out a great finish until Rimell on Atco accepted defeat, and dropped his hands a few yards short of the post.

Danny Morgan, who rode a fine race on The Uplifter, lost an iron close home, but that did not seem to worry him in the least.

CORNFIELD'S SUCCESS.

The odds of 9 to 2 against Cornfield winning the Rous Memorial Nursery Stakes seemed generous enough. The son of Trigo had won in good style over seven furlongs at Nottingham last month with recent winners in Tullybrackey colt and Colchis behind, and looked a reasonable betting proposition.

However, there was also plenty of support for Valeda gelding and Appeasement, while Fooled Again was also well backed.

Nevett rode a patient race on Cornfield. It was not until fairly close home that he challenged Bonnie Blue to get up and win by three-quarters of a length, and it seemed to me that he had something in hand. These two had the race between them some way out, the third, Valeda gelding, being well beaten. Neither Fooled Again nor Appeasement was prominent, but Gao was for a long way.

If Schiaparelli had consented to do her best in the Duchy Stakes she would have won. However, her behaviour before the race indicated that she was not in the best of temper, and by the time she took hold of her bit her chance had gone. Oracion, who led throughout, resisted Schiaparelli's challenge by a length.

JOINT FAVOURITES' SUCCESS.

Night Owl made a good attempt to win the Prospect Maiden Hurdle after making all the running, but the joint favourites, Aldine and Farsi, found too much finishing speed for Mr. J. H. Whitney's six-year-old.

Neither Aldine nor Farsi was too well placed after 1½ miles, but both improved in the straight. Aldine challenged Night Owl between the last two hurdles, with Farsi moving up on the outside. Once on the flat Aldine quickly asserted his superiority, to win rather easily by four lengths.

Aldine, who won on the flat when owned by Lord Harewood, is a promising hurdler and should win again.

Barry D'Or won his third race off the reel and his fourth of the season when he gained an easy victory in the Lancashire Selling Plate.

It cost 510 guineas to buy in Barry D'Or, which meant a surplus of £230 to the owner of the second.

BALLYMENA SESSIONS.

MOTOR FINES AND SUSPENSION.

Mr. J. M. Mark, R.M., presided at the Ballymena Petty Sessions, when James Dickson, William Street, Ballymena, was summoned for carrying passengers for hire in a car without having the necessary policy of insurance and, secondly, without having a licence.

District-Inspector Crawford, who prosecuted, said defendant had been a hackney driver and owner for eight or ten years, and in November, 1937, his licence to drive a public-service vehicle was suspended. He had made numerous applications for its restoration, pleading poverty. He had a private car as well, and on 55 separate occasions he had been seen carrying passengers in it by the police.

Several police witnesses gave evidence of seeing Dickson carrying passengers in a private car, and Head-Constable Murphy said that when he spoke to defendant on one occasion he was told to mind his own business.

Mr. J. P. M'Cann, for defendant, said it was unfair that he should be called upon to give explanations of dates from May to the present date.

Defendant, in evidence, denied driving his private car for payment, and said he employed a man to drive his public-service vehicle.

His Worship imposed a fine of 20s in each case and suspended his driving licence for twelve months.

Head-Constable Murphy applied to have the recognisances of John O'Neill, Adair's Court, Ballymena, estreated. He said O'Neill entered into bail of £5 on November 30, 1937, to keep the peace for twelve months, and at the petty sessions on October 14 last he was convicted of drunkenness and disorderly behaviour and fined.

His Worship acceded to the application and estreated the recognisances in the sum of £1.

LIVERPOOL PROVISIONS.—Poultry market—Fowls 7d to 7½d, chickens 9½d to 10½d.

BILLINGSGATE FISH—Fair supplies on offer met a steady demand at about late rates. Soles 1s 2d to 1s 6d, slips 1s to 1s 6d, lobsters 1s 6d to 2s 4d, crabs 1d to 8d—per lb.; dories 3s to 4s 6d, turbot 6s to 13s, brill 6s to 9s, plaice 6s to 10s 6d, halibut 7s to 16s, lemon soles 10s to 16s, cod 3s 6d to 5s 6d, whiting 2s to 4s, hake 6s to 11s 6d, flake dogfish 4s to 6s, haddocks 3s to 7s, skate wings 5s 6d to 8s, roker wings 7s to 10s, English fresh herrings 1s to 3s—per stone; live eels 12s to 28s, dead 10s to 20s—per draught; bloaters 2s to 4s, kippers 1s 6d to 6s—per box; oysters (natives)—Whitstable 32s to 46s, Pyefleet 42s to 70s, Dutch 15s to 40s—per 100; periwinkles—Irish 6s to 11s, Scotch 10s to 14s—per cwt.; shrimps 1s to 2s—per gallon.

BIRKENHEAD CATTLE—Trade was quiet for the cattle on sale at about unchanged prices. Choice small bullocks and heifers made 6¾d to exceptionally 7d; best medium weights 6½d, secondary and heavy classes around 6½d. Cows were a worse trade—Young cows 5d and others about 4d; bulls 4d to 5½d. Lambs continue a slow trade at about 8d for the best quality—all prices per lb. sinking the offal. The week's offerings were—1,742 cattle and 2,567 lambs.

CLEVELAND IRON—Business not heavy, but sufficient to justify an increase of production of most commodities, and the outlook is regarded as brighter than for a considerable time. Stocks have been greatly reduced and customers continue to accept arrears delivery quite freely. Little marketable Cleveland pig and East Coast hematite no longer abundant. Semi-finished iron and steel makers better employed than recently and report buyers are prepared to negotiate for rather extensive supplies. Producers of finished iron and steel are turning out increasing tonnage. Substantial home orders for heavy steel have been booked and overseas inquiries encourage hope of the expansion of export trade. Cast iron scrap scarce and in good demand, but steel scrap plentiful and in little request.

DUBLIN CORN—Choice samples continue in demand at firm rates, but secondary quality more or less neglected. White oats 12s 6d to 14s 6d, black 11s 3d to 12s 6d, barley 15s 6d to 18s, and wheat 27s 6d to 30s 6d—per barrel according to quality.

GLASGOW CORN—Market steadier with more demand. No. 1 Manitoba wheat November shipment 26s 3d per 480 lbs. c.i.f. Glasgow. Plate maize quiet on spot, 5s 10½d per cwt., forward 6s 7d to 5s 10½d according to position. Grinding barley unchanged at 5s 6d per cwt. Home mill offals remain at late levels; demand rather better; 1st grade Australian flour nominal, 22s per 280 lbs. ex store plus quota.

GLASGOW IRON AND STEEL—Scrap metals—The market for scrap material shows no further change.

CHILD SWALLOWED HALFPENNY.

GIVEN HIM AT HALLOWE'EN

FATAL ACCIDENT AT BALLYCLARE.

Mr. T. E. Alexander, City Coroner, returned a verdict of accidental death at the inquest in the City Hall, Belfast, on Walter Stanley M'Knight, a six-year-old child, of Millvale, Ballyclare, County Antrim.

The boy was given a halfpenny on Hallowe'en and later swallowed it. He died during an operation for its removal.

CUSTODY OF CHILD.

BELFAST FATHER'S CLAIM.

HABEAS CORPUS APPLICATION.

In the King's Bench Division of the Royal Courts of Justice of Northern Ireland, before the Lord Chief Justice yesterday, Mr. W. W. B. Topping (instructed by Mr. J. Morris M'Kee) made an application for a conditional order of habeas corpus on behalf of Wilfred Lewis, Boyd Street, Belfast, in connection with his son Ernest Lewis.

Mr. Topping asked that the order be directed to Joseph and Mary M'Donnell, 15 Alton Street, Belfast, and read an affidavit made by the applicant in which he stated that he was married to Annie Irwin at St. Patrick's Chapel, Donegall Street, on August 20, 1930, and there was issue of the marriage seven children. The last child was born on July 4, 1938, at the Royal Maternity Hospital, Grosvenor Road, where his wife died on July 21, 1938.

On the night of July 21, 1938, he saw his wife's mother at Alton Street, Belfast. She expressed a wish that her daughter should be buried in the Roman Catholic faith. He agreed that she should be permitted to carry out this desire.

While in her house, he discovered that his wife's sister, Mrs. Mary M'Donnell, had gone to the hospital and had taken the child away. He did not desire to cause any trouble before the funeral, and when the funeral was over, he immediately went to Mary M'Donnell and asked her for his child. She refused to give it to him, and he consulted his solicitor.

Applicant referred to correspondence which had taken place, and denied that he was at any time agreeable or at any time agreed that the child should be handed over to or kept by Mrs. M'Donnell

QUESTION OF RELIGION.

If he were given custody of the child he would have it looked after by his sister. He was satisfied that the child would be happy and would be well looked after by her. He intended that it should be brought up in the same religion as himself, namely Protestant. Mrs. Mary M'Donnell is a Roman Catholic, and he believed she would attempt to bring up his child in that faith.

Mr. Topping said this was a case where the child would be brought up in a different faith to the father if applicant's late wife's sister were allowed to have its custody.

His Lordship said it was obviously a case for a conditional order. He would say no more about it, but would give the order, returnable in ten days.

BROADCAST TO U.S.

LL. GEORGE ON WORLD PEACE.

ADVOCATES CONFERENCE.

INCREASING WEAPONS OF WAR.

"The only chance of a world peace is an assembly of all the great nations of the earth to discuss, without reference to past experiments or present ideologies, the best means of a just and durable world peace," declared Mr. Lloyd George in a broadcast to America from Broadcasting House.

"I do not recollect a period during my lifetime when the international atmosphere was more charged with distrust, antagonism, and apprehension," said Mr. Lloyd George.

"The Pact of Munich, which it was hoped by its authors would bring peace in our lifetime, has been followed everywhere by feverish appeals and new projects for increasing the weapons of war and for strengthening defences against murderous attacks on land and sea. There are sanguinary wars now being waged in three continents—one in Asia, another in Europe, and a third in Africa.

"Each of these desperate conflicts is spreading desolation, terror, and death amongst myriads of harmless civilians. The war which has been and still is ravaging Ethiopia is overlooked in the more spectacular wars which are desolating China and Spain.

"Nevertheless, the emphasis in every country is not upon the best means of securing universal pacification but upon the quickest methods of producing the largest output of machinery and the training of the largest number of men to wage effective war.

"That constitutes the most alarming feature of the world situation to-day. Unless measures are taken, and taken boldly and taken promptly, by the rulers of nations to secure a better understanding and a saner temper a clash is inevitable on a scale which will rock civilisation to its foundations and precipitate a catastrophe which will bury the work of centuries amongst the ruins.

THE IMPENDING HORROR.

"The thrill of relief which passed through Europe when it was known that a temporary peace had been patched up over the Czecho-Slovakian dispute shows how deep and general is the horror of war amongst all classes. When gas-masks were distributed at every door to save the dwellers inside from being strangled by poison gas, when men were working overtime to tear up the beautiful parks of London into trenches to shield its inhabitants from bombs which were expected within twenty-four hours to rain destruction from the skies above, one can realise how welcome was the news that the Government had negotiated a respite from the impending horror.

"In that hour of escape there was no disposition to examine the terms which had been exacted by the dictators from frightened democracies.

"The panic is now subsiding and reflection is beginning. But the first reaction is a universal demand for stronger defences. The mind of nations, without distinction of race or party, is concentrated on that problem. It seems as if the people of Europe despaired of any attempt to negotiate a general world peace. The failure of the League of Nations has disheartened the advocates of universal peace.

"In France and Britain there is much talk in official circles of negotiating pacts to propitiate the dictators. That might effect a postponement of an ultimate conflict, but the interval would be filled with the clangour of war preparations, and there would be only an arming peace which would paralyse industry, cripple social amelioration, and shatter the nerve of civilisation.

WORLD PACIFICATION NEED.

"To secure permanent peace a world pacification is essential. Without it we shall breathe daily an atmosphere of war. France and Britain cannot disarm unless Germany and Italy disarm. Germany cannot afford to cut down her equipment unless Russia reduces her immense forces. Russia cannot cut down her armed forces as long as Japan has a powerful army. Japan cannot even discuss disarmament until there is peace with China. America must go on building up her navy and air force as long as Japan is increasing her armaments by sea, land and air.

Two, or even four, Power pacts to divert the activities of the military dictators temporarily from Britain and France will not give the world peace. They will disembarrass the aggressor States of all danger of interference from the Western democracies, while they are pursuing their designs in other directions.

"There access to the East has already been cleared by the removal of the Czecho-Slovakian Republic from the road. They avow their intention of pursuing their military intervention in Spain until victory is achieved for the Fascist dictatorship in that country. The only chance of a world peace is an assembly of all the great nations of earth to discuss, without reference to past experiments or present idealogies, the best means of a just and durable world peace.

"Where is the statesman who will take this project in hand and will and can press it through? His name will endure for ever as one of the greatest benefactors of mankind."

CHARGE OF FRAUD.

BELFAST MAN REMANDED

AT LIMAVADY COURT.

At a special court at Limavady, before Mr. Alex. Smyth, J.P., Donald A. Campbell, Stranmillis Gardens, Belfast, was charged with having in July last fraudulently converted to his own use sums totalling £19 14s 6d received for J. William Mollan, of the Max Publicity Service, Dundee, from merchants and traders in Limavady.

Mollan said he had engaged the accused as a canvasser to secure orders for cinema screen advertisements, and later authorised him to collect accounts. When accused's remittances got into arrears last July, witness sent a representative to Belfast to investigate and he returned with the receipt books and counterfoils, which were in accused's handwriting. Witness then detailed the orders he had received from Limavady for a year's advertising at £6 10s per twelve months' run. The receipts, he said, did not correspond with the counterfoils which were for different amounts paid by advertisers in Coleraine. Witness's firm received no money in respect of those orders for which accused was paid.

Witness said Mrs. Jennie Moore, confectioner, Limavady, paid £1 12s 6d; Lawrence E. Holmes, merchant, £1 17s 6d; Cyril C. Connolly, chemist, £1 12s 6d; D. J. Martin, newsagent, £4 18s 6d; Miss M'Combe, hairdresser, £6 3s 6d; W. J. Thompson, draper, £1 17s 6d; and Harry M'Caughey, hairdresser, £1 12s 6d.

The smaller amounts represented a quarter's payment.

These persons gave evidence of the transactions and identified the accused as the man who had called on them and received the money.

Constable John Bartholomew deposed to arresting accused in Belfast on Thursday night. Accused said, "I have nothing to say."

Accused was remanded, bail being fixed at £100 and two sureties of £50 each, but was not forthcoming.

THE ROYAL ULSTER SOCIETY.

NEW VICE-PRESIDENT.

ELECTION OF 112 MEMBERS.

KING'S HALL TOURNAMENTS.

At the monthly meeting of the Council of the Royal Ulster Agricultural Society, held in Grand Central Hotel yesterday, and presided over by the president (the Right Hon. J. Milne Barbour, D.L., M.P.), Mr. W. M. Fullerton, chairman of the Finance Committee, was unanimously appointed a vice-president of the society to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Senator J. Hill Dickson.

Complimentary references were made by the president and members present to the great interest taken by Mr. Fullerton in the society's work and to the amount of time given by him ungrudingly in dealing with the society's finances.

Mr. Fullerton, replying, said he fully appreciated the great honour which had been conferred upon him, and that he would continue to do everything in his power to advance the society's interests.

Sir Thomas Dixon, Bart., H.M.L., whose interest in horse breeding is well known, was unanimously appointed a member of Council on the recommendation of the Selection Committee.

NEXT ANNUAL SHOW.

The Traffic and Advertising Committee in their report, which was unanimously approved, recommended the re-appointment of Mr. James G. Cunningham as chairman of the committee for 1939, and the commitee's proposals for advertising in connection with next year's annual show, it was announced, would introduce a new style of advertising, which, the committee was convinced, would be more effective than anything hitherto attempted by the society.

The Promotions Committee reported on arrangements for boxing tournaments to be held in the King's Hall on November 23 and at Christmas, under the auspices of Mr. John Sholdis; also that the use of the hall had been granted to the Royal Ulster Constabulary Athletic Association for an amateur international boxing tournament (England v. Ireland), to be held on December 5. Approval was also given for the use of the King's Hall for a wrestling tournament to be held during the week commencing November 28.

The Finance Committee intimated that communications had been received from the Belfast Dog Show Society and the Ulster Fox Terrier Club regarding terms for accommodation for shows at Balmoral, and stated that these communications had been held over for consideration at a later date.

The report indicated that estimates for printing for 1939 had been dealt with, and recommended that, for 1939, instead of publishing the dates of the society's fixtures in post card form, for issue to members and exhibitors, a combined fixture card and calendar, attractively printed on celluloid and bearing a slogan impressing on members the necessity for obtaining new members, should be circulated.

The committee announced the receipt of a letter from the Belfast Corporation, expressing appreciation of the voluntary assistance rendered in connection with aid raid precautions' work during the recent crisis, when the society's premises were placed at the disposal of the authorities.

The report also had reference to a drive to be instituted for the purpose of obtaining new life members.

NEW HON. SOLICITORS APPOINTED.

Arising out of the report of the Finance Committee, it was announced that, as the result of an interview with Mr. F. M. R. Byers, Messrs. Robert Wallace & Co. would accept the office of honorary solicitors to the society. This announcement gave great satisfaction to the members of Council.

The President referred to the illness of Mr. Isaac Smith, a former member of Council, and the secretary was directed to write Mr. Smith expressing the hope that he would have a speedy recovery to health.

Eighty ladies and 32 gentlemen, duly nominated, were elected to membership of the society.

MONEYLENDER AND HIS POSITION.

BELFAST COURT QUERIES.

EXAMINATION AS TO MEANS.

An application to have Moses Herman, a financier, of High Street, Belfast, examined as to his means, came before Judge Thompson at Belfast Recorder's Court.

Judgment had been obtained against Herman in favour of Alfred Snowdon & Sons, Noble's Bank Road, Sunderland, and it was in respect of the costs—£35 1s 3d—that Herman had been summoned for examination as to his means.

Herman, who was questioned by Mr. F. A. L. Harrison (instructed by Messrs. Shean & Dickson), for Messrs. Snowdon, declared at the outset that he was willing to meet his liabilities. He agreed he had some property, but said the mortgagees were in possession.

When asked if he had any means, Herman replied that he would show counsel his balance sheet. At a meeting of his creditors two months ago they had agreed to give him time, he said.

"Answer my question," said Mr. Harrison, adding, "Have you any income?"

"Yes, I have a business running at the present time," replied Herman.

Asked what income he had coming in, Herman stated he was living on borrowed money. "My income is practically nil. It would save time if I showed my balance sheets."

Mr. Harrison—We will start with your property at Thornton Street, Sunderland, in respect of which this summons was issued?—It is not in my possession to-day.

Why did you repair the property if it is not yours?—Because the property was condemned.

Mr. Harrison—You could sell that property subject to the mortgage?—The Bank has it, but they cannot get an offer.

In 1900 there was a marriage settlement?—Yes, I had a life interest.

What does that amount to per year?—The furniture, that is all.

Who owns the house?—The house is mortgaged as well.

Counsel, having been given an opportunity to peruse the balance sheets, continued his examination of the witness.

Mr. Harrison—You had no difficulty in paying £31 into court in order to defend the Sunderland action?—The Bank gave me permission to draw it.

The furniture you got under the marriage settlement is in your house at Glandore Avenue?—Yes.

Herman agreed he advertised to loan up to £1,000.

Counsel—In 1937 your balance sheet shows assets of £4,020?—You are taking the wrong view. There are only £2,000 assets shown there.

I don't understand your figures, but, even taking that reduced amount, you had that money in 1937?—That money is book debts with the prospect of interest.

Herman made an offer to pay £3 per quarter, but Judge Thompson made an order for payment of £6 a quarter.

SERVIAN SENATOR SHOT.

BELGRADE, Friday.—Alarm was caused in the tobacco growing district of South Servia to-day by the shooting at Ueskub of a well-known Senator and his secretary.

The crime is alleged to have been committed by a tobacco planter named Jozic. His victim was Senator Hadzi Ristic, whose secretary was severely injured. The assailant then attempted to commit suicide.

No political motive is attributed to the crime.—Central News.

THE THIRD LARGEST DIAMOND.

"PRESIDENT VARGAS"

ARRIVES IN AMSTERDAM.

AMSTERDAM, Friday.—The world's "third largest diamond—President Vargas" to-day arrived in Amsterdam. It was deposited in the largest safe of the Holland Bank Union, the door of it weighing 11,000 kilogrammes. The diamond was sent by parcel post by train from Bordeaux, in France, to Amsterdam.

At the railway station the bank directors, as well as police, took possession of the parcel, and broke the seals to make sure the diamond was still there. With police in attendance, the diamond was taken to the Holland Bank Union and accepted by the directors.

Several privileged persons were allowed to view the diamond, but none allowed to photograph it wires the "Daily Telegraph and Morning Post" correspondent. It is against custom to have such stones photographed without permission of the ultimate buyer.

Who this finally will be is not yet known, but very soon the diamond will be on view, and thereafter, it is believed, that one or two combinations will send in their offers.

It is practically certain that the diamond will be cut in Amsterdam, which is still the only place in the world where justice can be done to such large stones. There was much criticism in Holland after the cutting of the famous Jonkers diamond in New York.

MISS WRIGHT'S PUPILS.

IN PIANOFORTE RECITAL.

The wealth of talent amongst the pupils of Miss Cathleen Wright and the excellence of her teaching were admirably demonstrated at a pianoforte recital in the Minor Y.M.C.A. Hall, Belfast, on Friday evening, when for two and a half hours a fine attendance thoroughly enjoyed the musical feast provided.

It would be quite invidious to mention any particular performance of the pupils as one and all gave of their very best in their individual items.

The soloists (pianoforte) were:—Misses Babs Johnston, Muriel Hosford, Sadie Sloan, Doreen Taylor, Nancy Scott, Doris Kelso, Peggy Busby, Maureen Kyle, Andrina Gibson, Nafra Johnston, Eveleen Jamison, Renee Mulligan, while duets were rendered by the Misses Sadie and Marjorie Sloan, and Betty and Doreen Taylor.

The vocalist was Mr. Norman Thompson, a young Belfast tenor who is rapidly attaining deserved popularity in the city. His voice, perfectly trained, is beautifully clear in the top notes and these are taken with ease and power. Its qualities were amply demonstrated in his selection of songs, "Where'er you Walk" (Handel); "Silent Noon" (V. Williams); "The Promise of Spring" (Schubert). In the second half of the programme he sang: "Serenade" (Schubert); "O Mistress Mine" (Quilter); "The English Rose" (Ed. German).

Miss Wright played a pianoforte solo "Hungarian Rhapsody No. 2" (Liszt) most artistically and sympathetically.

The audience showed their appreciation of the efforts of the artists in no unstinted fashion.

At the interval the pupils showed their appreciation of the care and attention of Miss Wright by presenting her with a beautiful bouquet, for which she returned thanks.

ANGLO-U.S. TRADE AGREEMENT

TO BE SIGNED NEXT WEEK.

CONCESSIONS TO CANADA.

Every indication now points to the early conclusion of a trade agreement between Britain and her Crown Colonies and the United States, says the "Daily Telegraph and Morning Post" Washington correspondent.

Concurrent negotiations between the United States and Canada are broadening the base of the existing Canadian-American Agreement.

There might be some last-minute hitch, but a far more cheerful atmosphere prevails in all quarters connected with the negotiations, and there is good reason to hope that a favourable announcement will be made in about a week's time.

Theoretically the United States maintain that the British and Canadian negotiations are separate matters, but practically the two sets of discussions have dove-tailed into each other, and Canada has received concessions from America which will provide for breaches made in her preferential tariff with Britain.

It is being arranged that the actual schedules of agreement shall be published simultaneously in London and Washington, but much material of a supplementary nature will be issued in Washington interpreting the effect of the agreement from the American point of view. It is natural to suppose that the more conciliatory attitude on the part of the United States which has brought the discussions to the threshold of agreement are due to the end of the electoral campaign, but American officials insist that politics had nothing to do with the matter.

SHY AND GENEROUS ART PATRON DEAD.

MAN WHO SPENT FORTUNE

BUT SHUNNED PUBLICITY.

Britain has lost one of the shyest and most generous of art benefactors in Mr. Arthur Edward Anderson, of Park Farm Cottage, Chessington, Surrey, whose death was announced yesterday. He spent most of his life and a good part of his fortune in enriching Britain's art museums.

Manchester Art Galleries and the Whitworth Art Gallery at Manchester are among the many which have received valuable paintings, etchings, and sculptures from "A. E. Anderson, Esq.," a name whose owner for many years could not be traced, for Mr. Anderson, living simply in his cottage in Surrey, shunned publicity.

Oxford Art Galleries have also benefited from his gifts, which were invariably accompanied by a small note requesting that they should be accepted from "A. E. Anderson."

"I do it because I enjoy it," he once said. "I just send them along, and I don't like being thanked."

His hobbies, apart from art, were roses and association football. His death, at the age of 68, was very sudden. On Tuesday last he had attended a local football match.

Not even his relatives know the extent of his gifts, and it is believed that practically the whole of his fortune, which he inherited from his father, has gone to the enrichment of art museums.

DUBLIN WRESTLING LIBEL ACTION.

VERDICT FOR DEFENDANTS.

PROMOTER'S CLAIM FAILS.

A verdict for the defendants was returned in the High Court Dublin yesterday, in the libel action brought by William N. Willis, restaurant proprietor, Mountjoy Square, Dublin, against the "Irish Press" Ltd., Dublin, in reference to a publication in an issue of the "Irish Press" of February 25 last.

Mr. Willis, who was the promoter of an all-in wrestling match in Dublin between Paddy Casey and Pedro Peltonen, alleged that the newspaper libelled him by withdrawing a statement published in an issue of December 11 last as having been made by him in an interview, to the effect that the match had been arranged in advance so that one or other of the contestants would win.

Plaintiff had stated in evidence that he had told Peltonen to let Casey win, but as Pedro would not agree he had to "double-cross" him so that Casey's record would remain intact. A witness had also given evidence on his behalf to the effect that all-in wrestling matches were pre-arranged.

Mr. Justice O'Byrne, addressing the jury to-day said that he could not help feeling that they were dealing with a world of unreality, small and circumscribed, that, according to the evidence, had a code and a language of its own, a language that smacked very considerably of American gangsters as they read of it.

It was suggested that in dealing with that particular world and in appraising the conduct of persons engaged in it the jury should judge not by ordinary standards but by some peculiar standard applicable in that circumscribed sphere of activity.

JUDGE'S ADVICE TO JURY.

It seemed to him that that was not a true picture of the way in which the jury should approach the case. In appraising the conduct of certain individuals they should apply the ordinary standards that applied between man and man

Having referred to evidence of the plaintiff as to instructions regarding the conduct of the Peltonen-Casey bout, Mr. Justice O'Byrne commented—"That is the pleasant story that the plaintiff tells you on his oath, and tells you in the course of his evidence when he asks for damages for libel."

The apology published was drafted on behalf of Peltonen and Casey. It had been suggested that the defendants should have justified the statement regarding Peltonen and Casey, and should have relied upon Mr. Willis's evidence to substantiate that plea. It was suggested in the course of the case that other evidence might also be available, but the existence of such evidence was unknown to the "Irish Press" at the time. Justification was a plea difficult to establish, and it was the general experience that when such a plea failed the usual effect was to increase the damages.

The jury returned a verdict in favour of the defendants.

RUSSIANS TO TRY AGAIN.

PRAISE FOR R.A.F.

BRITISH AVIATION'S HIGH LEVEL.

MOSCOW, Friday. — Writing in the Moscow "Aviation Gazette" to-day Danilin, one of Gromoff's companions on the 6,306 mile trans-Polar flight last year, comments on the new world record set up by the three R.A.F. Vickers Wellesley bombers, which flew from Egypt to Australia this week.

The British 'planes covered 7,160 miles, all three surpassing the Soviet figure, wires the "Daily Telegraph and Morning Post" correspondent.

Danilin states that the bombers' flight is "specially valuable, because it was made by a group of 'planes and also because the 'planes used are mass-produced. This proves the comparatively high technical level of British aviation."

He goes on, however, to argue that he and his companions, if the weather had been favourable, "could easily have flown as far in their old 1934 type Ant 25 as these British pilots in their newer machines."

Danilin affirms that Soviet industry could if it wanted go after new records now and build a machine with a range of at least 10,000-10,600 miles.

Yumasheff, Gromoff's other companion on the trans-Polar flight, declares: "Next year we expect to try a machine in which we hope to fly considerably further than our Moscow to California distance.

"We are working hard at the problem of flying a great distance at high speed and at a great height. I am studying conditions for working in the sub-stratosphere."

THE DEATH PENALTY.

M.P. WANTS FIVE-YEAR ABOLITION.

Mr. Vyvyan Adams (Con., Leeds, W.) has given notice to move in the House of Commons on Wednesday—

"That this House would welcome legislation by which the death penalty should be abolished in time of peace for an experimental period of five years."

FLAT TRAGEDY AFTERMATH

HUSBAND FORMALLY REMANDED.

Pleading not guilty and reserving his defence, Leslie Charles Clements (28), described as a barman, of Richmond Way, Shepherd's Bush, London, was at West London Police Court yesterday formally remanded for a week with a view to his committal for trial on a charge of murdering his 25-year-old wife, Evelyn Clements.

A police officer described how Mrs. Clements was found dead in bed in their basement flat on October 25 with her head battered and a penknife embedded in her back.

In a statement, Clements was alleged to have said that he received a letter from his wife stating that her affections towards him had changed, and "it was all caused by the other fellow."

The statement gave the name of the "other fellow" as "Felix," a demonstrator of dancing, whom Clements was alleged to have said his wife met in the Isle of Man.

Detective-Inspector Charles Clark said that the police had not traced the man Felix.

In Mrs. Clements' handbag he found a letter-card written by Clements to his wife, which ended with the words, "Please come, Eve, beloved. Best love, Leslie."

FRENCH UNEMPLOYED.

There were 363,422 unemployed in France on November 5, an increase of 1,698 over the previous week and of 41,428 over the corresponding week of last year, says the "Daily Telegraph and Morning Post" correspondent.

Nearly 200,000 of the unemployed reside in the department of the Seine, which contains the city of Paris and part of the suburbs.

ACTION TO RECOVER £397

TO GO TO HOUSE OF LORDS.

Leave to appeal to the House of Lords was granted in the Court of Appeal yesterday in the Truck Act case which concerns the question of the deduction of part of an employe's wages for meals supplied by a firm.

Lords Justices Slesser, Finlay and Goddard gave their reasons for allowing, by a majority, the appeal by Cook, Son & Co. from the decision of Mr. Justice Wrottesley in the King's Bench Division that they had made deductions of 10s a week from the wages of Arthur Pratt, formerly employed by them as a packer, in breach of the Truck Act.

Mr. Pratt sought to recover £397 10s which, he said, represented a deduction of 10s a week from March, 1920, to December, 1935.

Lord Justice Slesser said that it seemed to him impossible, on the plaintiff's evidence, that he was remunerated in part in money and in part in kind, to come to the conclusion that this case was one of deduction at all.

Lord Justice Finlay concurred.

Lord Justice Goddard, dissenting, said that the mischief against which the Truck Act was aimed was well known.

"It has been described by many writers, and by none more vividly than by Disraeli in book 3 of his novel, 'Sybil.' He said: 'Workmen were forced to take their wages partly and sometimes wholly in kind, or they were tied to the employers' shop—'The Tommy shop,' as it was called—for the purchase of necessaries.'"

He thought the terms on which Pratt was employed were a breach of the Act.

The appeal was allowed by a majority of the court, and judgment entered for Messrs. Cook.

DUBLIN LIBEL SUIT

AGAINST SUNDAY PAPER.

VERDICT FOR £25 GIVEN.

In High Court, Dublin, on Friday, judgment for £25 and costs was given in favour of John Good, Foley Street, Dublin, in default of appearances on behalf of Allied Newspapers, Ltd., Manchester, against whom he had brought an action claiming damages for libel published in the "Sunday Chronicle" on December 19 last, under the heading "Barry Fitzgerald tells of Dublin wag's threat of law action." The passage complained of contained these words:—"How the original of one of his creations threatened him with legal action is revealed by Barry Fitzgerald, the well-known character actor from the Abbey Theatre group. Fitzgerald is now filming in Hollywood, where also are other Dublin players. 'Fluther,' the boozy old Dublin wag whom I played in my first film, 'The Plough and the Stars,' was a real character, he said. I knew him well—the original. When I played him first on the Dublin stage he threatened to have the law on me, but we patched up the row most amicably and he was upset when the play finally wound up."

In an affidavit Mr. Good said he was the original of the character. The libellous matter complained of had been read by a very large number of his friends and members of the public who identified him as the person referred to as "Fluther" and was calculated to mean that he was disreputable and a dissolute drunkard and a person unfit to be trusted in any occupation. He had accordingly been ridiculed and lowered in the estimation of his friends and other members of the public. He had instructed his solicitors to write to the defendants complaining of the publication, but no apology was ever received from them, nor did they attempt to retract the libel.

Mr. Justice Hanna asked was Mr. Fitzgerald represented?

Mr. Costello, K.C., for Mr. Good—No, he is out of jurisdiction. They are ridiculing this man from long range.

HOLYWOOD MOTOR FINES.

KINDNESS LED TO ARREST.

"PASSED ALL THE TESTS."

At Holywood Petty Sessions yesterday, before Mr. S. C. Clarke, R.M., District-Inspector M'Kinley summoned James Mills Smyth, Dundesert, Crumlin, for being under the influence of drink in charge of a car at Ballyregan on October 27.

Mr. R. F. Sheldon, who defended, said that his client had been at Celtic Park and got some drink. He gave a lift to two men, and one of them would not get out of the car. He went to Dundonald Barracks to ask the police to remove him, and while he was there the police arrested him. He was very honest about the matter and admitted that he had taken some drink. He had been driving for nine years without any previous record.

A fine of £5 with a year's licence suspension was imposed.

Frank James, Rosepark, Dundonald, was summoned for a similar offence, and also for driving dangerously at Ballymiscaw. Mr. B. J. Fox defended.

Dr. Robt. Nixon said he examined defendant. Defendant gave quite a rational answer to some questions, but he considered that he would have been unfit to drive at 8-15.

Dr. Massey Burnside said he had known Mr. James for some time. He saw defendant at 10-25. There was a certain smell of drink, but defendant answered the questions put to him by witness and passed all the tests, and he could not say but that he was perfectly sober. As a final test he asked defendant to write "absolutely preposterous," and he did so perfectly.

Mr. Clarke—He will be able to enter for a spelling bee.

After hearing evidence from Wm. Bruce Watt, with whose car defendant was involved in a slight accident, and Mr. John Mills, Bangor, a passenger in the car, the driving charge was reduced to one of carelessness.

The charge of being under the influence of drink was dismissed, and a fine of 20s imposed for the careless driving.

Denis Henry Harnett, Castlereagh Road, Belfast, was fined 40s and costs on a charge of reckless driving, reduced to one of driving without due care. Mr. P. W. M'Corry (instructed by Messrs. S. Ross & Co.) defended.

The prosecution resulted from defendant's driving at Ballycultra, where it was alleged that he struck the bank.

"THE DANGER PAST."

CASTLEREAGH COUNCIL

AND A.R.P. APPOINTMENT.

"I really don't think we should appoint an A.R.P. officer at all unless the Government steps in and says we must. I do not think there is any necessity in our time."

These remarks were made by Councillor George G...., J.P., at a Castlereagh Rural District meeting on Friday afternoon, when the question of "arrangements to be made in the matter of air-raid precautions" came up for discussion.

The matter arose on a letter from the Belfast Town Clerk stating that the Corporation had adopted a recommendation of the general purposes sub-committee that, while the Belfast A.R.P. officer would be glad to co-operate with the Belfast and Castlereagh District Councils he would not be able to arrange schemes for their districts and suggesting they should appoint an officer of their own.

Councillor Gray expressed the opinion that the Council was not bound to appoint an officer and said he did not think there was much danger of air-raids in their districts, as no one would drop bombs on ploughed fields. He proposed that it was the opinion of the Council that as the immediate danger was past, the Belfast A.R.P. officer ought to be able to look after the Castlereagh Council districts as well.

Mr. John Robb, J.P., seconded the resolution, which it was decided to forward to the Belfast Rural District Council and the Ministry.

HOLYWOOD AND A.R.P.

VARIOUS SCHEMES DISCUSSED.

Captain C. C. M'Creight, Northern Ireland Government A.R.P. officer, visited Holywood on Friday and discussed with a committee various schemes which had been suggested and with which he approved.

The Chairman of the Council, Mr. E. M'Cavana, said that Holywood was in the happy position of having the use of the Belfast Fire Brigade, the Council having made this arrangement some years ago.

The committee who met the inspector were—The Chairman of the Council, Mr. D. Bell (town clerk), Mr. J. S. Munce, M.Inst.C.E. (town surveyor), Mr. Jack M'Call, Mr. C. W. Grant, Mr. H. C. S. Torney (Commandant of the British Red Cross), and Captain H. R. G. Abernethy (A.R.P. officer).

Captain G. H. Creighton, chairman of the committee, presided.

BENCH OF BISHOPS

TO FILL ARMAGH VACANCY.

SYNOD FAILS TO REACH DECISION.

After four votes none of the candidates received the requisite two-thirds majority at the Primate Alexander Synod Hall, Armagh, yesterday where the Diocesan Synod met for the purpose of electing a Bishop of Armagh.

The Bishop of Derry, Rt. Rev. Dr. Peacocke, presided and Lord Justice Best acted as his assessor.

The result of the first vote showed that four names appeared on the select list. They were—Rev. F. J. Halahan, M.C., M.A., Rector of Drumcree, 39 clerical votes, 53 lay votes; Canon Percy Marks, B.D., Rector of Ballymore, Tandragee, 22 clerical, 34 lay; Precentor F. M. Moeran, M.A., Rector of Armagh, 22 clerical, 27 lay; Archdeacon of Dublin (Ven. J. W. Crozier, M.A.), 19 clerical, 28 lay.

The Dean of Armagh (Very Rev. T. J. M'Endoo, M.A.) said that within the past 24 hours Rev. Mr. Halahan had rung him up and laid upon him the solemn charge to have his name withdrawn if it appeared on the select list. If further evidence were necessary besides his own he would refer them to a former curate of Mr. Halahan's.

The President said they could not take Mr. Halahan's name off the list, but that in the circumstances those who voted for him were only wasting their votes.

A second count was taken, Lord Justice Best explaining that they could only vote once for any name on the list, and could not vote at all for any other name. They must also remember to sign the voting papers three times. Some had signed twice only and those votes had been rejected.

The second vote resulted as follows:—

	Clerical.	Lay
Archdeacon Crozier	22	40
Canon Marks	21	30
Precentor Moeran	23	29
Rev. F. J. Halahan	—	2

The President said that nobody having obtained two-thirds of both clerical and lay votes a further vote would be taken.

Chancellor Leslie—Would I be in order in proposing that the election go to the Bench of Bishops?

The President—No, you would not.

The next vote was announced as follows:—

	Clerical	Lay
Archdeacon Crozier	22	43
Precentor Moeran	29	22
Canon Mark	13	28
Rev. F. J. Halahan	—	4

The President remarked that nobody had received anything like the necessary two-thirds majority, and Canon Todd proposed that the election go to the Bench of Bishops.

Lord Justice Best said that the Synod could decide whether to vote again or not.

Canon S. Mayes, M.A., proposed that there should be another vote. (Applause and cries of "No!")

Rev. J. H. Lucas seconded.

It was decided by a large majority to vote again.

The final count resulted as follows:—

	Clerical	Lay
Archdeacon Crozier	24	39
Precentor Moeran	25	29
Rev. F. J. Halahan	—	6

The President announced that the election would go to the Bench of Bishops.

£3,200 FUR THEFT.

HOW IT WAS MADE POSSIBLE

HOLE IN HOSPITAL WALL.

The theft of furs from a West End warehouse was made by men who entered through a hole in the wall of the premises, which was connected with the Middlesex Hospital's out-patients' department.

This allegation was made by the prosecution yesterday when further evidence was given at Marlborough Police Court in the case in which James Wells (30), car salesman, of The Grove, Hammersmith, and Charles Morris Wall Pointer, of Beaumont Road, Acton Green, were charged on remand with being concerned in breaking and entering a warehouse at Middlesex House, Cleveland Street, W., and stealing furs value £3,200, the property of Mr. Abraham Viner, furrier, on the night of October 29-30.

After alleging that thieves entered the warehouse through a hole in the wall, Mr. Roger Bushell, prosecuting, said the accused were arrested by Scotland Yard officers in a garage in Old Hill Place, Clapton Common, in which furs value £2,500 were discovered. These were identified by Mr. Abraham Viner.

Police officers described how they saw the accused moving furs in the garage.

Both the accused were committed for trial at the Old Bailey, and declined an application for bail.

For the defence, it was stated that the accused pleaded not guilty and reserved their defence.

TOWN WAS GUARDED NIGHT AND DAY.

THE CATCHING OF A BULL.

BAD DAYS OF 100 YEARS AGO.

Hundreds of special constables were sworn in and the Home Secretary sent a strong force of Metropolitan Police and a troop of the 14th Dragoons to Stamford (Lincs.) a hundred years ago to-morrow. The whole town was patrolled by sentries every road was guarded—and all for a bull.

These extraordinary precautions were taken to stop Stamford's famous "bull-run"—which had begun far back in the Middle Ages.

About a quarter to eleven on the morning of November 13 the bell of St. Mary's church would toll a warning for the streets to be cleared of all who could not run fast.

Promptly at eleven a bull was released and the whole crowd, bull, men, boys, and dogs, would tear through the streets.

The object was to get the bull on a bridge spanning the Welland, when the crowd would close in and with complete disregard for their safety throw the bull into the river and let it land in what were then meadows and continue the wild chase until the bull, falling exhausted, was killed. The townsfolk would complete their day with a feast of beef.

Parliamentary candidates were always ready to supply a bull for the annual "run" and in 1831 the Conservative Party canvassed the borough under a flag bearing a representation of a bull

Over 200 special constables were sworn in in 1837 to prevent the "run," but they failed and so some days before November 13, 1838, hundreds of soldiers and police arrived at the town and a council of war was held by the Mayor and the commanders of the various forces. They decided that there could be no bull-run without a bull so the whole town was searched.

Two bulls found were given a special guard of Dragoons. Sentries were placed all over the town and parties patrolled the roads night and day to prevent any bulls being brought in. On the morning of the 13th the streets were crowded with "bullards" (bull chasers), but the authorities watched them complacently. They heard the bell of St. Mary's toll the time-honoured warning.

At the last stroke they were electrified by the old shout "Hoy bull hoy" from a thousand voices. The bull had arrived. This was the greatest "run" ever, the excitement being intensified by the Dragoons galloping furiously about the town. The force of Metropolitan Police with more valour than discretion formed a solid barricade on the bridge but the bull charged and it was the police who went into the water.

A rather weak "run" was held in 1839, but by 1840 the people of Stamford realised that this sport had cost them £600 for extra police and soldiers and stopped the run themselves.

LINEN TRADE REVIEW

Unemployment Figures: Best This Year

Yarns For Export—Some Improvement—But Local Demand Dull—Roosevelt Setback May Help Trade In U.S.A.—Tell-Tale Official Figures—Effect Of War In China—Russian Flax Position—Stronger Line Urged—Continental Prices Firm—Spinners' Difficulty—Cotton Trade Problems.

By a Special Correspondent.

It is pleasant to record that the Ulster linen trade unemployment figures issued this week by the Northern Ireland Ministry of Labour are 3.3 per cent. below those for the previous month. They are the best this year, though 8 per cent. above those for the corresponding period of 1937. The latest returns reveal that on October 17 1938, there were 17,730 Ulster linen trade operatives unemployed. This total includes 4,691 men and 10,986 women totally unemployed; 632 men and [illegible] women temporarily stopped, and 21 casual workers idle. This is a percentage rate of 28.9 as against 32.2 in September; 34.2 per cent. in August; 5,817 per cent. in July; 38.4 per cent in June; [illegible] per cent. in May; 33.8 per cent. in April; 32.4 per cent. in March; 29.9 per cent. in February, and 32.3 per cent. in January.

Within the past fortnight there has been some improvement in demand for linen yarns for export. Ulster's fine spins have an unrivalled reputation on the Continent and Germany and Italy, in the main, are big consumers. Our German clients order from us whenever they can obtain the necessary import permit from their Government, and pay promptly on 30-day terms. Incidentally the occupation of the Sudeten areas of Czecho-Slovakia has increased the German flax spindleage by around 140,000 spindles, which, however, were working on coarse to medium yarns. Italy is a noteworthy buyer of Ulster yarns, but this market has been made a difficult one through import restrictions and the lengthy credits demanded. Generally it takes fully six months to obtain settlements from Italy.

No Big Orders.

Local demand for yarns continues dull and patchy, and some manufacturers are delaying taking up their purchases owing to idle looms. While a steady day-to-day business is passing in linens for the home markets and Dominions, no spectacular orders have been placed, and Transatlantic demand remains very disappointing. American inquiries are hopeful, but actual business has been held back by election excitement and by the delayed signing of the trade pact. Many linen men believe that Roosevelt's partial setback will help trading conditions in the States as big business frowned upon many of his schemes.

Several leading Ulster linen firms have issued their balance sheets recently, and these reflect the difficulties encountered during the past twelve months.

Analysing the Board of Trade returns for 1938, we find that in the first nine months of this year the United Kingdom imported 29,030 tons of flax (against 30,797 tons); 12,928 tons of flax tow or codilla (against 14,217 tons); 1,290 tons of linen yarn, worth £124,677 (against 470 tons, worth £49,990); 1,126 tons of hemp yarn, worth £62,405 (against 19,087 tons, worth £107,720), and 1,736,000 square yards of linen and hemp goods (against 1,544,000 square yards, worth £73,135).

As against these imports we exported 2,655 tons of flax and hemp yarn, worth £582,558 (against 3,568 tons, worth £806,125); 38,334,000 square yards of linen and hemp goods, worth £2,701,555 (against 66,971,000 square yards, worth £3,988,706); damask table linen, worth £386,638 (against £546,568); and 689,865 dozen handkerchiefs, worth £131,248 (against 1,100,603 dozen, worth £208,441). The figures shown in brackets are those for the corresponding period of 1937.

War In China Reactions.

Ulster exporters of cambric and sheers have been downcast since August, 1937, marked the opening of the Sino-Japanese struggle. The dire effect of this Far Eastern clash on Ulster exports of fine linen has since been mirrored monthly in the Board of Trade returns. Here are the figures of U.K. exports of linen piece goods for the first nine months of this year, compared with the corresponding figures for 1937 and 1936:—

January	40,495	43,679	41,239
February	35,640	48,499	30,334
March	36,740	55,649	25,719
April	34,443	45,898	26,836
May	26,400	44,010	11,111
June	34,339	56,401	8,538
July	38,281	42,926	3,243
August	43,828	41,340	3,165
September	31,902	5,714	5,506
Totals	£322,068	£384,116	£155,691

Recent developments in China may have a vital bearing on Ulster piece goods exports. The position at the moment is so fluid that it is impossible to know how things will turn out. The capture of Canton cuts right across the trade of Hong Kong, so that nothing can reach the interior of China from it without Japan's permission. It is noteworthy that Japan has drawn up an ambitious scheme to develop her linen industry, envisaging the growing of over 200,000 acres of flax in Manchuria. To-day there are approximately 120,000 flax spinning spindles in Japan as against approximately 850,000 spindles in Northern Ireland. Japan, up till now has been unable to make fine linens, but she plans to compete in the American market in crashes and other coarse goods. It is certain that Japanese linens would not be welcomed in the States, and it is premature to fear competition from this quarter. Soviet Russia is the bugbear of Ulster linen exporters.

Trade With Russia.

A trade deputation, headed by Sir Geoffrey Clark, has called upon the President of the Board of Trade to urge the abrogation of the existing and the conclusion of a new trade agreement with the U.S.S.R. The deputation was fully representative of United Kingdom importers and exporters interested in Russian trade, including the Flax Spinners' and Manufacturers' Association. Exporters and importers alike are quite unanimous in their demands for better terms in trade with Russia, and it is thought that this united front among British commercial opinion may induce Westminster to take a stronger line than it has hitherto done. Russia has been rationing her flax exports drastically, and a very large percentage of the fibre she does consent to sell goes to Germany on a barter arrangement in exchange for machinery. This, despite the fact that Stalin and Hitler lose no opportunity of reviling each other. Russia does a very big export business with the United Kingdom, and there seems to be no reason why pressure should not be brought to bear upon the Soviet to divert flax exports our way and accept Belfast machinery and ships in exchange. In the period January-[illegible] 1938, Soviet Russia exported goods worth 180,386,000 roubles to Great Britain and imported British goods worth 126,698,000 roubles.

The Flax Markets.

Ulster spinners cannot undertake to [illegible] largely in raw material until flax values fall or yarn buying [illegible].

The Continental flax markets are quiet but steady, with little change in prices. Germany is said to be negotiating with Lithuania, Poland, and Latvia for new crop, and this has slightly stimulated the Baltic markets. Latvia has sold the balance of her old crop, mainly to Sweden.

French buying has declined in the Courtrai market, but so far this has had little effect on prices due to the present scarcity of the finer grades of new crop. Ulster spinners have been picking up fair parcels of fibre in the Courtrai market, but much business has been held back due to the firm attitude adopted by Belgian flax merchants. Last week 3,200 bales of Belgian flax were shipped to Belfast on the Ghent boat.

Belgium exported approximately 45,039 bales of flax and tow during October, of which France purchased 33,829 bales, Ireland 8,550 bales, Scotland 330 bales, Germany 1,930 bales, and U.S.A. 400 bales.

The assortment available in the Dutch markets is rather disappointing, and Blue Dutch is scarce. Last week 90 bales of flax and 23 tons of tow were shipped from Rotterdam to Belfast. Approximately 90 tons of Irish flax is now changing hands in the Ulster markets each week at from 8s to 11s 6d per stone. There is a good demand for mixed tow at around 5s per cwt.

Flax and Tow Values.

Flax and tow values:—Irish flax £64 to £88; Group IV. Slanetz flax £90 to £91 basis 1; Ralo tow No. 8 £70 to £71; Latvian Livonian £70 to £71 basis R; Werro-Petschory halves £68 to £69 basis R; Lithuanian Group 1 flax £62 to £63 basis R, all per ton c.i.f. U.K. Nominal values in Ulster of machine hackled water retted tows:—Courtrai £66 (roughing) £70 No. 1; £74 No. 2; £78 Nos. 3/4; Irish £57 (roughing) £60 No. 1; £63 No. 2; £66 Nos. 3/4; Baltic £54 (roughing) £56 No. 1; £58 No. 2; £60 Nos. 3/4. Nominal Irish linen yarn values:—Sheer warps 90's to 110's 7s 4½d, 150's 8s 6d per bundle; Cambric warps 75's to 85's 7s 4½d, 100's 7s 9d per bundle; tow wefts 12's 15s 6d, 14's 13s 6d, 40's 7s 6d, per bundle; line wefts 40's 9s, 50's 8s, 80's to 130's 6s 9d per bundle; 140's 7s 10½d and 150's 7s 10½d per bundle; all per bundle of 60,000 yards of grey yarn, average quality. Nominal Scottish dry spun linen yarn values:—Tow weft 3lbs. 3s per spindle, 3½lbs. 3s 3d per spindle; 4lbs. 3s 6d per spindle; tow warps 3½lbs. 3s 8d per spindle; 4lbs. 3s 11d; 5lbs. 4s 7d; flax warp 2½lbs. 3s 6d; 3lbs. 4s all per spindle; flax warp 4lbs. to 5lbs. 1s 3½d per lb.; 2½lbs. flax 3-ply 1s 8½d per lb.; 2½lbs. flax 3-ply 1s 6½d per lb. Under the Scottish system of yarn numbering the yarn number indicates the weight of a spindle or spangle of 48 cuts, or 14,000 yards.

Flax Drying Problem.

In August the Northern Ireland Flax (Scutch) Millowners' Association declared that they frowned upon central rettery schemes largely because "the difficulty of drying straw on the fields, except in an abnormally dry season, would be insuperable, and even in a dry season the fibre would lose both in quantity and quality." It is certain that an artificial method of drying retted flax straw is a necessity if the operation of retting is to be carried out all the year round.

Some Continental retteries use a hot air tunnel about 30 yards long, heated by gilled steam pipes laid along the floor, and hot air is also blown along the passage by means of a fan. Perhaps a better method is to spread the straw in metal trays, which are pushed into a metal framework upon wheels. The air is heated in side heating chambers and blown or drawn through the trays by means of fans.

Belfast is noted for its heating and fan engineers, and there is no reason why these local experts should not devise solutions to this important problem.

Recently an interesting brattice type machine for drying retted flax straw was designed by an English textile machinist on the lines of a machine which is favoured by Ulster spinners for drying wetspun linen yarn.

Incidentally, it is interesting to note that an acre of fairly good flax weighs about five tons when freshly pulled. In drying it loses about 55 per cent. of its weight. Rippling (de-seeding) reduces its weight by another 20 per cent. Retting brings down the weight by 25 per cent., and if the yield of fibre be taken at 18 per cent., the loss in scutching would be 82 per cent. The yield of fibre is thus only approximately 6 per cent. of the weight of green straw.

Lancashire Cotton Market.

Cotton prices show little change. American and Uppers are somewhat easier on the week, while Giza 7 is to all intents and purposes unchanged after having risen at the end of last week. American "futures" have tended to ease rather less than "spot" prices. Business, which was moderate in all qualities towards the end of last week, diminished as the date of publication of the Bureau report approached. This report estimates the U.S.A. crop at 12,137,000 bales, a fractional decrease from the estimate of a month ago, but considerably below the total of last year's crop. At the same time the yield per acre, although very much below the astonishing figure for last year, is higher than the actual yield for any other year during the last forty. The immediate reaction of the market to the report was a rise of a few points.

The yarn market remains unsatisfactory. There is, of course, a continual trickle of business from various markets and especially from the home trade, and here and there there are spinners who are satisfied with their sales for the week; but the whole tone of the market is dull and disappointing. Spinners' figures for recent weeks show that production has been fairly constant, with a tendency to increase in certain styles, and deliveries have moved similarly. Sales, however, have fluctuated very considerably: they rose rapidly towards the beginning of October but have since declined.

The cloth market has been quiet. This is often the case just before the issue of a Bureau report, especially if the general anticipation is bearish. A fair amount of general inquiry persists. India is showing more interest in light fancies than she has done for a long time past. Java and the Straits, too, are still inquiring for small lots of miscellaneous styles. There has been no inducement, however, for buyers to improve their prices; the state of world economics and politics is too unsettled, and there are other matters which affect the cotton trade in particular, such as the Indian tariff question and the lack of definite news of the quota in Java. Hong Kong and China are still off the map as regards any bulk business. The Continent and the home trade are only doing a hand-to-mouth business. Trade is consequently of small dimensions, but for those who look on the bright side of things, the persistence of the inquiry seems to indicate a chance of a better time to come, should the state of international affairs warrant this.

LAST OF THE FIRST INDIANS.

THEIR GREAT SHYNESS.

BRITISH SCIENTIST'S REPORT.

The last descendants of the first Indians whom Christopher Columbus met in the new world are rapidly on their way to extinction after surviving their kindred for 200 years.

They are the Caribs and there are about 400 of them on the British island of Dominica in the West Indies. A report on them has been made to the Smithsonian Institution, Washington, by the British ethnologist, Dr. Douglas Taylor.

These Indians are almost dwarfish in stature, Dr. Taylor reports, the men averaging about five feet three inches and the women seldom exceeding five feet.

As a race they are sensitive, melancholy, and very shy. In the local patois, they are described as "couquis," a name originally applied to a species of crab which when it cannot escape unobserved, will curl up and remain perfectly still, no amount of poking making it show any signs of life.

This trait may have helped the Indians to survive in the past, but they are now on their last legs as a tribal unit. Social organisation is lacking among them and in their reservation they live in family groups, subsisting largely on fish.

They have no political organisation. Their shyness takes odd forms. Dr. Taylor declares that they will not tell you their names because they believe that names are personal property and that if an enemy comes to know one's name he can work black magic with it against its possessor. Death and illness are regarded as the effect of sorcery or "pial," which is released by elemental spirits. The use of bows and arrows common among their ancestors, has been forgotten by the Caribs.

Apart from fish they live on the produce of family gardens made by burning the forest and sowing in the ashes between burned stumps. The ground soon becomes exhausted and a new garden must be made every three or four years.

Their language, which is presumed to have been close to that of the Indians who greeted Columbus, is almost completely lost. The present Indians speak the creole patois of the island.

Dr. Taylor believes that their native tongue disappeared about 20 years ago. Those who retain some vestige of it regard it as a joke.—Reuter.

UNLUCKY TIME AFTER WEDDING.

A wedding was held to be responsible for a South African having the worst chapter of accidents in his life.

Living on a farm six miles from the township of Coligny, the man attended a wedding in town, taking his wife and family with him. He intended going home by cart, but found the vehicle would not hold all the family and a friend they had picked up, so he hired a motor-car.

He set out, and everything went well until he found it necessary to pull up suddenly in front of a wire fence. The brakes, however, failed to act and he crashed through the netting.

The next morning he intended driving his children to a bus stop some miles away where they picked up the bus to proceed to school. He wasted so much time getting the car to start that by the time he had arrived at the bus stop the vehicle had left and the children had to walk to school.

Riding to his work on a bicycle, he found that his horses had strayed from the cart which he had left in town during the night, and when he got home that night he found that four of his sheep had died

UNIQUE HEART OPERATION.

A man who underwent what is believed to be a unique operation on the heart, from which a casing of lime was removed, has arrived at Auckland (New Zealand) on his way home to Australia (says the Central News).

He is Mr. Alec Watkins, of Melbourne, who went to the United States to be treated for constrictive pericarditis. Operated on at Rochester, Minnesota, life was given back to him at the eleventh hour.

It was stated that his chances of living were one in thousands.

"THINGS TO COME" REVIVED.

As a result of the recent broadcast in New York of Mr. H. G. Wells' "The War of the Worlds," which caused hysteria in many parts of the United States, the British film "Things to Come," based on another book by Mr. Wells, is now back on Broadway for an indefinite run.

"Things to Come," which pictures the destruction of the world by war and pestilence, is also expected to be revived in New Jersey.

If these "test runs" are successful, it is possible that the film will be reissued to the cinemas all over the country within the next few weeks.

Reuter understands that the offices of the company responsible for screening "Things to Come" have since the broadcast episode been deluged with requests from newspapers and photographic syndicates for "stills" of the film with which to illustrate in the news pages some of the horrors and strange things which the now famous broadcast described.

BOY SEES UPSIDE DOWN.

Months of concentrated work by eye specialists and psychiatrists have succeeded in evolving for a timid eight-year-old boy one pair of special glasses, says a Central News Chicago message.

Richard Kenealy lives in a fanciful world where everything is upside down. His case, although rare, is not, however, unique.

When one eye is covered his vision is normal, but when both are at work all objects are seen upside down and backwards.

Without these special glasses he must hold whatever he is reading upside down. When a motor-car comes towards him he sees the wheels spinning round in the air.

There is nothing whatever to indicate what causes the illusion.

LUCAS THE BABOON BOY.

"Lucas," the native boy who was stolen by baboons and reared as an animal, has just celebrated the 36th anniversary of the day he rejoined civilisation and went to live at Mr. George Smith's farm at Thornkloof, Trappes Valley (says a Johannesburg telegram).

Ten years after "Lucas" had been carried off by the baboons a mounted policeman came across him frolicking with his baboon adopters. He could speak no language but made the guttural sounds of the baboons.

To-day Lucas is a trained native houseboy and can speak three languages. Instead of raiding mealie fields as he did with his baboon friends in the past, he guards them from the ravaging animals.

At first he preferred sleeping in a grain bag slung across the stable. To-day, having grown civilised, he submits to blankets.

Sometimes, however, Lucas grows moody and silent and utters strange guttural sounds reminiscent of baboons. He never tires of showing visitors the scars on his body, caused during his wild life in the bush.

COL. MARY BOOTH IN BELFAST.

Colonel Mary Booth, C.B.E., who will conduct services in Dublin Road Citadel and Ulster Hall, Belfast, on Sunday, is a daughter of the late General Bramwell Booth. She was given the distinction "Commander of the British Empire" for her services in France in connection with work amongst the soldiers.

After the Great War she took command of the Salvation Army work in Germany for five years, then had charge of work in the West Indies. Recently she has been in command in Denmark, and has travelled extensively in Salvation Army service. The Colonel has conducted some of the large Congress's in Canada and U.S.A.

DRANK TWO PINTS OF WINE.

FATE OF FRENCH INFANT.

FOUND DYING BY MOTHER.

PARIS, Friday.—The case of a three-year-old Paris boy drinking himself to death with nearly two pints of strong red wine is reported here.

The boy was left alone in his parents' house while the mother, Mme. Marie Coisy, took an elder child to school. When she returned the baby was writhing in agony on the floor, an empty bottle being nearby. He died a few minutes later.

A post-mortem is to be made to see whether death was due to the quantity or quality of the wine.—Central News.

Some Thoughts On Opera

Its Evolution And Progress—Apotheosis Of The Star Singer—Disregard Of Continuity—Verbal Infidelity—Still There Is Hope—Perfect Balance Still To Be Achieved—Good Libretto As Yet Unwritten.

Many of us have been induced to turn our thoughts to opera this week, not only by the visit of Mr. William Boland's company, but also as the result of reading Mr. Ernest Newman's article last Sunday. I heard "Carmen" on Wednesday: a performance which—making due allowance for all the difficulties of production by a touring company—had its good points. It certainly had verve and enthusiasm; and while it is not my province now to give a detailed account of it, I should like to express my approval of two features: the commendable attempt on the part of the chorus to take a real share in the dramatic action, and, secondly, the new "business" which Mr. Boland had introduced at several points and which struck me as being, in every instance, a decided improvement. I should also like to express my pleasure in noting that courage and enterprise were rewarded by a nearly full house.

What is Wrong?

Now, I confess without shame that I have always been a devotee of opera, ever since my first Moody-Manners thrill when I was round about seventeen; and having deserted an adored mistress for several years, I confess that I went to the Opera House on Wednesday with a good deal of the old expectant thrill. If I have to confess to a disillusionment such as I had never before experienced, I do so without any reference to the particular merits of the performance, and simply, I fear, because I have reached the age when I can no longer be blinded by glamour or deaf to all the absurdities. And yet I feel as strongly as ever that there is a case for opera, and that indeed there are all the potentialities for a perfect art-form such as Wagner expounded at length but never wholly succeeded in realising.

What is wrong? Mr. Newman, whose article was concerned with the possibilities of a national opera contends that we are all wrong in producing German and Italian works, of which the style is not natural to us, that the drama and emotional situations of such operas are simply not in our blood—and that the whole thing is as futile as is the attempt of Italians to do Wagner or of Germans to do Rossini and Bellini; and all the other —inis. Of course, that is all very true; and there is the additional handicap for us that we have to sing English translations, most of which are sorry misfits, both in respect of the music and also of the verbal significances.

(Any attentive listener on Wednesday must have noted, over and over again, how a false meaning, or else downright nonsense, resulted from the translator's having infelicitously placed the wrong word either on a strong metrical accent of the music or else on a long note—all the worse if it happened to be a long high note—so that no living singer could have made such passages really convincing).

Music-Drama Came Late.

But there is far more to it than that. Let us consider briefly the historical evolution of this sorely abused art-form. I suppose it may be said that opera is the long-delayed child of Greek drama and of the mediæval Mystery Play. However that may be, opera came into being, along with oratorio, as part of the Nuove Musiche of the early XVIIth century in Florence and Rome. It is one of the unsolved mysteries of history how it came that the idea of music-drama had not occurred to men long before then. Possibly it had been thought of but had been kept in check through fear of the powerful domination of the Church. Anyhow, it came at a time when men were throwing aside the shackles of that domination and were tired of the old impersonal art of the Church Mass and motet and of their secular prototype, the equally impersonal madrigal. Men were yearning for a more forthright type of art, in which the gamut of human emotions could be more fully exploited and also one in which the emotional significance of words should not be obscured by the tangle of a many-voiced counterpoint. So came the solo Monodies of those early operas—the first attempt, be it noted, at solo singing in public. It is also to be noted that those early Monodies did pay a far greater deference to verbal scansion and meaning than is found in the operas we are familiar with—not excepting Wagner's. A song like "Lasciatemi morire" (in Monteverde's "Arianna," 1607), to which I referred recently, is exceedingly true to the poetry—marvellously so, considering that "Arianna" was one of the pioneer works in which men were still groping for a new freedom of expression.

A Sad Story.

But the rest of the story is easily told and sad to tell. The later progress of the solo songs was a boomerang to hit the successors of the first idealists. The progress of opera became the apotheosis of the star singers and the set "aria," with as unscrupulous a disregard for dramatic continuity as for verbal fidelity, and the lifework of reformers like Gluck and Wagner was just one long struggle to recapture a lost ideal and to make opera the "music of the future"—a union of the arts, wherein music and the prima donna and the tenacious tenor should have no more than their rightful share. Did Wagner, that arch-Hitler of art, ever really believe that he had solved the problem We know that he did not solve it, although we grant that he came nearer to the solution than any other ever did—and especially so, I think, in "Die Meistersinger."

Let us remark, parenthetically, that the development of instruments and instrumental forms (such as the dance suite, and later on the sonata and symphony), which coincided with the rise of opera, had its inevitable effect upon operatic form. Those rigid set forms sprang from the fixed metre of the dance and the folksong, as also did the chorale of the Reformed Church. The whole question of the influences at work is too involved to be gone into here. But it is surely not too much to say that in freeing themselves from one bondage the brave souls of the Nuove Musiche found themselves before long in another: in escaping from the tangled web of the old vocal counter-point they became —or rather their successors did, in the short space of a century or so after the birth of opera—bound in the straitjacket of the four-bar phrase; and when an aria—or, for that matter, a concerted piece—unwound itself in endless multiples of the four-bar phrase, it was a poor look-out for dramatic truth.

Too Much the Musician.

Now, Richard Wagner rose superior to such limitation and evolved his free, rhapsodical melody—akin to the early monodies, which were themselves the offspring of the free declamation of Greek drama; but, unfortunately for his dreams and theories, he was far too much the musician, most of the time, to know when to let the plot move on. So again for one bondage we get another. Again drama has to wait in patience, the obedient servant of music.

Is there a hope? I think there is. But that hope will be realised only when another Wagner arises, who shall have all the creative power of Richard the First, plus that unerring instinct for dramatic progression that will know where to pause and where to move on. He shall be (whether his own librettist, like Wagner, or working in full accord with a collaborator) the ideal musician-dramatist the world has never yet known; he shall be adamant against the blandishments or threats of his solo singers; and he shall have the beneficent aid of a Ministry of Fine Arts. Of course, it all depends tremendously on the libretto; and we know it was the fruitlessness of their quest for a good one that held back many, like Elgar, from making an opera.

For myself, I have always yearned to write an Irish opera—and I have at least one thing in common with Elgar, that I have turned down more than one libretto in my time. Perhaps my dream may yet come true; perhaps the ideal book may yet come along—and when it does, I am sure I shall be able to turn for aid to the benignant fathers of Stormont. Certainly our British folk-lore—and by no means least the folk-lore of Ireland—teems with possibilities for the pen of a ready writer.

Schnabel's Visit.

Again I remind readers of the celebrity concert on Monday evening, with Mr. Artur Schnabel, Miss Stella Andreva (soprano) and the B.B.C. Northern Ireland Orchestra, conducted by Mr. Walton O'Donnell. Mr. Schnabel, world-famous Beethoven interpreter, will play the solo part in the "Emperor" Concerto.

I hope to give in Monday's issue an account of the two concluding concerts (November 11 and 12) of the Sibelius Festival.

WITH CELTIC DOGS

IN UNION LAMP TROPHY.

ARGUS BEATEN IN FIRST ROUND.

Argus added nothing to his reputation as a result of his race in the ninth heat of the Union Lamp Trophy at Celtic last night.

Never a dog of great courage he is not the ideal type for a handicap event, but seemed so leniently treated with a mark of four yards that backers were prepared to lay a shade of odds about him—only to see him lead into the home straight, and then cave in under the challenge of Sui.

The Limavady dog ran as game as a pebble, coming out of the ruck to overhaul the favourite by a neck in the moderate time of 32.61.

Edendork Star returned even slower figures in his heat, but had he kept to the inside of the track would have improved on them to a considerable extent.

The going on the turn proved extremely heavy, and Bertie Christie's (Magherafelt) puppy had trouble in finding secure foothold.

NELSON ELOCUTION CLASS.

PUPILS GIVE ENTERTAINMENT.

Parents and friends of the pupils attending the Nelson Elocution Class last evening foregathered in the Central Hall, Rosemary Street, when an entertainment was presented. Rev. Glynne Davies, B.A., occupied the chair.

The concert from start to finish was a most enjoyable one, and all the young artists proved themselves very talented. The programme was well varied and included a selection of verse-speaking.

Apart from the items contributed by the class Mr. Charles Coulter presented two humorous pieces, and songs were rendered by Mr. and Mrs. Harry M'Cormack.

The programme opened with "Off to the Seaside," by Myra and Raymond M'Cabe. "Dolly's Mamma and the Nurse," "The Little Performers," and "Daisy Pots" were also tastefully presented.

A large cast took part in "The Dissatisfied Fairy," a play in three acts.

Other sketches were—"A Model Mistress," "The Fairyland Wish," "A Little Argument," "Catty Conversations," "The Beauty Parlour," and "Why?"

Carrie Wilson danced "The Highland Fling."

ULSTER AMATEUR BOXING TITLES.

KEEN CLUB RIVALRY.

SURVEY OF THE ENTRIES.

BELFAST TOURNEY PROSPECTS.

It would be a fitting tribute to the fine work that is being done by the Ulster Council I.A.B.A. in developing enthusiasm for the amateur sport if boxing fans rallied in full strength at both sessions in the Ulster Hall, Belfast, next week (Tuesday and Wednesday), when the Northern senior championships will be decided. The admission charges are nominal, and crowded "houses" would help the Council's pioneer service.

Outstanding talent (writes "The Timekeeper") is available for this year's competitions, and at least five new title-holders will emerge. C. Brown, holder of the bantamweight title, is now in the "paid ranks." R. Mills featherweight champion, will be unable to defend his title through illness, which is to be regretted, as he was strongly fancied to win for the fifth successive year. Constable W. A. Duncan is not defending his middleweight title; while Constable M. J. Marshall, the cruiser champion, is competing in the heavyweight division, in which the holder, J. M'Mullan, R.U.C., by virtue of holding an Irish title, is not eligible again for provincial honours. Therefore, new champions must be found in the five weights referred to, and possibly in another division, for T. Grattan, Newry, the lightweight champion, has not been seen in action this year, and is thought to be allowing his crown to pass into other hands. T. J. Anderson (Beresford), the flyweight champion, and C. Murray (Banbridge) are defending their titles.

DIVISIONAL STUDY.

"Hot" fancies as title-winners:—H. M'Auley (Crown) for flyweight if he can manage the weight; if not, he is likely to be a tough tester of D. Fisher (Beresford) for bantam honours.

With Mills laid up, Harry Fisher should scatter the "feathers," L. Mitchell (Derry) and T. Potts (Banbridge) being danger signals.

Lightweights—T. Lyttle (Banbridge) fancied, with Corporal Gleeson (Welsh Regiment) the leading menace.

Welterweight—Murray, determined to retain crown, will have many tough rivals, notably military. Lance-Corporal Cannon (Welch) may clear the decks, but Private John (S.W.B.) is the "question mark."

Middleweight—J. Wright (North), twice holder, is trying a "come-back," and should be Constable Gallacher's chief hurdle, although I am told W. Newell (Caroline) may be the nigger in the woodpile.

Light-heavyweight—A hot handful here, with military rivals facing keen civilian challengers.

Heavyweight—Strong R.UC., bidders, with M. J. Marshall leader, and Private Wood (S.W.B.) the challenge to police supremacy.

You may not agree with my pointers, but that's what will make the tourney worth attending!

IRISH TEAMS TO MEET ENGLAND.

At a meeting of the Irish Amateur Boxing Association held in Dublin yesterday, the following teams were chosen to represent Ireland against England at Dublin on December 2 and at Belfast on December 5:—

Team for Dublin—Flyweight, J. Healy, Clonmel. Bantamweight, F. Kerr, Arbour Hill. Featherweight, J. Smith, Clonmel. Lightweight, E. Smith, Garda. Welterweight, J. M'Cormack, Corinthians. Middleweight, M. Coffey, Arbour Hill. Cruiserweight, R. Hearns, Garda. Heavyweight, M. Lacy, Waterford.

Team for Belfast—Flyweight—D. Coffey, Arbour Hill, or H. M'Auley, Crown, Belfast. Bantamweight—M. Doyle, Corinthians, or D. Fisher, Beresford, Belfast. Feather-weight—H. Fisher, Beresford, Belfast, or J. Dowdall, The Curragh. Lightweight—V. Black, Baldonnel, or S. Hynes, Galway. Welterweight—T. Byrne, St. Andrews, or Corpl. Evenden, Collins. Middle-weight—Const. Gallacher, R.U.C., or Pte. Reid, Collins. Cruiser-weight—J. Magill, R.U.C. or Pte. F. Curran, Portobello. Heavy-weight—J. M'Mullan, R.U.C.

M'ALLISTER DEFEATS HENDRIE.

At Blackpool Tower Theatre on Friday evening Dan M'Allister (Belfast) outpointed Tommy Hendrie (Glasgow) over ten rounds at 9st. 2lb.

M'Allister, after being troubled by the good hitting of the Scotsman in the opening rounds, went forward to a convincing victory. The Belfast boxer adopted open tactics, and his extra speed, heavier punch, and superior ring-craft gained him a clear-cut win.

ULSTER BOXERS WIN IN DUBLIN.

At an amateur boxing tournament staged at Portobello Barracks, Dublin, on Friday evening under the auspices of Corinthians B.C., Ulster competitors notched victories.

In the bantamweights, D. Fisher (Beresford, Belfast) knocked out W. M'Kenna (Unity) in the first round, while his brother Harry, also of the Beresford, outpointed A. Costello (Tramway) in the featherweight class. Constable J. M'Mullan (R.U.C.), Irish heavyweight champion, smartly outpointed T. Penny (Corinthians), while in the middleweight division Constable W. Gallacher (R.U.C.) similarly defeated C. Forde (St. Andrew's).

CORK BOXING RESULTS.

In a boxing tournament at Cork on Friday evening, Jack M'Knight (Belfast), Ulster middleweight champion, was awarded the decision against Paddy Roche (Cork), who claims the Irish welterweight champsionship, Roche being obliged to retire in the fifth round with an injured hand.

The result of the fight was a great disappointment to Roche's supporters, who filled the City Hall. Roche was clearly better in the early stages, boxing as cleverly as ever, and punching well. He received his injury in the second round. Thereafter his left was practically useless. Both men had fought earlier this week, Roche in Brussels on Wednesday, and M'Knight in Birmingham on Tuesday, and this, followed by lengthy journeys to Cork, had its effect, neither being as aggressive as he would otherwise have been.

"Butcher" Howell, of Cosk, knocked out Bob Harrison, of London, in the fifth round of a heavyweight contest. Howell was superior from the start, Harrison being down several times before the final drop.

Jack Linehan (Cork) had an advantage of height and weight over his opponent, Barney Wilson, of Belfast, in their 10-round welter contest, but Wilson more than made up for this by his fast and clever punching.

In the third round Linehan was down for eight after a fierce set to. Wilson followed up his advantage, and again put Linehan down. When he got up again Wilson for the third time floored him. Only the gong saved Linehan.

The fourth round saw more fierce punching, and Linehan went down for another count of eight from a left to the jaw. Linehan made a great recovery, and punished Wilson in the next round. Linehan was again the aggressor in the sixth round, but Wilson opened a nasty cut over the Cork man's left eye, and the referee stopped the contest, awarding the honours to Wilson.

In other ten rounders, Joe Wilson (Belfast) shared the points with Osmond Bennett (Cork) in a cruiserweight test, and Jack Darkley (Belfast) outpointed Moss Leen (Tralee).

GALENTO CHALLENGES LOUIS.

NEW YORK, Saturday. — "Two-Ton" Tony Galento has asked the National Boxing Association not to recognise the all black John Henry Lewis—Joe Louis fight on January 27 as being for the heavyweight championship of the world.

Galento claims the right to be challenger to Louis for the title, and has, in fact, issued an official challenge backed by a deposit of 5,000 dollars (£1,000) as evidence of good faith.

Galento is fighting Harry Thomas, of Chicago, at Philadelphia on Monday over 12 rounds. Thomas fought Joe Louis for the world title last April, and was knocked out in the fifth round.

John Henry Lewis, who is recognised practically everywhere except in New York State as the world's cruiserweight champion, is several shades darker than Joe.

He explained the somewhat miserable showing he made in beating Al Gainer, another negro, at New Haven, Connecticut, recently by saying that he was not in the condition he would have liked to be in because of having to make the cruiserweight limit of 12st. 7lbs. When he enters the ring against Louis he will scale about 13st. 3lbs. against Louis's 14st. 4lbs.—P.A. Foreign Special.

CRITICISED HIS SUCCESSOR.

OLDFIELD IN HOT WATER.

BARNETT'S TEST BLUNDERS.

SYDNEY (N.S.W.), Saturday.—W. A. Oldfield, the former Australian wicket-keeper, who has just announced his retirement from first class cricket, has been in hot water owing to his radio criticism of Barnett's wicketkeeping during the first and last Tests.

Members of the Australian Test team are reported to have taken objection to Oldfield's remarks.

In an interview here Oldfield expressed surprise at the way his talks had been received. He declared that he went to England as a critic, and considered that his references to the recent Tests had been constructive rather than destructive.

"While Barnett's general work was acceptable, he failed at critical moments to co-operate successfully with the bowlers, with disastrous results to the side.

"The lack of co-operation referred to was in connection with unaccepted chances in the first Test Match at Nottingham, when Paynter might have been stumped off M'Cabe at 88 and went on to mawe 216 not out, and Ames, when he was missed behind, also off M'Cabe, early in his innings, and finally made 46.

"Then again, in the final Test at the Oval, Hutton might have been stumped off Fleetwood-Smith at 39 and went on to make 364, and Leyland at 68 also gave a chance of stumping off O'Reilly and proceeded to score 187."—Press Association Special.

BRADMAN BATTING AGAIN.

ADELAIDE, Saturday.—South Australian members of the Australian Test team, which toured England, quickly got into their stride in their first club games to-day.

Don Bradman showed that he has recovered from his foot injury by scoring 49 in 62 minutes. C. W. Walker, the wicket-keeper, scored 43. F. Ward, the slow bowler, took six for 82 and M. G. Waite six for 75.—Press Association Special.

PIGEON SOCIETIES' FEDERATION.

DISTRIBUTION OF PRIZES.

PRESIDENT TELLS OF PROGRESS.

There was a large attendance of pigeon fanciers at the annual reunion and distribution of prizes of the Ulster Federation of Homing Pigeon Societies held at the rooms, 11 Victoria Street, Belfast, on Friday evening. No fewer than 12 cups were presented in addition to a number of medals and diplomas.

A notable exhibit was the 100 guinea gold cup for the winner of the Landernau race.

The president, Mr. James Clarke, presided, and reviewed the events of the past year. There were six new clubs he said, and the membership had increased by 54 to 560. There was a credit balance of £32. He thanked Mr. T. Millar, Belfast, for the handsome gold cup in connection with the Landernau (French) race.

Mr. J. Beattie, M.P., who presented the prizes, complimented the members on a most successful season, and expressed the hope that the Ulster Federation of Homing Pigeon Societies would continue to flourish as in the past. The Federation, he thought, was doing fine work in the promotion of the sport, and it deserved the loyal support of all pigeon men.

The awards were presented as follow:—O.B. Open Cup (Penzance), W. M'Murray, B.C.A.F.C.; French Cup (Landernau), J. Graham, Lisburn; Members' O.B. Average Cup (nine O.B. races), W. M. Thompson, B.C.A.; North Section Charity Cup, J. Gordon, B.C.A.; East Section Charity Cup, S. M'Millan, B. & M.H.P.S.; Country Section Charity Cup, Bingham Bros., Dromore; Y.B. Open Cup (2nd Wexford Y.B.), R. C. Boyd, B.C.A.; Kilpatrick Wexford Cup (2nd Wexford Y.B.), Taggart and Dodds, Lisburn; Inter-Society Average Cup (15 races), Belfast City Amateurs F.C.; Kilpatrick Skibbereen Cup (Skibbereen Y.B.), Wm. Mundell, Larne; "Liverine" rose bowl (Skibbereen Y.B.), E. M'Cutcheon, Victoria; Show Cup (show birds in nine O.B. races), Watton Bros., East End; Millar Show Cup (previous show season), R. Stewart, Bangor; I.H.U. medal (1st Milford-Penzance), J. M'Cammon, Larne; I.H.U. Skibbereen medal, E. M'Cutcheon, Victoria.

1938 Old Bird Race Diplomas:—J. M'Cormick, Miltown (Gormanstown); W. Stronge, Dromore (Bray); S. M'Carrison, Miltown (Arklow); G. Nixon, B.C.A. (1st Wexford); M'Carrison Bros., Miltown (2nd Wexford); W. Drummond, Larne (1st Milford); W. Manderson, B.C.A. (2nd Milford); I. Greenaway, B. & M. (Bude); J. M'Cormick, Miltown (Penzance); J. Graham, Lisburn (Landernau); Watton Bros., East End (Show O.B. average); W. M. Thompson, B.C.A. (Members O.B. average, nine races).

During the evening there was an enjoyable programme.

The arrangements, as usual, were admirably carried out by Mr. H. H. Stewart, secretary, who with the hon. treasurer, Mr. Samuel Noble, was complimented by the president.

AIR LINER "SPEEDSTER."

BRIGHTON TO LONDON IN 9 MINS.

Frobisher, the first of the De Havilland Albatross type air liners to be delivered to Imperial Airways, flew from Brighton Pier to Croydon Airport in nine minutes forty seconds yesterday—averaging 235.8 m.p.h. for the 38 miles' journey.

Together with two other aircraft of the same class, to be named Falcon and Fortuna, the Frobisher will be used on Imperial Airways European routes. These machines will be among the fastest air liners in Europe.

The Albatross type, a four-engined low-wing monoplane, with a maximum speed of about 240 m.p.h., is an almost perfectly-streamlined aircraft. In an inverted position the fuselage resembles nothing so closely as the body of a shark. The unusual shape of the balanced fins heightens the illusion.

Structurally the machine is almost unique in these days of all-metal construction. Developed from the D.H. Comet racing monoplane, in which Scott and Black won the Melbourne air race, it is built almost entirely of wood.

The four supercharged Gipsy XII. engines are of 405, 420 rated horse-power.

From Croydon yesterday the Frobisher took 26 seconds for the take-off.

Frobisher carries a crew of four, and has accommodation for 22 passengers.

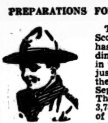
WITH BOY SCOUTS.

BELFAST NEAR THE 4,000 MARK.

ALL GROUPS NOW BUSY.

PREPARATIONS FOR CHRISTMAS.



That the appeal of Scouting in Belfast has in no wise diminished is shown in the census figures just completed for the year ending September, 1938. The total all ranks, 3,789, is an increase of 145 on the previous year's membership, and this is all the more heartening when it is remembered that during the past three years successive increases have totalled 609. When it is also considered that there is a falling boy-population, and that a considerable outward movement to new housing estates takes boys away from existing Groups, the steady rise in membership is certainly a source for great satisfaction.

In Belfast there are now 60 Wolf Cub Packs, 64 Scout Troops, 32 Rover Scout Crews—in all 71 Scout Groups, an increase of two Groups. Wolf Cubs number 1,384, Scouts 1,524, Rovers 387, Scouters 293, 201 other officers. The value of the movement in Ulster is showing itself to be as great, or even greater, than ever before.

As far as Boy Scouts are concerned Christmas is only a short time off. They have a lot of hard work to put in preparing Christmas Good Turns for needy folk and for poor children, many of whom, if it were not for the Scouts, would not realise there is a Father Christmas. Boy Scouts in many parts of the world carry out this yearly good turn. Some districts rent shops where they collect toys and use the premises to repair and renew old toys. Troops rooms, Rover dens, and church halls are other places which are used for toy clearing stations, and it is surprising to see the Scouts restore broken mechanical toys to their former working condition. Practically every Ulster Scout Group has its own particular good turn. For quite a number of years this, the "good turn" motto of the Scouts has become a highly concentrated business at Christmas time, and it is very gratifying to note the increased interest in preparation and wider scope of this year's good work.

THE AUSTRALIAN JAMBOREE.

The t.s.s. Esperance Bay, in which the members of the United Kingdom contingent are making the voyage to Sydney to attend the Australasian Jamboree, called at Malta on Tuesday. The contingent left Southampton on November 2, and they will be away from home for four months. They are probably the most envied boys in this country. The Chief Scout sent a message to the contingent which contained the following passage—"We want you to go out there and show the Australians and the New Zealanders what Scouts of the Old Country are like. So that, instead of chaffing you as 'Pommies,' that is, tenderfoots, they will find you are above the average as Scouts in smartness, discipline, and efficiency in camp." The party will arrive at Adelaide on December 7, and will travel across country to Sydney.

The Chief Scout, Lord Baden Powell, adept at moving about secretly, has recently excelled himself, for he has slipped away from this country without any of his Scouts knowing. He sailed for Kenya on October 27, and will spend a quiet winter in his new bungalow, "Paxtu," at Nyeri.

Scout Commissioners from all parts of the country travelled to London on Wednesday to say good-bye to Mr. C. Dymoke Green, and to make him a presentation in appreciation of his services to them while serving as general secretary of the Boy Scouts Association for 22 years. The presentation was made to Mr. Green during an informal tea party at the Girl Guide Headquarters in Buckingham Palace Road, London.

BELFAST COUNTY EXECUTIVE.

The Belfast County Scout Executive Committee met this week under the chairmanship of Mr. H. H. Stewart. There was a good attendance of members to deal with the very considerable business. The main subject was preparation for the annual meeting of the Belfast Association at the end of the present month. It was mentioned that Scout and Cub displays would be given in addition to the showing of an historical Scout film. Correspondence contained a letter describing three tours to Canada from Belfast next August for Scouts and Guides. A copy of a resolution of thanks to those Scouts who asisted in the A.R.P. work in the recent crisis was received from the Belfast Corporation. Condolences with Miss J. M'Cormick, County Cub Secretary, on her recent bereavement were expressed by members of the committee.

It is a compliment to Scouting that Belfast employers in increasing numbers are making use of the Belfast Scout headquarters when boys are required for employment in widely different classes of work. Sometimes several boys are placed in situations during one week, and as yet Scout headquarters has heard nothing but praise of the fine type of boy sent in answer to innumerable inquiries.

At the Armistice service yesterday three King's Scouts, Troop Leader B. Williamson, Patrol Leader J. Pressagh, and Patrol Leader J. Truesdale, under Captain J. A. M'Ferran, placed a wreath on the Cenotaph on behalf of the Scouts of Ulster.

An enormous amount of work has been accomplished for the small boys in Ulster by devoted Wolf Cub officers, and these officers, in fostering their branch of the movement, propose to hold an all-Ulster Cubbers gathering in Belfast about the third week in January next year. The first meeting of the organising committee was held this week, at which several letters were read from Cubbers in widely-scattered areas expressing keenness for the scheme.

Training courses for Scouters are essential to Scouting's programme. They serve to interpret the scheme of Scouting to the men and women who act as leaders. During the summer months there was a good deal of activity at outdoor courses for the Wood Badge, and on Monday week (November 21, 22 and 23) there will commence for three evenings an indoor Scouters' course under the auspices of the North Belfast Association. This course, which will be held in the 74th Belfast headquarters, College Square North, though under North District, will be available for all prospective candidates for warrants, and men of other Districts are invited to attend.

BANBRIDGE GROUP BAZAAR.

A bazaar organised by the 2nd Banbridge Group was opened this afternoon by her Grace the Duchess of Abercorn. Scoutmaster B. Heathwood personally supervised the guard of honour, and the bazaar was made the occasion for a great rally of the Groups of Banbridge and District. District Commissioner Wm. Liddell extended a welcome to the Duchess of Abercorn and presented the Rev. J. Parr, rector, and Mr. W. J. Radcliffe. The chairman was Mr. N. D. Ferguson.

During the Christmas holidays several Belfast Scout Troops arrange football fixtures with provincial Troops. The games are played alternately in Belfast and on the home grounds of the provincial Troops. The 48th Belfast would like to make a similar arrangement with a provincial Troop. They have quite a good Soccer eleven and would like to play a match outside Belfast this Christmas. Any provincial Troop interested should write to W. Cunningham, 21 Everton Street, Belfast.

The 1st Portstewart Wolf Cubs are now settled down to the winter programme, and everyone is looking forward to a happy time. It is interesting to note that the Pack gave a cordial welcome to Miss E. Burns (1st Greenisland Pack), who is now in Portstewart and is taking an active interest in the Portstewart Pack. Miss Burns is an excellent Cub officer, and her assistance should be of great value to the Pack. The inter-Six Competition was won by Red Six, under Sixer J. M'Kenzie and Second W. M'Closkey.

KING'S SCOUT BADGES.

Three Troops tied for first place in the H. H. Murdock Memorial Competition. This competition is awarded to the Troop gaining the greatest number of King's Scout badges in one year. The work entailed in attaining the highest standard of Scouting efficiency demands the best that Scouts can give. They require to be first-class Scouts, and must gain the ambulance and pathfinder badges, with two other badges of public assistance nature. Congratulations to the 12th (Crescent), 66th (Cregagh Presbyterian), and 24th (Knock Methodist).

CONTRACT BRIDGE

Lessons Of A Bidding Post-Mortem

By "Ace of Spades."

Last week we left Norman and Sam about to restart playing against Eddie and Willie after Jack, an onlooker, had explained in some detail the first principle of commonsense bidding. Readers who are familiar with competitive bridge will probably have noted that the players' initials correspond to their respective positions at the table, Norman being north, Eddie east, and so on.

When play had been interrupted Norman and Sam had scored a game and their opponents had scored 30 points below the line in the second game. It was Eddie's deal, and after dealing he found himself with this hand:—

♠KQJx ♥Ax ♦10xxx ♣KJx

He bid "One spade, which Sam passed. Willie held:—

♠Axx ♥Q10xx ♦KJxx ♣Qx

In view of the score he bid "Three spades," which was passed all round.

Sam led from a doubleton diamond, and Norman made the ace and queen. He led a third round of diamonds, enabling Sam to win with a small trump. A low heart was now led, and Norman held KJ over dummy, so the contract was defeated, the defence taking two diamond tucks, one ruff, and one each in clubs and hearts.

Fuel to the Fire.

"Hard luck, partner," said Willie. "Perhaps my hand wasn't worth a double raise, but I thought I would make an effort having regard to the score."

"Oh, the bid was quiet right," said Eddie. "We could have made our contract with ease if I could have got in to clear out the opposing trumps."

"Wouldn't 'two no trumps' have been an easier contract?" asked Norman, hoping to disturb the equilibrium of the partnership.

"Of course we could have made 'two no trumps,'" Eddie answered, knowing what was in Norman's mind, "especially with the defence we were likely to encounter, but we couldn't possibly have bid it."

"Why not?" said Sam, adding some fuel to the fire which was obviously breaking out. "You could have bid 'one no trumps' yourself instead of 'one spade,' or if Willie had made the correct response of 'two diamonds' to your opening bid you would have bid 'two no trumps.'"

"I don't agree," said Eddie. "Taking your second point first, in my view Willie's response was perfectly right in the circumstances; and, as to my opening bid, I would never bid no trumps having a biddable major suit in my hand."

"What is your view about this?" inquired Willie, turning to Jack. "They say the onlooker sees most of the game."

"Well, I am hardly in a position to criticise your bidding since I am not well up in your system," was the reply. "But I would never agree with Eddie's statement that a four-card major suit, however strong, should be bid in preference to no trumps with a fairly good all round hand. In fact it is a principle of the commonsense system never to open the bidding with a four-card major suit."

Often Quite Safe.

"And why not, may I ask?" said Eddie somewhat curtly, "surely many game contracts are successfully played in major suits with only four trumps in the declarer's hand when game could not be made in any other contract?"

"Quite so," replied Jack, patiently, "but I am only referring to opening bids. It is often quite safe to bid a four card major suit later in the bidding when you have some information as to the lie of the cards and the distribution of honour strength Let me explain the grounds for this principle.

"If you analyse a large number of hands you will find that the great majority of game contracts are played in no trumps or the major suits. This is because it only requires nine tricks in the trumps or two in a major suit to make game, while eleven tricks are required in a minor suit. Now a suit contract is genarally safer than a no trumps contract because the defence cannot make low card tricks in their suits while the declarer has control of the trump suit. This means that a declarer does not require such great honour strength to establish his only tricks in a suit contract as he required in no trumps.

Possible Route to Game.

"When a player opens the bidding with a one bid in a major suit he is suggesting a possible route to game. In effect he is saying 'Partner, I have at least four or five probable tricks if this suit is trumps, and with some support from you we may be able to go places.' If he opens with a one bid in a minor suit he may be merely opening negotiations, and is not necessarily prepared to play the hand in a game contract in that suit.

Again, an opening no trumps bid gives general information along these lines:—"Partner, I have a good all-round hand with some strength in at least three suits. If you have a good suit of your own, tell me about it; but if you have also a fairly good hand with the strength distributed in two or three suits, our best chance of game is in no trumps."

"Do you mean to say you would never make an opening bid of 'one heart' or 'one spade' unless you had at least five cards in the suit?" asked Eddie.

"Not at all," was the answer. "I might do so an a four card suit if I could find any other reasonable bid or if I felt that the opposition was likely to secure the final contract and I wanted that suit led."

Eddie thought he had caught Jack out at last. He sat up in his chair, preening himself, and asked haughtily, "Didn't you say just now that your principle is never to bid a major on four cards, or something like that?"

Provides for Card Sense.

"Quite so," Jack answered undismayed, "that is the principle, but the system is elastic. It provides for the exercise of natural card-playing ability, that is card sense. When your card sense, if you have any, tells you to stretch, or even break, a bidding principle, you must do so, otherwise your card sense would be useless, and it is the object of the common sense system to exploit card sense. Of course, if you have not yet acquired this sense you must observe the principles to the letter."

"How is your partner to know when you are employing this card sense business?" Eddie persisted.

"If my partner knows anything, he knows that I am always employing card-sense," was the reply, "but he must assume at all times that I am adhering to the system. If I open the bidding with a bid of 'one heart' he must assume that I have at least five hearts in my hand, and that my hand is not strong enough to bid 'two hearts.' When I transgress it is up to me to keep out of trouble. He must bid his own hand and only his own hand.

"Believe me, if he does so, we shall not lose many points by my variations from the system. When my card sense tells me to deviate from the straight and narrow path, it also tells me how to avoid such dangers as may arise from that deviation. In other words, I never deviate unless there are sufficient compensating values to enable me to take care of myself."

WHITEHOUSE CLUB RESIGN

FROM NORTHERN AMATEUR LEAGUE.

Intimation has been received by the Northern Amateur League that Whitehouse R.C. have resigned from the competition in consequence of their ground not being available for play for some months.

DERRY CITY'S SHARE ISSUE.

Owing to the need for funds the directors of Derry City Football Club have decided to call an extraordinary general meeting of the shareholders, and this will take place on Monday evening next.

A resolution will be submitted that an issue be made of 6,000 shares of 5s each from the authorised capital of the company, of which there remains at present unissued 7,293 shares.

LOCKE'S NEW ZEALAND TITLE.

DUNEDIN (N.Z.), Saturday.—A. D. ("Bobby") Locke, the South African, to-day won the New Zealand Open Golf Championship here with an aggregate of 288, comprising rounds of 75, 69, 72 and 72.

Locke overcame a bad start and steadily cut down the lead of his opponents.—Press Association Special.

MR. MARTIN BENSON ILL.

Mr. Martin H. Benson, who purchased the Italian racehorse Nearcho for £60,000 last June, has undergone an operation in the London clinic. He is now well on the way to recovery.

GOSSIP FROM PRESS.

THE ROYAL VISIT TO U.S.A.

MINISTER-IN-ATTENDANCE.

LONDON, Saturday.

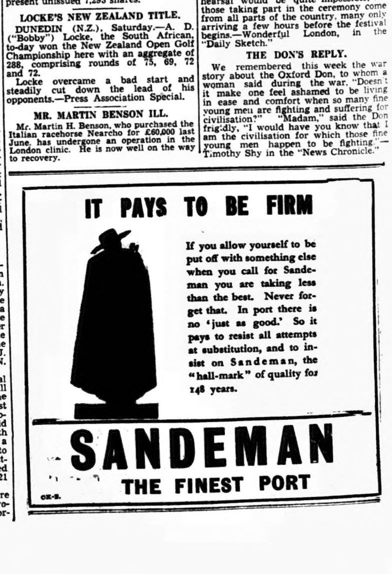
The visit of the King and Queen to the United States raises the question of what Minister will be in attendance. Lord Halifax acted in this capacity on the Paris visit. Whether the Foreign Secretary, or any of his colleagues, will attend the King at Washington seems doubtful. Obvious difficulties would arise in arranging for this duty to be undertaken by a member of the British Cabinet. In Canada, the King will be attended by his Canadian Ministers. A Minister from London could fulfil this function only after the frontier had been crossed. The solution would seem to be that in the United States the King will be accompanied by a Dominion Minister, presumably Mr. Mackenzie King, who is Minister for External Affairs. If this course is adopted, it will be the first occasion on which the British Sovereign has been officially attended on a visit to a foreign country by a Minister of one of the Dominions.—"Peterborough," in the "Daily Telegraph and Morning Post."

WONDERFUL FESTIVAL.

Surely there was never such cheering and such singing as at the British Legion's annual Festival of Remembrance at the Royal Albert Hall last night. Surely there was never such another display of loyalty to the King, who went with his Queen and his mother to meet once more the men who served their country so well and so truly in dark days. Those were the thoughts that ran through my head as I looked down from a box on the cheering, singing 7,000 men and women who packed the hall to its uttermost capacity. The most amazing fact about the Festival is that it is not rehearsed. Indeed, rehearsal would be quite impossible, for those taking part in the ceremony come from all parts of the country, many only arriving a few hours before the festival begins.—Wonderful London, in the "Daily Sketch."

THE DON'S REPLY.

We remembered this week the war story about the Oxford Don, to whom a woman said during the war, "Doesn't it make one feel ashamed to be living in ease and comfort when so many fine young men are fighting and suffering for civilisation?" "Madam," said the Don frigidly, "I would have you know that I am the civilisation for which these young men happen to be fighting."—Timothy Shy in the "News Chronicle."



IT PAYS TO BE FIRM

If you allow yourself to be put off with something else when you call for Sandeman you are taking less than the best. Never forget that. In port there is no "just as good." So it pays to resist all attempts at substitution, and to insist on Sandeman, the "hall-mark" of quality for 148 years.

SANDEMAN

OX-8.

Edwardian

By COUNTESS EVELYN ZASIO.

NOW I see a mere man has been round London town calculating the number of women who've put their hair up. It seems that only about 7 per cent. of the women who were walking along a fashionable thoroughfare had followed the Edwardian style. And it seems that a fair Edwardian-fan commented on the low proportion of "up" styles by dismissing the non-fashionables as just would-bes that cannot because they haven't enough hair.

"Women looking like Women."

But this male observer, in a wise summing-up, asks the ladies with thin necks and those with over-plump necks not to succumb to this style—though he evidently likes the style, for, to quote him, "It helps women to look more like women."

Stale news though it be, it has to be admitted that the styles of 30 or 40 years ago are here and seem to be staying. The dressing of the London shop windows fits with the 1900 influence in fashion. One Regent Street store the other day had furnishings of that period as a background for its showing of the new evening gowns.

But the daytime silhouette, following its trend, has something extremely modern and bright about it. I observed the new silhouette in many advance shows and it is now right before the public. Shoulders are broad, waists are nipped, and skirts are flared. This, in brief, is the general outline and shape of suits and dresses that are being worn.

Shoulders are definitely important. Some of the designers make them broaden outwards; others just send them upwards. Gathers and tucks are up at the top of the sleeve, and the "leg-of-mutton" is more frequently seen. Drapery concentrated on the top of the bodice of the new styles lends importance to the shoulders.

Waists, though narrow, are not quite decided as to whether to be normal, or to go higher or down towards the hip level. The tightly-moulded natural waist looks like winning the day.

Furs Again.

Reports in trade papers tell us that the fur trade has recovered confidence. This news is given out after the great auctions held the other week in London, which has now become the fur centre of the world, having quite taken the place of Leipzig. And it is not to be wondered at, for, indeed, fur fashions have never been more popular than this season.

Some of the loveliest of evening gowns are making use of the new fur trimmings. Brocades and laces, silks and satins, all feature fur trimming. Only two generations ago, the silver fox was the rarest prize that trappers knew. Even after the Great War silver foxes mainly came from the Canadian North. The average price of a silver fox in 1920 was £52. But competition in fox breeding grew, and in 1937 the price of the lovely silver fox was down to £6. So that in less than 20 years scarcity has given way to superabundance.

With this superabundance the fashion of fox capes came in, and even coats were introduced. But cheap foxes made designers think hard to evolve styles and medians for women who are so favoured as to be able to have out-of-the-ordinary furs. Blue fox was decided on. But this species is rare, and the prices are still unreasonably high; so white fox comes into its own. This fur can be dyed in most attractive shades, and its forms and texture are excellent for making-up.

SOCIAL LIFE IN ULSTER

By RHONA

HIS Grace the Governor and the Duchess of Abercorn promised some time ago to attend the first annual Barnardo's Ball next Thursday. It is being organised by a committee of voluntary helpers, with Mr. Tony Clark, M.P., as chairman, and it is definitely a smart affair.

Booking, I am told, is remarkably good, and guests represent a much wider area than Belfast and its neighbourhood. Parties are coming from Portrush, Coleraine, Ballymoney, Lisburn, Bangor, Ballyclare, and, I expect, from many other places at a distance. It is hoped that this society function will interest a yet wider circle of supporters of Barnardo's.

Lady Turner.

The President of the Barnardo Fund in Ulster is Lady Turner. A more conscientious president is not to be found anywhere. All through her busy years as Lady Mayoress she had time for Barnardo's; she never relaxed during her years of mourning. Lady Turner is coming out lately a little more than she did, and I am glad to know that the first ball she will attend since her bereavement will be the first Barnardo's Ball.

Miss Montgomery is to receive the gifts at the annual Pound Day in Templemore Avenue Hospital on Thursday next. In view of her personal service as hospital nurse and matron, quite apart from her service to the hospital in raising funds at the recent Hospitals Week at the Empire the choice of leading lady is an admirable one. There will be a sale of Christmas gifts at the hospital also.

The Dixon Nurses' Home.

I am reminded of another hospital I visited this week—the Benn; to be more accurate, the new Nurses' Home. The Dixon Home is emphatically a princely gift. In saying so I do not refer to the fact that the house is handed over ready for occupation.

The "institutional" touch has been eliminated. Take the bedrooms, for example—not two, I believe, are alike. One is furnished in dark blue, another in a lighter shade of blue, there is a pink room, a pink and gold room, here is plain upholstery and next door it is patterned.

It would have been so easy to order the furnishing of the house en masse—but that is not Lady Dixon's way of doing things. Every bedroom in the house has not merely its power plugs but its own electric stove. Downstairs the old kitchen has been transformed into a small laundry at the disposal of the nurses. That is no less appreciated than the new piano in the sitting-room.

A Career.

I was glad to hear of Miss Nancy Kinghan's appointment as secretary of the Ulster Women's Unionist Council. That pleasure was not merely on Miss Kinghan's account; it is encouragement to all Ulster girls who take their professional work seriously, and it shows there are openings in this comparatively new vocation for educated girls.

Please note that Miss Kinghan did not just "step into" this post; she qualified for it. She was associated in a voluntary capacity first with the Holywood, then with the Strandtown Branch of the Women's Unionist Council, and took some training at the school run by the Council here.

Then she went to England for more comprehensive training. She was a Student at the Bonar Law School at Ashridge, and has her certificate from the Central Conservative Office as a qualified woman organiser. Her practical experience in England was as assistant organiser in Kensington, Buckinghamshire, and Manchester, and for the past year as organising secretary to the East and West divisions of the Birkenhead Conservative Association.

Miss Kinghan, therefore, comes back to her native Ulster with first-hand knowledge of conditions and of the trend of thought in many parts of England. A girl who enjoys her golf and tennis as well as her work, she is a niece of Lady M'Connell.

Embroidery for the little ones

PRINCESS BEATRIX.

Although Princess Juliana has now practically recovered from her recent illness she still has to exercise great care, especially in the present autumn weather conditions. She and her husband, Prince Bernhard, are now residing at the Het Loo Palace, enjoying a rest in the company of Queen Wilhelmina and the nearly nine-months-old baby Princess, who is growing fast. Princess Beatrix has a normal weight, has just cut two teeth, and is making an attempt to talk. Her parents call her "Trixie."

Prince Bernhard has already made numerous films of his little daughter, and in the Soestdiimk Palace these have been shown to guests and members of the staff. Princess Beatrix takes the air in the large park behind the palace.

YOU CAN AFFORD BEAUTY

You Can Afford to be Beautiful.

"I CAN'T afford to be beautiful," is the cry of so many women who write to me, that this week I am going to tell you as much as I can about beauty that doesn't cost much.

We must not forget that, although nowadays a woman can spend literally hundreds of pounds on her appearance, this hasn't always been so, and yet lovely women have never been wanting. So there must be certain rules which can be followed by everyone without a great outlay.

Three Great Beautifiers.

I don't suppose I need tell you that beauty first of all depends on health, and that that is secured by three all-important things—sensible diet, fresh air and exercise. For most women, regulation of diet need only mean cutting out most pastries and sweets, very rich foods and alcohol, and eating plenty of fruit, salads and vegetables. The other two are not so easy to manage, especially for working women, but they should really never be neglected, and any trouble you take to attain them will be most amply rewarded. Another very vital thing is to keep the skin perfectly clean, and here, I think, the old-fashioned maxim of plenty of good soap and water cannot be bettered. If, however, this makes your skin rough, apply a layer of cold cream before washing and pat in a little skin-food afterwards.

How to Economise.

I called on a friend the other day and found her having a grand overhaul of her cosmetics. She was in despair and I really didn't wonder. Standing on her dressing table were nine lipsticks (all, she declared, of the wrong colour), seven half-empty pots of skin-food, an enormous box of sun-tan powder (hardly touched), a bottle of liquid foundation which, after one trial, she had found didn't suit her skin, and a whole heap of hair curlers of various kinds which she had changed every time she altered her hair style. The poor darling had wasted no end of money with scarcely any result, so I decided at once that economy was essential to all those who would be beautiful.

Nearly all makers of lipsticks provide a colour chart from which it isn't difficult to choose the exact shade for your own type; most creams and skin-foods have sample sizes which can be tried out before a larger quantity is bought. Then, unless one is going off for a good toasting in the South of France, or something like that, sun-tan make-up is never needed for very long—therefore invest always in as small amount as possible. Anyone with a skin as dry as that of my friend should know that an astringent foundation is out of the question—and as for hair curlers, whatever coiffure you indulge in, the same combs and pins can usually be used. It just needs a little thought beforehand, and then so much trouble—and money—can be saved.

Keep Smiling.

By the way, another awfully important point is one's expression. So many otherwise pretty faces are spoilt by a frown, by the mouth turning down at the corners, or—worst of all—by a completely blank look! So be cheerful, be good humoured and be interested in the things that are going on around you, and you may be sure that your beauty will benefit.

London Diary of an Ulsterwoman

THE opening of Parliament and the Lord Mayor's Show are two of the most brilliant pieces of pageantry London has to offer a visitor. The crowds are irresistibly drawn to both, and, even the traffic seems unconscionably held up, and appointments cannot possibly be kept, the general air of good humour, the feeling that here is a free piece of entertainment, and one which no other city in the world can offer, gives to the Metropolis an atmosphere of a gala day, something to make one forget the weather, the international situation, and everything unpleasant.

A Dress Parade.

The ceremony at Westminster was something in the nature of a dress parade. The frocks were gayer than they had been for some years, and some magnificent jewels were worn. The Queen chose a rich white satin gown embroidered with tiny crystals on the corsage, the skirt panels and at the waist. She wore the blue ribbon of the Garter, and a necklace of diamonds. The Marchioness of Dufferin was one of the few Ulster peeresses present. Her frock of black velvet was worn with a short blue fox cape, and she wore her diamond and pearl tiara of shamrock design.

The Marchioness of Londonderry, who is at present in the North of England, lent her Park Lane home this week for a choral recital given by Nadia Boulanger's singers. The concert attracted a large number interested in Anglo-French art and music, amongst them being the French Ambassador, Lady Chamberlain, and the Comtesse Jean de Polignac, who struck a fashion note with her white dress, which had a bright red sash and a scarf that formed itself into sleeves. The magnificent rooms in Londonderry House were a perfect setting for lovely frocks and jewels. Lady Londonderry is giving a sherry party later in the month in connection with the production of "Intervention," a drama of the French Revolution, which is being staged on behalf of funds for carrying on the work of the Conservative Party in the poorer constituencies of London. The play is by Phoebe Merion Rees, and its performance by a cast of amateurs in London is its first production. Lord Londonderry, who is also in the North of England at present, is to preside at a luncheon on November 29, given in honour of one of the most interesting women of our day, Lady Alexander, whose husband was a famous actor-manager in the Victorian and Edwardian days.

A Christening.

I hear that the baby son of Lady Mabel and Mr. Brooke will be christened in December. Lady Mabel is a daughter of the Earl and Countess of Roden. Her son was born on October 23. Her wedding to Sir Richard Brooke's only son was one of the social events of last year.

The intention of the Ulster Agent's office to initiate a monthly tea party meeting of Ulster people in London is a good idea. While many people find they cannot afford to spend a couple of hours during the day at a lunch they can often manage a half hour or hour in the afternoon. A lunch, too, necessitates as a rule a guest's remaining until the end of all the speeches; at a tea party he can wander in and out when he will. Lady Cooke-Collis, I gather, will be hostess at the parties, and Ulster people will find in her one very sympathetic to their interests.

I went along to the offices of the Women's Voluntary Services for A.R.P. the other day. There is a tremendous amount of activity going on, and I was informed by one of the voluntary workers that 60 women's organisations are affiliated to it, including societies like the Girl Guides, the Red Cross, the G.F.S., the Personal Service League, all of which have branches in Northern Ireland.

The response for workers has been very gratifying, and compares favourably with that given by men. I asked what was being done about Northern Ireland, and was told that for the present anyway the organisation was concentrating on England where, naturally, the need is greatest. At present there are 13 regional organisers, and probably in time the activities will be extended to Ireland. The woman behind the scheme here is the Dowager Marchioness of Reading, who from all accounts puts in a tremendous amount of work, not only in headquarters, but in touring the country. Prior to her marriage she was secretary to Lord Reading, and brings to her work the trained mind of a business woman.

Good Plays.

It has often been said that plays which will "go down" in London would not "go down" in the provinces, that the provinces need something with more meat than the sophisticated Londoner. I don't think this is quite true, and that there is a demand for serious plays in the Metropolis is shown by the large audiences now attending the classical season at the Phœnix Theatre where "The White Guard," a Russian play, is staged. Here M. St. Denis intends to stage plays by Chekov, Moliere, and Ibsen, though he will lighten the fare at Christmas by putting on "Twelfth Night." Ulster visitors who appreciate fine plays finely performed should visit the Phœnix during the season. Another play they ought to try and see is "The Flashing Stream" by Charles Morgan.

PATIENT WHO UPSET HIS DENTIST.

THRILLS OF OPERATIONS.

SCENES IN NURSING HOME.

Amazing behaviour on the part of a patient under an anæsthetic is described by Mr. James L. O. Tilley, a dentist, writing in "The Lancet."

This patient, who was aged 63, and of pleasant and cheerful disposition, underwent several minor dental operations—in which various forms of anæsthetics were administered. This is what happened!.

In the first operation the patient put his feet through the window of the surgery.

In the second, no operation could be performed as the patient found himself on the floor.

In the third he bit through the watch-chain of the anæsthetist, who declined to administer a second anæsthetic!

In the fourth operation he broke the harness made to hold him on the operating table, and

In the fifth the dentist was confined to bed for four days to recover from injuries received.

FOUR MALE NURSES.

"Before I operated," writes the dentist, "I was given the most insistent warning about his behaviour, and advised for my own benefit to verify and investigate his past history and his reactions to anæsthetics. This I did, with the result that I engaged four strong male nurses!

On June 29, I operated at a nursing home and at 8.30 a.m., the operation over, the patient was peacefully lying in bed.

"At nine a.m. he started throwing himself about, and gradually became more and more violent. He struggled and fought with the four male nurses, and attempted to bite anyone or anything, at the same time making incoherent noises.

"The only possible way to keep him on the bed was to pass folded sheets over his chest and thighs and round the bed rails for one and a half hours, during which time the assistants exercised the greatest vigilance.

"At about 1.15 p.m. the patient asked for a chop, which he ate with avidity, and seemed to be as physically fit as on the previous day, with no signs of exhaustion or fatigue.

"DEMONIACAL."

"On August 31 I had to extract more teeth and only evipan was administered. The same convulsive and violent reactions followed, which might aptly be described as 'demoniacal.' It is my own and the anæsthetist's considered opinion that the patient's abnormal behaviour cannot be attributed to a neurotic disposition or to exhibitionism, as he actually did painful things to himself."

U.S. FILMS IN ITALY.

FOUR COMPANIES TO CLOSE DOWN.

ROME, Friday.—It is announced that the so-called big four American film companies, namely, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, Fox, Paramount, and Warner Brothers, will close their agencies in Italy, where they will send no more films after this month, wires the "Daily Telegraph and Morning Post" correspondent.

Commenting on their action, motived by the institution of a State monopoly for the importation and distribution of foreign films in Italy, the "Giornale d'Italia" explains that the object of the monopoly is to limit the expenditure of money in foreign countries and, therefore, it is justified by the campaign for self-sufficiency.

It then goes on to say that, after all, American films poison the minds of Italians who now fully realise the importance attached to gangsters in the great democracy across the Ocean, and it is much better for them not to have more American films.

Hunting and Fishing are the Two Best Sports in the World

OFF TO THE HUNT

"I have broken every bone of my body in the hunting field"

HAVING broken every bone in my body in the hunting field, you may imagine with what sympathy I read that Lady Daresbury had suffered such a terrible injury as breaking her pelvis. We are infinitely relieved to see by the bulletins that she is going on as well as can be expected.

Now the commonest phrase used to describe a riding accident is that "she was thrown from her horse."

How is this feat performed? You can either fall off your horse, or your horse can fall on his head; but, except in circuses, the horse is not made that can throw you off. This phrase, however, was not used in a paragraph I read describing the accident to Lady Daresbury and one to her sister, Mrs. Arthur Baillie, with the same pack thirteen years ago.

They are the daughters of a very old and dear friend of mine, Joe Laycock. I am told that they are magnificent horsewomen

I can well believe this, as both their mother and their father in my day rode at the top of the hunt.

What amused me was when I read that the first day Mrs. Arthur Baillie, who was then Miss Rosemary Laycock, was allowed by her doctors to mount a horse "she headed strongly for a five-barred gate"—an uncommon feat for a convalescent. Later that "she was the only rider to stay the course in a 35-mile run with the Belvoir, a year after her accident."

MY EARLIEST AMBITION

HAS there ever been a 35-mile run except in a novel—possibly by Ouida, Disraeli, or Marie Corelli? I am certain that I am slandering them if I suggest that they ever wrote of such an extravagance. Something gives way in runs of even a shorter distance—the riders, the horses, the hounds, or the fox.

The earliest ambition of my life was to hunt in the Shires, and when I was invited by the late Lord Manners—who was the first gentleman rider to win the Grand National on his own horse, Seaman—to stay with him in the Quorn country my excitement knew no bounds.

I had only one hunter, which I had bought from George Lambton, but I was told that I could get first-rate hirelings from dealers in Melton, or Sam Hames of Leicester, one of the finest riders I ever saw. I also had a few hunting admirers—the late Lord Dudley, the Master of the Meath in Ireland, and Lord Battersea's brother, Peter Flower. So I had high hopes of having more than one horse to ride.

The hunter I bought from George Lambton was called Pickwell, and so attenuated that my friends talked of it as "the tea-leaf." Nevertheless, it could pass most horses in a big enclosure, and was a magnificent performer.

You could not have roped it down, and, if ever there had been a run of 35 miles, Pickwell would have passed Miss Rosemary Laycock; not because of my superior horsemanship but because of the horse's courage and staying power.

"EVERY SPORT IS CRUEL"

MY invitation to stay with Lord Manners for 10 days extended itself, and I remained at his lovely hunting-box, Cold Overton, for 21 years. He and his wife became my most devoted friends; and their daughter, Betty Manners, married my beloved stepson, General Arthur Asquith, who lost his leg in the war.

To my thinking the two finest sports in the world are fox-hunting and salmon-fishing. Every sport is cruel, but if you did away with fox-hunting you would impoverish a great many people. Less hay, less corn, and less straw would be sold; fewer houses would be hired, and fewer horses would be bred.

It is the death of one animal to the pleasure and prowess of thousands of men and women who are only too anxious to pay farmers for any damage done to their property.

I can truly say that after my home Glen, and Archerfield, where I learnt to play golf, the happiest years of my life were spent when I was staying with Lord Manners, Lord Spencer, Lord Cholmondeley; and in the Badminton country, where my sister Lucy (Mrs. Graham Smith) and her neighbour, the Duke of Beaufort, lived.

MY FIRST CHEQUE

WHEN I came out in London Society my father thought that my sister and I ought to have an allowance for our clothes, so that we might learn the value of money, and he gave us a cheque-book. After a great deal of discussion he and my mother came to the conclusion that £200 a year would be sufficient for our expenses, and that they would pay for all our railway fares. We felt very proud of this new responsibility.

Loving hunting better than anything, and depending upon other people entirely for a mount, I determined that I would buy a horse of my own, and when I saw Pickwell passing the whole field like a swallow, with a little head which you could have put in a pint pot, long shoulders, loose elbows, and a short back, I signed my first cheque for £150.

My father was not angry, but my mother was. My cheque-book was taken away from me, and I am thankful to say that from that day to this I have never learnt the value of money. We all enjoy what we do well in life; and, had I been able to speak in the House of Commons as well as I rode in the hunting-field, I would have been a Prime Minister.

AT A FILM FIRST NIGHT

I WENT to the first night of the spectacular film "Marie Antoinette," which brings back, to the delight of the public, the beautiful Norma Shearer after a long absence from the screen. I do not think she has appeared since she played in "Romeo and Juliet,' as she went into complete retirement after her husband, Irving Thalberg, died. There is something about Norma Shearer, apart from her beauty, that attracts me.

I know a great many actresses, and several film stars, but I have never met Norma Shearer; therefore I am not in a position to judge of her private character. Beauty is always misleading. I have seen women of virginal appearance who had hearts of stone, and others of my sex who had no looks but who were angels of kindness.

Nevertheless, I will make a guess; if Norma Shearer's looks are indicative of her nature, I think she must have a sweet and charming character.

Costume films have a certain sameness and should never be produced in America, as, though they may be historically accurate, they lack distinction. The Court curtseys are too low, and the American accent does not suit tragic situations, more particularly when they cannot pronounce words as simple as "Madame" and "Louis."

COST £500,000

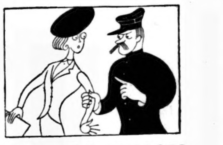
"ME-DAMN" and "LUEY" did not convince me that the producers had studied the French language; and though Norma Shearer is as beautiful as ever, she skips about in a snack-bar fashion which did not suggest either youth or breeding.

The libretto is thin. "Are you feeling badly?" "So you never really loved me!" and other common-places destroy situations which might otherwise have been moving. Nor is the ill-fated flight to Varennes well produced. Was Count Axel Fersen Marie Antoinette's lover? If not, why not?

With the exception of one remarkable actor, none of the players in this film is convincing; they are studio figures in magnificent surroundings. I am told that the production cost £500,000.

Were it not for Robert Morley, who plays the part of Louis XVI. with gravity, consistency, and pathos from first to last, I would not have felt much interest in "Marie Antoinette."

Yet what a wonderful opportunity missed! The tragedy of a lovely girl of 15 married to the heir of the French Throne, which led to a Revolution that staggered the world, should contain elements to make the fortune of any film producer, but I doubt if this one will.



YOUR LIPS, PLEASE!

IN several countries, they say, the question of taxing painted lips has been raised. Fancy the plight of the poor inspectors! What a problem for them when they meet a really smart woman who's using GUITARE! For it is well known that GUITARE brings out the natural beauty of the lips, gives them "that" youthful appearance — but never that painted look . . . . ! GUITARE, in 14 lovely glowing, transparent shades, is "Indelible, Natural, Traceless"—and it lasts all day long whatever you may do; even kisses do not spoil it nor will they leave tell-tale traces. Try GUITARE to-day. You will be enchanted. It is sold everywhere. De luxe model 4/6; Standard size 2/-; Refills 3/-, 1/3. Trial size (enough for a month), 6d.

FISHING BOAT EXPLOSION.

LATER DESTROYED BY FIRE.

An explosion aboard the motor fishing boat Utility, of Portknockie, on Friday night, caused the total loss of the boat.

The crew had returned from the day's white fishing and moored the boat in Portknockie Harbour. After the crew had gone home the explosion occurred and the fire followed.

The blaze was so fierce that it endangered other boats in the harbour until the Utility was drawn clear to burn itself out.

THE WORLD'S NEED.

THE proposal for an assembly of representatives of all the Great Powers of the world to discuss the present international situation and seek to devise some means of securing peace, made by Mr. Lloyd George in an address given on Friday evening, is one with which, in theory, all will sympathise. When it comes to carrying the plan into effect, however, the obstacles in the way of securing satisfactory results become only too apparent. In what we may now look upon as the "palmy days" of the League of Nations, during the third decade of this century, before Japan and Italy had broken away, and when Germany had for the time being been brought into the fold, many people entertained roseate visions of a permanent system of international unification. M. Briand boldly suggested the creation of "United States of Europe," which would, to parody a famous utterance, call the Old World into a new form of existence which would redress the balance as against the New. The Locarno Agreement aroused great hopes, and so did the Kellogg Pact, which was intended to make war impossible in the future. Unhappily, the events have shown that the Governments of powerful nations will not hesitate to break treaties when they appear to be obstacles to carrying out their ambitious designs or else to evade them by subtle devices such as entering on hostilities without an actual declaration of war. The atmosphere of mistrust in the international sphere has grown denser in recent years, and there is a tendency to cynical disbelief in the pledges given by Governments.

Mr. Lloyd George spoke of the difficulty of finding anyone who would take upon himself the responsibility of launching a project for the calling of an international conference of the kind which he has in view. The circumstances, in fact, do not appear propitious for it unless a new feeling of mutual trust and confidence in the future can be created. The question of the economic relations of the various countries, separated as they are by tariffs and prohibitions, as well as by exchange difficulties, is an urgent one, yet the conference of 1933 did not bear the anticipated fruit, and the scheme of M. van Zeeland, the Belgian expert, for providing a solution has not met with success. The hostility existing between countries under different forms of government is in itself a formidable barrier to the holding of a successful conference. Germany and Italy have declared their unconquerable aversion to participating in such a meeting with Russia, and their own standpoint in many respects would be at variance from that taken by Britain, France, and the United States. Yet all these countries without exception must work together to obtain a satisfactory agreement upon vital questions now confronting the world such as the future of the former German colonies and the position of minorities in some European countries. The present situation of large numbers of people of Jewish race, for example, in Germany and Poland can only be described as a reproach to the progress of modern civilisation. It could best be dealt with by the co-operation of all the nations concerned upon vast schemes of migration like the exchange of population between Greece and Turkey some years ago, but on a still larger scale. In view of the great advance made in transport of late years, this should not be impossible, but the joint action of nations for the purpose has not yet been even discussed. The limitation of armaments, again, is a matter of the greatest urgency for all nations. Yet the failure of the protracted conference on the subject is not calculated to encourage further international efforts to attain this very desirable end. It must be admitted, therefore, that the prospects of the scheme advocated by the ex-Premier are by no means bright at the moment, unless some sudden change takes place in the situation.

TO-DAY'S QUOTATION:

CARADOC EVANS says:—

Wise men employ quotations for the backing of beliefs which they do not hold and by which they have no desire to be guided, knowing that the road to ruin is littered with such phrases as "Laugh and the world laughs with you, weep and you weep alone"—"It's a long lane that has no turning," etc.

The sayings that enliven us in our daily task and help us to overcome our neighbour, are known only to ourselves, and they are not to our credit.

Among others, I find comfort in the following:

Atheist and Christian are after the same thing, but the atheist calls it gold and the Christian calls it God.

Bun-na-Mairgie Friary Ruins, near Ballycastle. The probable date of its erection is the year 1500.

The PAPERS in the OLD OAK CHEST

HUGH ALEXANDER BOYD tells the story of the 14th century manuscripts found in the ancient Bun-na-Mairgie Friary, Ballycastle

BUN-NA-MAIRGIE Friary, which is situated close to the town of Ballycastle, in the parish of Culfeightrin, was a Franciscan foundation of the third order, or Tertiaries. The Tertiary branch of the Franciscans was founded in 1220, or a decade after the confirmation of the foundation of the order proper by Pope Innocent III.

The Tertiaries were in the main an order of lay teachers and preachers and had generally one or more ordained clerical members in most of their houses.

The probable date of the erection of Bun-na-Mairgie is the year 1500. A manuscript list of the Irish Franciscan foundations, preserved in the British Museum states that Bun-na-Mairgie in the Route was founded in that year by Rory M'Quillan, Lord of the Route. Having regard to certain architectural features of the ruin, this date may be considered as both reliable and authentic. Archdall, in his "Monasticon Hibernicum," and on the authority of Sir James Ware, says that "Bun-na-Mairgie was built for the Franciscan Friars of the third order in the fifteenth century.

If foundations such as Bun-na-Mairgie consisted of lay teachers and preachers, together with one or more clerical members, it is reasonable to suppose that it was to one of such clerics belonged the four manuscripts found in Bun-na-Mairgie in 1821 or 1822 in an old oaken chest.

This chest was discovered while repairs were being made in the apartment—a kind of mortuary chapel—above the Antrim vault. The manuscripts were in a state of good preservation and the "Gentleman's Magazine" for August 1822, describing one of them states:—"It is certainly the finest specimen of penmanship we have ever seen, and the ink is superior in brilliancy and intenseness of colour to any at present manufactured in Europe."

THE manuscript contained a large portion of one of the principal theological works of Saint Thomas Aquinas, written on vellum, in very contracted Latin, and extending to about 600 quarto pages. The earliest date appearing on it is 1338, and the latest 1380. In the interval between these years it was probably written by two or three copyists.

It originally belonged (says Hill) to the Monastery of St. Anthony of Amiens, in France, but when or how it came into the possession of the Friars of Bun-na-Mairgie are secrets never likely to be explained. The manuscript was exhibited before the Belfast Natural History and Philosophical Society in 1852, on which occasion the excellent state of its preservation was commented on.

It must be remembered, however, that the four manuscripts had been placed carefully in an oaken chest or box, which, in its turn, was left in a dry room, enclosed all around with thick walls. The present whereabouts of this manuscript is unknown, further than that it was preserved by a certain Mrs. Fletcher, of Belmont, near Carrickfergus.

THE second of the four manuscripts passed into the possession of Miss Boyd, daughter of Mr. Ezekiel Davys Boyd, of Ballycastle, and relative of the present Miss Boyd, of the Manor House, Ballycastle. This manuscript, although not so large nor so beautifully written as the one already referred to, was perhaps more interesting in other respects.

It consisted of an English translation of portions of Saint Bonaventura's "Life of Christ," made not later than the fourteenth or fifteenth century. The translation was written on vellum in a free, fine hand and covered 35 quarto pages, the thirtysixth being blank, in double columns.

The capital letters at the beginning of each section were in gold, surrounded with flowers, whose colours were nearly as bright as at the first. Some prayers, hymns, etc., were written in red and were afterwards given in English. The manuscript was written uniformly throughout in one hand, except the last four lines, which appear to have been added subsequently by two different persons, by the latter of whom the manuscript is styled "The History of the Blessed Scriptures," and the name "George Theaker" subscribed.

It is highly probable that this tract was one of a series designed to embody and illustrate the events of the New Testament.

Theaker's note representing it as "A History of the Blessed Scriptures" may mean that he, as editor or translator, may have desired to exhibit on each part the general title of the whole work. When it is remembered that St. Bonaventura, who was born in 1221, became a Franciscan monk in 1243 and was subsequently created Cardinal-Bishop of Alba in 1274 and died at Lyons during the sitting of the Council, on July 15, 1274, aged 53, it is natural to assume that his works should have been held in estimation in a Franciscan foundation like Bun-na-Mairgie.

Some curious legends and traditions are interwoven in the manuscript, such as an account of the origin and growth of the tree from which the Cross was made, the recovery of his sight by the soldier who pierced Our Lord's side. Throughout the tract Bonaventura makes certain appropriate quotations from the writings of Saints Augustine and Gregory.

☆

ON page four there is this commentary from the writings of St. Augustine on a portion of the Gospel narrative:—

"Our Lord wolde not telle ho that shulde betray hym, for, as Seynt Augustyn saith, gif Peter hadde guyst which he hadde ybeen, he wolde have dasshed hym yn the teeth."

At page 28 the author quotes thus from the same father:—

"A great and a hig solemnfou feeste ys the resurreccion of our Lorde Jesus, as wel for hymsylf as for us, for he, as a glouriss conqueror, apperede thanne, and we thereby juistifyed and made ryghtful. And this is a wel worshipful day whiche oure Lord made! for after Seynt Austin, in a sermon that he made—This day is holyere than alle the others." There are certain curious references to the several appearances of our Lord after He had arisen from the dead. According to legendary authority He appeared fourteen times. But whilst Bonaventura embodies this legend in his tract and evidently believes in its truth he is careful to guard his readers against the conclusion that all these appearances are recorded in the New Testament.

THERE was thus no intention of imposing this narrative on the readers or hearers of it as the genuine Scriptures of the Gospel.

On the twenty-sixth page he states the authorities on which the belief of the early church rested in reference to this most interesting point:—"Neverthelates ye shull understonde," he says, "that in the Gospel beeth but ten apperynges." This manuscript may have been used as a lectionary in Bun-na-Mairgie, though it would not appear that the words "hora vesperarum," and "hora completorium," which occur in red letters on pages 17 and 18, were intended to indicate the portions to be read at those hours.

They rather seem to have reference to the passages in the narrative which they follow, the first occurring after the death of our Lord and the other where it is related that as night came on His body was taken down from the Cross. With the exception of the first page, where the writing has been partially obliterated by damp, "the manuscript," says Mr. J. Huband Smith (who exhibited it to a meeting of the Royal Irish Academy held on April 9, 1850), "is in a perfect condition and must be regarded as a most interesting specimen of the grammatical construction and spelling of the language at the time it was written, as well as of the pictorial and caligraphic skill of a monastic scribe."

Of the two remaining manuscripts found in the oaken chest at Bun-na-Mairgie, nothing can be said. It has never been found possible to discover how or where they have been disposed. Nor are the present whereabouts known of the two manuscripts described above.

HILL is of the opinion that it was unlikely that a period of more than ninety or perhaps a hundred years elapsed from the time the manuscripts were left in Bun-na-Mairgie until the date of their discovery in 1821 or 1822. Bun-na-Mairgie, being situated in a remote part of the kingdom, did not immediately experience the evil effects of the dissolution of the religious houses under Henry VIII. and as a general rule, wherever the landowners continued to adhere to the old faith, the brethren were permitted to cling to their decaying establishments until they grew wearied and went away of themselves.

It is a well known fact that the friars appear to have left Bun-na-Mairgie in the early part of the eighteenth century. The move was significant when taken in connection with the fact that the first Protestant Earl of Antrim (Alexander, fifth Earl) then held the estates—and Bun-na-Mairgie was the family burying place.

The Earl in question came of age in 1734 and the late Dr. Reeves informed Mr. Smith that some stunted cherry trees at the place where the friars resided at Ardagh, in Glenshesk, and called Friary, still mark the site of their abode and that the tradition of their residence was distinct in that neighbourhood.

If Ye Break Faith

Thoughts for the Times
By
Dr. A. D. Belden

TO those who remember the unspeakable relief which flooded all hearts on November the 11th, 1918, when the Armistice was signed, it has been heart-breaking to discover ourselves living through another war-crisis twenty years afterwards.

We remember too well those eager cries of "Never again! Never again!" I have just been reading afresh the story, as told by Sir Philip Gibbs in "Across the Frontiers," of the Disarmament Conference of 1931, and the shabby part played in it by the representatives of the French and British Governments.

Sir Philip reminds us of the mighty tide of public opinion which poured in upon Geneva from all over the world, showing so unmistakably the yearning of the common people of every continent for a world without arms—and the way in which all that eager desire of multitudes was insolently ignored.

* * *

One wonders what the great Army of the Dead, in their new and larger Life, thought of that betrayal of their sacrifice. We have the poet's pledge—

"If ye break faith with us who die
We shall not sleep,
Though poppies grow in Flanders fields!"

They died the foul death of those battle-fields with the great hope surging in their brave hearts that by their death it would become impossible for their sons, or their son's sons, to meet so untimely a fate.

It seems almost incredible that these modern millions can stand in silent tribute to the memory of such men and not register in their hearts an iron determination to make the will-to-peace of the masses of the world respected by its Governments.

* * *

Is there anything more ridiculous in the annals of statesmanship than the speeches recently levelled at each other by Hitler and Churchill, in which they make exactly the same accusations of war-mongering against one another, and in which each asserts his perfect desire for peace? If the leaders of the peoples, as well as the peoples themselves, all desire peace—if these mutual defences and assertions are true, why in the world cannot there be a general disarmament of all the nations and a return to sane existence?

The Christian belief is that these men of the Great War are not dead but living. They are capable of calling us to account at last, one by one, if we do not keep faith with them. There must be so many of us sharing, however unintelligently, that beautiful Christian hope. One day we shall look again into those brave eyes and in them find approval or scorn.

For the real believer this is no mere sentiment nor is it an appeal to fear. It is an appeal to our honour and our sense of decency, and should be one of the mainsprings of our activity for peace.

* * *

Very specially should it be a condemnation of the obsolete idea that peace can ever come by war or by preparation for war. These men died to end any such method. We may occasionally secure Pause that way, but not Peace.

To imagine that we can successfully organise a greater world war but cannot organise world peace, is to imagine nonsense. The latter is infinitely the easier task, given the determination.

Dr. L. P. Jacks, of Oxford, in a brilliant book called "Co-operation or Coercion," issued recently by the Peace Book Club, presents a powerful argument for the by-passing of the whole armaments situation by means of a new policy of earnest economic co-operation.

He claims that the nations have brooded upon war so long that they have become obsessed by a fear-complex and tend to behave like a panic-stricken crowd. Any reputable psychologist, if it were a case of the individual, would recommend as a remedy some powerful diversion.

Dr. Jacks sees that diversion in a new coming together of the nations for mutual economic succour and co-operation. He points out that war-machinery and economic-machinery are now so closely linked together that if we can get a peace-purpose into the one we can more and more absorb the energy and the resources of the other, and so the colossal waste into which we are all plunging would be replaced by a new movement towards prosperity.

Such a fresh proposal shows that peace-making is by no means as bankrupt as many are feeling it to be. "Hope springs eternal in the human breast," and we shall yet keep faith with those who "sleep in Flanders fields" but who, nevertheless, are alive and await our coming with judgment in their eyes.

FROM MILL, FACTORY, AND SHIPYARD HAVE COME ULSTER'S WORKINGMEN POETS

by Thomas Carnduff

THERE seems, at the present time, to be a revival in art and literature passing over Belfast and the north-eastern counties of Ireland which has probably never been paralleled in this part of the country before. Poets and painters, essayists and novelists are equalling, if not surpassing, any period in which the Province has risen high in the finer arts.

Studying the literature of Ulster from the end of the eighteenth century up to the present day, it is wonderful to realise the large numbers of working-men who have contributed not a little towards that branch of literature which is held by scholars to be "the art of expressing in melodious words the thoughts which are the creations of feeling and imagination—poetry."

* * *

WEAVING, which has been the most important industry in Ulster for centuries, has supplied the majority of our working-men poets, but we have others from the plough, the factory, the mill, shipyard, and not a few ordinary labourers.

Jimmie Hope, the Templepatrick weaver and United Irishman, was probably the first Ulster working-man to reveal himself as a poet. After a strenuous political life full of adventure and not a little hardship, Hope settled in Peter's Hill, Belfast.

About the same time a farm labourer, Andrew Mackensie, was evicted from his home near Ballywalter, and with his wife and seven children tramped the odd 17 miles to Belfast to find a refuge in the same district. With the assistance of many prominent inhabitants of the town he published a collection of songs and poems in 1810. A Belfast policeman, Benjamen Lyness, printed a volume of poems in that town about 1842, which was entitled "Orange and Love Poems." Not a bad combination!

Another Belfastman of the labouring class, Edward Sloan, published, with the assistance of a member of the Sharman-Crawford family, "A Bard's Offerings," in 1854, the year of the Crimean War. Take these lines from "What is War?" as an example of a labouring man's inspiring pen over 80 years ago:—

"'Tis the parent of taxation,
Fleecing every thriving nation—
Blasting commerce—ruination
In its track. . . ."

A Belfast linenlapper, John Close, who, I believe, worked in Ewart's factory, produced "Echoes of the Valley," in 1879. Some 30 years later another millworker, Adam Lynn, issued a volume of poems in Antrim dialect. In 1924 a Belfast Trade Union official, Harry Midgley, issued "Thoughts From Flanders," mostly war poems.

* * *

LET us come back to the provincial towns and countryside and see what talent we have to record there. One of our earliest weaver poets was James Orr, of Ballycarry. Orr was a United Irishman who fought under M'Cracken at the battle of Antrim. After the defeat of the rebels he escaped to America, but returned some years later to settle at his trade in his home town.

Orr's poems were published in 1804, and his death took place in 1816 at the age of 48 James Campbell, another weaver and United Irishman, whose poetry influenced the working-class movement, lived in the town of Larne, a few miles away. Yet another weaver, this time from Moneyslan, County Down published a collection of poems in book form in 1812, the verse being mostly in dialect.

This poet, Hugh Porter, was handicapped by ill-health from childhood, and but for the encouragement given him by several County Down gentlemen would probably never have been heard of as a poet

From Glenwherry, County Antrim, comes Thomas Beggs, who has no less than six volumes of verse to his credit. He wrote much of his verse in dialect, and referring to this in the preface of one of his volumes, he says:—

". . . Should the readers of the following effusions suppose that in some parts the author has imitated the Scottish dialect—he would wish to correct this idea. . . . it is the language of his native glen."

In those days our fathers were proud of their Ulster speech. Beggs died in 1847 at Ballyclare.

Ballymena has supplied two working-class poets in the person of David Herbison, a weaver, and David Blair Watson at present serving with the R.U.C. in Belfast.

Herbison, who was born in 1800, left five volumes of verse behind him. Early in life he was afflicted with blindness, but afterwards regained the use of one eye. When 27 he migrated to Canada, being shipwrecked on the voyage, returning to Ballymena three years later to settle down to his trade, where he died at the age of 80 years.

David Watson, his fellow-townsman, has produced two books, one on philosophy, the other in verse. His poems, printed in Belfast, bear the title "Rymes of a Beatman," and contain many impressive lines.

* * *

AT the same time as Herbison was writing there lived on the Falls Road, Belfast, a weaver named Francis Davis, who was the author of no less than six volumes of verse. The most wonderful thing about this working-man's life was, that he managed to obtain a pension of £50 per annum from the Government. For a worker this was a great achievement. Davis died in Belfast in 1885, and was buried in Milltown Cemetery.

A Comber man, Francis Boal, who plied his trade as a carpenter, composed a book of "County Down Poems" as far back as 1812. Two rural workers, Oliver Porter, of Hillsborough, and W. J. Steenson, of Armagh, have some splendid volumes: "Poems," by Porter, printed in London in 1911, and "The Apple Blossom," by Steenson, published in 1923. Porter, who has relatives living in Sandy Row, is, I think, at present in America. Steenson I last heard of as having migrated to England.

Few of these working-men's verses are of the "love-sick" type. There are no fainting ladies calling softly for their disappearing lovers. The love they dwell on is the love of nature, the love of God, the brotherhood of man.

Their poems on life are a true reflection of the lives of the people, and they don't paint their pictures in rainbow colours. They wrote in plain, simple language. The language of the people—easily understood. They were of the people, and they wrote for the people.

London Day By Day

Wimbledon Losing Stars.
Amateur Outlook Uninspiring.

LONDON, Saturday.

Donald Budge.

A PROPER upheaval in international tennis is in prospect as a result of Donald Budge's decision to turn professional.

His step has caused no surprise over here, for Budge made it pretty clear at Wimbledon that he could not afford to spend his whole life as an amateur.

When he next visits this country in March he will be playing in the unfamiliar surroundings of Wembley Pool, though his opponents will be far more worthy of his steel than any he met at Wimbledon this summer.

The L.T.A. have been set a pretty problem, for practically all their "drawing cards" in men's tennis are now professionals, and the all-amateur Wimbledon next year looks likely to be very uninspiring. I, for one, would shed no tears if the present strict "gentlemen and players" rule was dispensed with immediately.

With regard to the Davis Cup the consequences are equally far-reaching. America, the holders, instead of being in an almost unassailable position will, probably, lose their supremacy next year without Budge, who was the dominant factor in their team.

The chances of Australia, runner-up this year, cannot be ignored, for John Bromwich, their young ambidextrous star, shows signs of becoming an outstanding player despite the lack of enthusiasm of the critics.

Even more powerful will be the challenge of Germany, however, if Von Cramm returns, as it is rumoured he will, to amateur tennis.

The Royal Poppies.

BREAKFAST time in the Royal Household on Armistice Day calls for the enactment of a simple little ceremony—the King and Queen and the little Princesses purchase their poppies.

This year Dame Regina Evans called at the Palace at breakfast time. Their Majesties received her, and chose poppies for themselves and Princesses Elizabeth and Margaret.

Afterwards she made a tour of the Palace, selling her poppies to members of the Royal Household and the Royal servants.

Dame Regina Evans, a woman of commanding appearance, has often been likened to Boadicea—certainly she is a tower of strength to any cause she espouses.

Her interests are many, and in addition to politics in Essex and in London, she is senior vice-chairman of the Central Council of the National Union of Conservative and Unionist Associations—she has served extensively on the Executive of the County Red Cross.

She was for many years a Poor-Law Guardian, and now serves on a Public Assistance Committee. The chairmanship of the Child Welfare Clinic, the governorship of a hospital, and work on the women's section of the East Anglian British Legion are among her other activities.

Crisis Anti-Climax.

DESPITE the fears held at one time that owing to the national crisis the Antique Dealers' Fair would prove a failure, it has been so successful that the ground space at Grosvenor House has already been booked for next year.

Antiques to the value of hundreds of thousands of pounds have changed hands since the opening of the fair. Many of the exhibits which have been sold reached the fair only after a series of adventures.

For instance, three life-sized idols, from China were purchased by the dealer's agents and smuggled down river to the rail head wrapped in canvas.

Through the battle area and under heavy shell fire small canoe-like boats were hired to transport the statues, which arrived here more than three months after they had left their resting place of many thousands of years in the heart of China

Now purchased by the more wealthy of us in this country, they repose in the libraries of English country houses, the object of rapt attention by society gatherings.

Boxing Control.

IT will be a bad day for boxing if the New York State Athletic Commission fails to work in conjunction with the British Board of Control in the matter of suspensions.

It is reported from America that the commission are ignoring the Board's suspension of Tommy Farr, and that no restrictions will be placed on Farr fighting in the area under the jurisdiction of the commission.

If this is true a severe blow will be struck at the sport, for control is as necessary in boxing as in football, and the knowledge of such a precedent being established across the Atlantic would certainly weaken the authority of those in charge here, who strictly adhere to suspensions imposed by the New York Commission.

Whether it is the case of Tommy Farr, or of a comparatively unknown, it is, indeed, desirable that the two controlling bodies should have a united voice on such matters.

Poppies at the Palace
Royal Family's Interest.

"Horse and Buggy" Drivers Meet.

DINING together at a London hotel shortly members of the Nineteenth Century Circle of Motorists will recall the days that they fought the opposition to motor-cars in this country when they were first introduced.

The membership of the circle is confined to those motorists who owned or drove a car prior to 1900. Year by year the membership depletes. Soon the circle will die out, but the memory of these great men, to whom it owes its existence, will last.

Charles Jarrot, S. P. Edge, F. R. Sims, Grahame-White, Critchley—these are the men who won the great races, built the famous cars, founded the great motoring organisations, the men who give Mr. Leslie Burgin his greatest headaches.

At the dinner they will remember their experiences of the 19th century, tell their stories of the days when 12 miles an hour was the speed limit, and candle lamps, tiller steering, and solid tyres formed part of the equipment of the latest type of car.

Truly the evening with Sir Max Pemberton, whose knowledge of motoring is incomparable, in the chair should provide a feast of reminiscences,

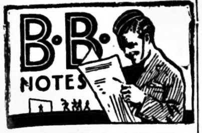
Shaftesbury, A.D. 1035.

After three years of arguments and fighting, Edmund Ironside and Canute of Denmark agreed to divide the kingdom of England between them, but within a few weeks the former died, leaving Canute in undisputed power. This king showed himself an ideal monarch. He married Emma, Ethelred's widow, and divided the country into five provinces, restored law and order and visualised a great northern empire of Denmark, England, and Norway. But his death to-day at the early age of 41, and the succession of his worthless son, Harthacanute, whose principal hobbies are drinking and petty tyranny, cuts short the prospect of the splendid ideals his father had in mind.

Porto Rico, 1595.

Sir John Hawkins, sailor and explorer, died to-day of fever and was buried at sea off here. He was born in 1532, and at the age of 30 sailed with three vessels to Sierra Leone, where he seized 300 natives, shipped them to Hispaniola, and sold them at a splendid profit. The success of this experiment caused him to embark on many similar voyages, though in 1572 he was offered a bribe of £40,000 by the king of Spain to enter his service. Accepting the bribe, he remained loyal to England, and was, in fact, a rear-admiral in command of an English ship against the Armada. Early this year he sailed off again to the Spanish Main, under the command of Drake, but met his untimely end to-day.



THE SERVICES OF REMEMBRANCE

ON SIDE OF PEACE.

STAND TAKEN BY BOYS.

SIX KING'S BADGES PRESENTED.

Throughout the Province and particularly in Belfast, Boys' Brigade buglers are in great demand at the Armistice season. Last Sunday in many churches Last Post and Reveille were sounded. At several works' services yesterday Brigade boys again officiated, and for to-morrow a full programme has been undertaken.

This year's Armistice services have a new significance, in view of the recent crisis. All our thoughts are now turned to peace, and it is particularly fitting that the Boys' Brigade, with its great record of training in Christian principles and its strong stand on the side of peace, should be closely associated with these services.

The Battalion Officers' Luncheon Club had a successful meeting on Monday when those present were free to air their views on revolutionary ideas which might or might not improve the movement. It was an interesting and entertaining meeting, and time was far too short to discuss half the ideas which are apparently simmering in the brains of most officers.

The Attorney-General for Northern Ireland, the Right Hon. E. S. Murphy, K.C., has accepted an invitation to be the guest of honour at the annual club dinner on Friday, November 25. Another special visitor will be Mr. Sammy Walker, captain of Great Britain's South African Rugby team, and an old B.B. boy. Rev. Wm. Chestnutt, M.A., will preside.

The first of the battalion examinations for the season will be the N.C.O.'s proficiency written examination, which will be held in the Cripples' Institutes on Wednesday, November 23.

The Battalion Football League is still going strong, and the first part of the winter's programme is almost finished. Fixtures for next Saturday are as follow:—

Senior—1 v. 3 Br., in Victoria; 43 v. 13, in Dundonald.

Junior "A"—8 v. 78, in Ormeau; 18 v. 2 Br., in Ormeau; 20 v. 66, in Victoria; 41 v. 28, in Musgrave.

Junior "B"—11 v. 58, in Ormeau; 27 v. 19, in Victoria; 45 v. 29, in Musgrave; 68 v. 16, in Falls; 72 v. 38, in Musgrave.

COMPANY NEWS.

The 3rd Belfast Company (Albert Street Presbyterian Church) will hold the Company enrolment service in the church to-morrow evening at 7-0. This will be conducted by the Company Chaplain, Rev. Thomas M'Dermott, B.A. As usual the Church choir, under Mr. James Graham, an ex-officer of the Company, will co-operate in the service. Private Stanley Jamison, 87th Belfast Company, will sing.

The 11th Belfast Company (St. Paul's Parish Church) in common with other parish organisations, paraded on Sunday morning last to the Armistice Service held in the church, when buglers of the company sounded the Last Post and Reveille. The company was also pleased to supply buglers for similar services held in Greenisland Presbyterian Church, Jennymount Methodist Church, and St. Paul's Mission Hall.

The Squad Medal for October has been won by No. 4 Squad (Lc.-Cpl. J. M'Straw) with 98 per cent. attendance, while the individual Efficiency Medal (competed for monthly) resulted in a tie, with full marks, between Corporals Hawe and Moorehead, and Privates Elliott and Reid. Arrangements are now practically complete for the coming-of-age celebrations, the thanksgiving service on November 27, and the reunion.

MISSION WORKER'S VISIT.

The 25th Belfast Company (Cregagh Methodist Church) were pleased to have as a special speaker at last Sunday's Bible class Mrs. Ireland, who is home on a visit from the Soudan Interior Mission. Mrs. Ireland gave a very inspiring address on the work in the Soudan, and referred to the B.B. dispensary erected there to commemorate the work of a captain of the B.B. After the Bible class the company paraded to the enrolment service of the 25th Team of Life Boys. For October the Squad Challenge Cup was tied for by the No. 1 and No. 6 Squads, and for the Individual Challenge medal seven boys tied.

At the 26th Belfast Company (Antrim Road Baptist Church) enrolment service the company paraded five officers, 28 N.C.O.'s and boys, the chaplain, Rev. T. A. Gardiner, M.A., taking the service. The company has now settled down to work.

TROPHIES PRESENTED.

The 29th Belfast Company (Townsend Street Presbyterian Church) are delighted to have on their staff the new assistant minister, Rev. G. Cromey, recently returned from South Africa where he had been on tour with the British Rugby team. The enrolment service in connection with the company was held in the evening before a large congregation, and the address was given by the chaplain, J. W. Johnston. Congratulations have been extended to Corporals J. Murdock, J. Simpson, H. Boyd, E. Pollock, J. Fleming, J. Loughlin on gaining their King's badges. This created a record in the 29th Company, six King's badges in one session.

During the Armistice week buglers from the company assisted at eight different services. The Monday squad competition continues to be keenly contested and No. 5 Squad (Corporal E. Pollock) was successful this month, gaining 95 per cent.

The 33rd Belfast Company (Ballysillan Presbyterian Church) held their annual enrolment on Sunday evening last, Rev. W. P. Hall, M.A. (Greenisland), conducting the service, assisted by Rev. J. Forbes, B.A. Mr. Hall, who was the company's first chaplain, gave a very inspiring address, dealing with the story of David. Officers, non-commissioned officers and boys enrolled numbered 42. There was also a fine parade of Old Boys.

The 66th Belfast Company (Ballynafeigh Methodist Church) held its enrolment service on Sunday last. There was a large turnout of all the youth organisations, the Brownies, Girl Guides and Life Boys and the first parade of the 66th Old Boys attracted considerable attention. The service was conducted by the company chaplain, Rev. W. E. Thompson, and the address was given by Mr. C. F. Beckett, captain 22nd [illegible] Company, who also spoke to the [illegible] at Sunday morning Bible-class. The visit of Mr. Beckett's coincided with the biggest turnout in the company's history, and it is hoped that the [illegible] will continue to increase in numbers and efficiency.

SQUAD COMPETITION.

The 87th Belfast Company (Seaview Presbyterian Church) held their third enrolment service on Sunday evening last. The service was conducted by the chaplain, Rev. Kyle M. Alexander, M.A., who gave an address, taking as his [illegible] the text on the membership [illegible] "Remember now thy Creator in the days of thy youth." Fifty officers, N.C.O.'s and boys were on parade. Pte. Stanley Jamison sang, "Only an armour bearer."

The company are pleased to have the services of Mr. A. Lewis as their choir conductor, and are looking forward to competing in the Belfast musical competitions. The result of the squad competitions for October was announced at the parade on Tuesday evening, the first place being taken by No. 6 Squad with 91 per cent., under Lance-Corporal D. M'Coll, closely followed by No. 4 Squad with 89 per cent., Lance-Corporal D. Pollock.

The 88th Belfast Company (Whiteabbey Presbyterian Church) attended the Armistice service held in Whiteabbey Presbyterian Church on Sunday morning, also the united service held in Whiteabbey Congregational Church at 3-30. The officers are very grateful to Mr. George Armstrong, captain of the 66th Company, for his kindness in sending three buglers to sound the "Last Post" and "Reveille."

DEATH PENALTY.

5-YEAR "EXPERIMENT" PROPOSED.

PARLIAMENT NEXT WEEK.

AMENDMENTS TO ADDRESS.

Parliament will on Wednesday discuss whether the death penalty should be abolished in time of peace for an experimental period of five years (writes the Press Association Lobby correspondent).

Mr. Vyvyan Adams, Conservative member for West Leeds, will introduce a motion favouring this experiment, and he will have a great deal of backing at any rate from the Opposition benches. In support of his arguments Mr. Adams will point to the report of the Select Committee, which recommended the abolition of hanging for an experimental five years.

He will also be able to quote some 30 countries—including Belgium, Denmark, Holland and Norway—which have abolished death sentences, with the result, according to official figures, that murders in these countries have on the whole tended to decrease and not to increase.

OPINION DIVIDED.

This has always been a subject on which opinion is very divided. Those favouring a suspension of death penalties will argue that life is sacrosanct, that such penalty is irrevocable should a person later be proved innocent, that it inflicts a revolting task on the hangman and appalling misery on relatives of the condemned, and that in this reform Britain is lagging behind other civilised countries.

Dr. Temple, Archbishop of York, has suggested that it may be doing harm rather than good to continue the death penalty at this stage, but on the other hand Dr. Hensley Henson, Bishop of Durham, has defended it in cases of treason and wilful murder.

Those who would continue it will submit that the community as a whole must be protected against a criminal section of it, and that the number of persons actually hanged is infinitesimal. Comment will be made on the tendency of some juries nowadays to avoid verdicts involving the death penalty, and it may be suggested that the present method of hanging is barbaric and that a lethal chamber should be used instead. This may be the most interesting debate of the week.

Mr. Watkins, on the same night, has a motion dealing with the large number of road accidents.

WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION.

Mr. Ridley will on Friday have the distinction of introducing the first Bill of the new session, a private member's measure amending the Workmen's Compensation law. Discussion is likely to last the whole day. Briefly, this Bill seeks to dispose of the lump-sum payment in cases of death, and to replace it by weekly payments varying according to the size of the family and based on the workman's normal earnings. Payments would also be improved in cases of total incapacity, and compulsory insurance would be established so that, if a firm became insolvent, workmen would not lose their rightful compensation.

On other days of the week the amendments to the Address will be moved and discussed.

These are interesting because they indicate the cross-currents of opinion which will be developed during the session.

Mr. Pethick-Lawrence moves Labour's amendment on Monday. It avoids foreign affairs, but regrets the absence from the King's Speech of reference to our problem of nearly 2,000,000 unemployed. The real strength of the country, it states, depends upon the full use of all human and material resources, and upon the equitable distribution of wealth. This would ensure improvement in the standard of life for both active and retired workers and the development of the social services.

THE NATION'S HEALTH.

This will give Mr. Walter Elliot (Minister of Health) an opportunity of presenting, so to speak, a medical report on the country, and this will show a very satisfactory state of vitality. He may deal with the reference in the King's Speech to the new efforts in the fight against cancer.

Mr Ernest Brown (Minister of Labour) will wind up for the Government by giving an account of the progress, in various directions, which he has made in tackling the unemployment problem

Miss Megan Lloyd George will speak for the Liberals on Monday. This debate will be continued on Tuesday, when Mr. W. S. Morrison (Minister of Agriculture) and Sir John Simon (Chancellor of the Exchequer) will be the Government spokesmen, with Mr. Tom Williams and Mr. Alexander for Labour and Mr. Wilfrid Roberts for the Liberals.

A Ministry of Supply to secure defence efficiency and to prevent waste and profiteering will be advocated in the Liberal amendment which Sir Hugh Seely will move on Thursday. He will emphasise that defence deficiencies have been admitted by the Ministers, who acknowledge serious delay in the execution of necessary rearmament.

NATIONAL REGISTER.

Many other amendments, which are not likely to be called but may be talked about in the general debate, are being tabled. A compulsory national register, showing the duties for which every man and woman would be best qualified in an emergency, is asked for by Sir Edward Grigg, Sir Hugh O'Neill, Colonel Moore-Brabazon, and Sir Archibald Gridley.

Schemes of emigration calculated to populate the vacant parts of the Dominions with British stock are wanted by Sir Thos. Moore, while Mr. Lambert and Mr. Patrick would like a levy on oversea imports, so that the proceeds could secure stable rates to home producers of agricultural products.

About 50 M.P.'s interested in agriculture have signed an amendment regretting that there is no extension of the policy of price insurance, and suggesting that the depressed state of the barley and oat growing and sheep producing areas requires attention, as does the "drift from the land."

Mr. Richard Russell is supported by five Knights—Sir John Haslam, Sir Cooper Rawson, Sir Patrick Hannon, Sir Robert Young, and Sir Francis Fremantle—in his hope that the Government will be guided by fundamental Christian principles in dealing with other nations and with conditions at home.

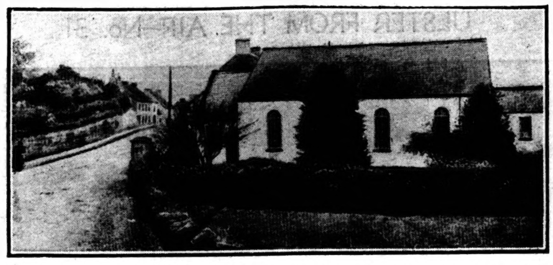
REDISTRIBUTION WANTED.

"Redistribution"—that is altering the boundaries of some constituencies which have grown too big—is wanted before a General Election by Sir Robert Blair, who represents Hendon, and Mr. Parker, who sits for Romford. Both Hendon and Romford have grown enormously in population in recent years.

Facilities to improve our export trade by adjustment of adverse export balances and modifying the incidence of the most favoured nation clause in commercial treaties are proposed by Sir Joseph Nall, Mr. Radford, Mr. Eckersley, Mr. Fleming, and Mr. Chorton, who also want early legislation to secure uniformity in the cotton trade.

BELLAGHY CHURCH CENTENARY

Its Ministers For 100 Years



Bellaghy Presbyterian Church, which, according to the date stone, was built in 1838, celebrated its centenary this year, and for that purpose special services are being held.

Unfortunately particulars of the history of this church are not available beyond the fact that originally there were two Presbyterian churches in the town at one time. One of these was connected with the Secession Synod and the other with the Ulster Synod.

The former appears to have been the older, as its first minister, Rev. John Simpson, as recorded, was ordained in 1825. Mr. Simpson was followed by Rev. George Fry, ordained in 1831; Rev. Robert Fleming, ordained in 1835; and Rev. Thomas M'Pherson, ordained in 1836.

At the meeting of the Synod of Ulster, held in Omagh in 1836, Magherafelt Presbytery reported that it ordained on March 15, 1836, Rev. Gilbert Kirker Wilson in charge of the newly-elected congregation of Bellaghy, and thus would be the first minister of the Synod of Ulster Church in Bellaghy. He was given in the minutes of 1835 as from Armagh, and licensed by the Monaghan Presbytery. After the union, in 1840, of the two Synods as the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in Ireland the two congregations continued to function separately, but under the Magherafelt Presbytery, for about 10 years, when the Rev. T. M'Pherson and the Rev. G. K. Wilson resigned, and the two congregations, it is presumed, became one.

Rev. Alexr. Gray, afterwards Dr. Gray, was first of the ministers that followed. After a short term in Bellaghy he removed to Minterburn, Caledon, in the Monaghan Presbytery. From there he went to College Square, Belfast. His remains rest in Minterburn Graveyard. Rev. Hugh Hunter, who was first in Swateragh, County Derry, was the next. He resigned Bellaghy on October 14, 1861, having accepted an appointment under the Board of Missions to labour as a missionary in Cork City. Later he appears to have been minister of Queen Street, Cork, now in the Cork Presbytery; and then to have become an itinerant missionary, stationed in Middleton, County Cork. Eventually he became a missionary, or chaplain, at Sheerness in Kent, then as now, an important garrison town with a dockyard. He died in 1884. Rev. John Clarke Huston, who had been minister in Broomfield, County Monaghan, Ballybay Presbytery, was installed in Bellaghy, in the Magherafelt Presbytery, on April 29, 1862. Later he became minister of Macosquin, Coleraine, where he succeeded his father, Rev. Dr. Clarke Huston. His son, Rev. Noble Huston, B.A., is minister of 1st Ballynahinch, Presbytery of Down.

The Rev. William Reid, a native of Killymurris, County Antrim, where he is buried, who had been in Clonakilty, laboured for a time in Bellaghy. From there he went to 1st Moneymore. For a long number of years he was clerk of Magherafelt Presbytery. Rev. Thomas M'Crea, a native of the Strabane district, was ordained by Magherafelt Presbytery in Bellaghy on May 29, 1877. Retiring from active duty on February 7, 1928, he died on March 2, 1938, in Belfast and was buried in the City Cemetery. He secured his early education at Strabane Academy, studied for a time at Magee University College, Derry, where he took his Certificate in Arts, and later pursued an additional course in America. There he was a licentiate under the care of the Presbytery of New Brunswick. Returning to Ireland, he was in 1876 received by the General Assembly and placed under the care of Glendermott Presbytery. On attaining his jubilee he received a suitable expression of esteem from the people to whom he had devoted his life. His brethren twice honoured him by his election to the Moderatorship of the Synod of Ballymena and Coleraine.

Rev. John Dunwoody, B.A., a native of Belfast, was licensed in May, 1927, by Belfast Presbytery. He was ordained as assistant and successor to Mr. M'Crea in Bellaghy on November 30, 1928, and on the same date, as minister of Knockloughrim, known to many of our readers as "the back o' the hill," which at that time was united to Bellaghy.

Mr. Dunwoody resigned on March 7, 1933, to become assistant and successor of Rev. Thomas Haslett, M.A., D.D., First Ballymena, where he labours with great success.

Rev. Victor J. Quinn, B.A., who was licensed by Newry Presbytery in 1933, was ordained in Bellaghy and Knockloughrim in July, 1933, and resigned on May 1, 1936, to become minister of Ballykelly, Co. Derry, where he succeeded Rev. H. Anderson, B.A.

Rev. W. J. M'Kinstry Wallace, B.A., a licentiate of Belfast Presbytery, was licensed on May 19, 1937, and was ordained in Bellaghy and Knockloughrim on June 2, 1937, where he is still labouring with great success.

Before the two churches, already mentioned, were joined together there would appear to have been no Manse in connection with either. After the union the secession church was converted into a Manse, which about two years ago was burned to the ground. On its site a new Manse replete with every modern convenience was erected, ready for the occupation of Mr. Wallace.

BODYGUARD OF FIVE PRESIDENT HAS.

WORK AT WHITE HOUSE

SECRETARIAT LIGHTEN IT.

MULTIFARIOUS DUTIES.

When the King and Queen visit the United States next summer it is possible that they will stay at the White House and certain that they will be entertained there. The following article from Douglas Williams, the "Daily Telegraph and Morning Post" New York correspondent, describes one side of the domestic organisation of the President's official residence—the small personal staff who form Mr. Roosevelt's "bodyguard" when he deals with the multifarious day-by-day duties of his high office.

The emergence of the United States from the depression, the immense variety of the New Deal organisations invented to achieve that end, and, above all, President Roosevelt's own magnetic personality have thrown an immense burden of increased work upon the shoulders the Chief Executive and his staff at the White House in Washington.

Congress recognised this increased burden by authorising the appointment of six Administrative assistants to the President at an annual salary of £2,000 apiece.

The fact that Roosevelt, despite his physical handicap of poliomyelitis, which he bears with such amazing fortitude, has so well survived five years of what is probably the hardest working Administration since the Civil War days is due in large measure to the perfect organisation of his secretarial staff.

VARIETY OF VISITORS.

Every day some 5,000 letters are unloaded at the White House from special Post Office vans, telephones ring unceasingly, and visitors of all kinds, from a recently-appointed Diplomat to a delegation of Boy Scouts, throng the ante-rooms all day.

Senators, Congressmen, office-seekers of all kinds come direct to the fountain head of all political power who under the New Deal has become the final arbiter in the United States. His immediate personal staff consists of five principal secretaries—four men and one woman.

Experienced, intelligent, tactful, democratic, they guard their master with the fidelity of bulldogs and serve him with a loyalty as rare as it is disinterested. "Gate-crashing" into the White House sanctum is a time-honoured practice among Washington politicians anxious to reach the President's private ear, so that it is the duty of Roosevelt's immediate entourage to winnow the chaff from the grain. They are, in fact, the ball-bearing on which the Presidential office functions.

The quintet consists of—

Marvin M'Intyre ("Mac"),

James Roosevelt, the President's son,

Rudolf Forster.

"MAC THE BUFFER."

M'Intyre, a former newspaperman, acts as the buffer between the President and the public. In his large room in the secretarial building he sits all day, smoking innumerable cigarettes, receiving with perfect imperturbability an incessant stream of visitors, all determined to see the President personally and all more than ready to feel insulted if refused admission.

On these "Mac" exerts his unusual charm of manner, chatting amicably for a while with the visitor, and finally, in nine cases out of ten, sending him away with a smile on his face, despite the fact that the demand on the President's time has been tactfully avoided.

Early is occupied chiefly with Press and wireless. He acts as liaison officer with the hundred odd correspondents permanently attached to the White House and manages to keep the peace among them with amazing skill and discretion.

It is Early who prepares the majority of the President's statements for the Press, who handles the President's daily visitors' list, who plans his trips, helps to prepare data for his speeches, and sees that advance copies of these speeches when completed are supplied to the Press.

Twice a week the President holds his Press Conference and, as the correspondents throng into the President's study, they always see Early standing behind his chief's shoulder ready at any time to prompt the President's memory, or to supply some fact or statistic in reply to a question.

SIFTING THE LETTERS.

Miss le Hand, familiarly known as "Missy" or "Rabbit," takes care of all Mr. Roosevelt's personal mail.

After the thousands of letters have been opened and examined in the outer office by staffs of correspondence secretaries, she decides which letters are important enough to warrant the President's personal attention. After 18 years of working with him in the closest co-operation, to-day she knows his methods so exactly and has learnt so perfectly his own style of composition that she is able to answer herself most letters on which the President has scribbled merely the word "Yes" or "No."

Miss le Hand lives in the White House and has become an adopted member of the family.

TO SAVE HIS ENERGIES.

The fifth important figure in the White House secretariat is Rudolf Forster

He is, as it were, the Master of Ceremonies or Chef de Protocol at the White House. He attends to the details of diplomatic appointments, of messages sent to Congress, and dealings with foreign countries when telegrams of condolence or congratulation to foreign monarchs or heads of States need to be drafted.

It is safe to say that to-day the President of the United States is one of the hardest worked men in the world. His own speeches he usually writes himself in long hand, using data obtained for him by various Government departments. He writes a speech with ease, frequently dictating it without interruption from rough notes.

PALESTINE ARABS APPEAL

TO BRITISH SOLDIERS.

"JUSTICE AND FAIR PLAY."

An "appeal to the integrity of the British Soldier," bearing the Beyrout postmark, was circulated in Haifa on Friday, states Arthur Merton, the "Daily Telegraph and Morning Post" correspondent.

The document recalls that British and Arabs fought side by side to liberate Palestine from Turkish control, and goes on to allege that on the heels of victory "world Jewry formulated the Balfour Declaration and gradually subjected British policy in Palestine to its own selfish ends."

Zionism's sole aim, the document adds, is to carve out of Palestine a National Jewish State. "Is it just to drive out the original inhabitants, to establish a national home for people who for 2,000 years have been unable to gain the amicable acceptance of the rest of the world?

"It is a pitiful paradox to witness the shedding of British and Arab blood for the sake of political Zionism."

The document appeals to "every sincere British soldier" for honesty, justice, and fair play, and states that the Arabs have no ill-feeling against the British or against British interests. Even at this late date they are "ready for the most amicable relations."

GERMAN CHEAP CAR MENACE

TO BRITISH MARKET.

EMPIRE PURCHASERS.

THE INDUSTRY LOSING GROUND.

Although little has been heard of the German cheap car menace since the spring, when imports suddenly ceased, the growth of German industry and its inroads into British markets at home and overseas are causing grave concern, states the "Daily Telegraph and Morning Post" motoring correspondent. Statistics furnished me yesterday by the Society of Motor Manufacturers and Traders speak for themselves.

In the five years 1934-1938 German motor vehicle exports rose from 13,000 to an estimated total for the present year of 94,000; in the same period United Kingdom exports rose from 58,000 to 92,000. Thus, on the comparative estimates for 1938, the German industry has caught and passed our own as an exporter.

Distinguishing between the different markets, Germany in 1934 sent 350 vehicles to countries in the British Empire. This year her total is 13,000, or 37 times as many. To foreign countries—mostly European—Germany exported 13,000 vehicles in 1934 against 13,700 sold by Britain. This year the German total of 80,000 is 4½ times as large as that of the United Kingdom.

SUCCESSIVE SHIPMENTS.

As regards German inroads into the British home market, 8,348 private cars were landed in Britain in the 18 months up to the end of June last.

Actually they practically all entered before the end of April, a supply for the whole summer season being sent in successive shipments. Only 233 cars were re-exported.

Official German export returns show that the average value of the cars despatched to Great Britain was 813 reichsmarks, which equals £68; insurance and freight adds £4 apiece, making a total per car of £72. At the port of entry in Britain the average value for Customs purposes was reckoned at £84, on which £28 duty was paid. These German cars were thus landed in Britain at an average cost of £100 duty paid.

Sold in Britain, they deprived the British manufacturers of an equivalent number of sales of "eights" and "tens," representing at an average factory price of £120 per car a loss to the home industry of £1,000,000 of sales.

SERIOUS MENACE.

In the Empire markets German cars are making progress, especially in Africa and India. There is no Imperial preference for the British manufacturer in South Africa nor in any of the mandated territories. German cars and lorries enter Kenya, Tanganyika and Uganda, the Gold Coast and Nigeria and South-West Africa on the same terms as ours.

In India and Burmah German light cars and oil-engined trucks are increasing, in spite of the preferential duty of 7½ per cent. Germany is rapidly gaining a large slice of the world trade in automobiles. Most of it is in Europe, but even within the Empire her menace is becoming serious.

DUTY CUT ON U.S. CARS.

The Society of Motor Manufacturers and Traders expect that the amount of the anticipated reduction of duty on imported American cars under the new Anglo-American Trade Agreement will be from 33 1-3 per cent. to 20 per cent. in all cars over 20 or 24 horse power.

In that event it will be open to the British industry to urge on the Import Duties Advisory Council a higher duty on foreign cars of lower power, the import of which now offers the more serious menace.

CASTLEREAGH COUNCIL.

HOSPITAL SCHEME OBJECTIONS.

At Castlereagh Rural District Council a letter was read from the Bangor Borough Council with regard to the proposal to build an admission hospital at Down Mental Hospital at a cost of approximately £72,000. The letter objected to the expenditure as not vitally necessary at the present time.

The Clerk (Mr. R. G. Jackson) said the Down County Council had passed the matter and only one member had objected.

The Chairman (Mr. Thomas Gray, J.P.) said he had received a letter from Donaghadee Urban Council objecting to it.

A discussion took place as to the financial position of the Castlereagh Council, and it was decided to adjourn consideration of the matter until the clerk obtained further particulars.

It was also decided to adjourn consideration of a report of the Committee on Water Supplies for North Down and the Council's position in the matter.

The Clerk said the report forwarded by the Ministry was lengthy. It was suggested that each member should be sent a copy to consider in detail. The Ministry suggested that they could (1) join in the general scheme or (2) co-operate with neighbouring authorities in a separate scheme. The Ministry advised them to take the long view of the matter which required careful consideration.

GUIDE FOR BOOKLOVERS

A Collection of Irish Tales

★

"IRISH TALES"—Pat Mullen

(Faber & Faber) 8/6

IRELAND has a folklore and tradition of story-telling that has survived intact from the misty past of primitive mythology, and it is only natural to find that among the more remote districts where the facile amusements of to-day are not available, the story-teller, that modern survivor of the ancient bard, still holds his accepted place in society and is ever sure of a welcome in every household.

Pat Mullen—of "Man of Aran" fame—encouraged by the success of his two previous books of island life, books which by their vital and exhilarating writing roused even the most jaded reader—has now set himself to translate the Irish folk tales which play a large part in the simple life of the Western Irish peasant.

He has taken a dozen tales with which he has been familiar from childhood, all of which have been told by Aran story-tellers, and has translated them just as they fell from the lips of the men who had had them in their turn from their fathers before them. While there is a certain similarity of plot in all fairy tales of Celtic origin which links them up as companion legends, these, so faithfully and picturesquely translated, are typically Irish in detail and humour.

HAVE AN ENCHANTMENT.

THEY have an enchantment that hangs around these legendary figures of wise kings, beautiful queens, and gallant princes triumphing over evil fairies and wicked mortals that not even the most charming of modern fantasies can equal.

The phenomenal success of Disney's modern presentation of fairy tale with what is usually termed the sophisticated cinema public is not so surprising when we think how the supernatural and fey as shown in the folklore of different peoples has been preserved in the form of legends down to the present day. Ireland is one of the few Western countries where such stories are kept evergreen through traditional families of story-tellers, familiar figures at every celebration and as necessary as the fiddler for a night's enjoyment. It must be because of this natural acceptance into everyday life and conversation that these legends have preserved an individuality and freshness that is as delightful as it is natural.

Mr. Mullen proves himself an ideal interpreter, in turns racy, humorous, pathetic, and whimsical, and always with the sure touch for poetry and drama that is the essence of folklore. "Irish Tales" are sure to charm both young and old according to their own fancy; and it is easy to imagine oneself sitting round a turf fire actually hearing of Cuchulain, Deirdre, and the White Hound instead of reading at second hand.

"I LIVE AGAIN"—Squadron-Leader Arthur Rowan (Robert Hale) 12/6.

BOOKS of adventure have a wonderful appeal for those of us who never get the opportunity to travel and I am sure Squadron-Leader Arthur Rowan's unconventional autobiography "I Live Again," will prove no exception to the rule. The author is gifted with a vivid pen and the places he has visited together with his many adventures make excellent reading.

When his Cambridge career came to an abrupt end in the middle of his third year, owing to a blow to the family budget, he was faced with the serious problem of how to earn his livelihood. To pass the time while trying to decide he set out to learn Chinese at an establishment at Islington, and while there he met and joined some mission workers. During the time he was at this job he had his eyes well opened to the poverty and suffering of the poorer class in London, at that time. Then one day he met a friend on leave from India, who suggested that since he hadn't decided on a career he should follow in his footsteps and become a Superintendent of Post Offices in India. The last magic word stirred his blood and imagination.

His mother happened to know the Director-General of Post Offices in India, which simplified matters and a job was soon obtained, but in the meantime Hindustani had to be learnt and he also had to learn to write with a reed in the approved manner.

Life in India fully justified his expectations. His work took him to remote districts where he was given plenty of opportunities to see Black Magic and levitation practised, watch a human sacrifice of the Khonds, and other rare and esoteric ceremonies such as the initiation of the Southern Dancing Girl. Turning detective he solved the Bombay Mail mystery and other smaller cases of forgery which arose in the course of his work.

BECAME ADEPT SPYCATCHER.

HIS success in this direction led to his joining the Intelligence Service during the Great War and becoming one of the War Office's most adept spycatchers. Later he got his wish and was transferred to the R.A.F., and at the close of the war he decided to remain on in this service and was sent to Egypt where he witnessed some curious and terrible rites which, although not generally known, are still practised.

Some very interesting disclosures of the drug and white slave traffic, descriptions of tribal and wild animal life, together with his many adventures make this a truly interesting book.

The author has included many fine illustrations depicting some of the remote places visited during his stay in India and Egypt. Probably one of the most interesting is that of the menu for a dinner in honour of the famous airship, the R. 101. The author was to have been a guest at that dinner which never took place as the airship met with disaster, on her way to Ismailia, where the dinner was to take place.

MAN WITH A SCAR

Six Minute Story

No. 24

by Inez Holden

THE most real thing about the Russian was the scar. It made people think, "At least he must have been in a fight once," and this seemed to excuse him for the amount of time he wasted now in smiling and talking.

As if deeply traced with a knife, the scar started below his left cheek bone and ran in a scimitar-shaped curve towards his mouth, where, as if the knife had been lifted suddenly, it stopped abruptly. When the Russian turned his head to the right the scar showed, giving a shock of surprise to anyone who became aware of it for the first time, and because of this he would sometimes, when among strangers, keep his head turned away like a shy girl.

* * * *

A SCAVENGER at heart and by nature frivolous, this man had attached to himself the name of Prince Alexis Steffanov.

In Paris he lived round a sordid cycle of sham enjoyment. He had sung nostalgic songs in a night club, and when this came to an end, because, "You know, it is really not the sort of thing on which a solid foundation can be built," he had got himself taken on in a dress shop.

A few months of picking up pins from the floor, talking to customers in his Russian accent, and pulling back the show-room curtains to stare, in his melancholy way, at the motor-cars in the street below; then this employment ceased also—for the same reason as the singing work.

Even the Russian's outward appearance seemed inaccurate: his walk, his smile, the way in which he wore his hat and the suave-cordial tones of his voice gave him a kind of slap-flash fiction. Pretentious and picturesque, this scarred prince had "no fixed abode" and no fixed plan in life. He did not know what to do or even what to think, but for a long time now he had been telling himself, "If only I could get work on the films all my troubles would be over."

* * * *

"WHEN I am a film actor," he thought, "I shall drive about all day in a conspicuous motor-car, eat my food in bright, noisy restaurants, and be surrounded by women who look like luxurious animals." He would play golf on Sundays and be sick on a yacht in the summer time.

But this, to him splendid dream, was marred by the existence of the scar. "Because," he thought, "when I turn my head to the right the scar on the left will show up in a photograph, and so I shall be no good on the films."

Prince Alexis Steffanov was always going to parties. He liked to get into a room where a lot of people were talking and drinking. Sooner or later, he believed he would, at one of these sad gay centres of frustration, encounter the man or woman who had the power to get him on the films. So the Russian prince's life—a poor, inane thing of contrasting sleep and noise, people and silence.

One evening in a room hazy with smoke and oversounding with talk, Alexis was told of a doctor in London who, it was said, was able to remove from sight any scar, wound or disfigurement. A stranger, himself having the unearthly look of someone whose face has been changed, gave Alexis the plastic surgeon's address and then, unobtrusive ghost of good news, he disappeared back into the party haze and never again showed the here-to-day-and-gone-to-morrow face of him.

* * * *

THE next day a letter came to Alexis from the Crown Film Company, a group of German-English-American filmsters with bullet-proofed-looking studios just outside London. Seaching for someone to play a leading role in a forthcoming production, they were sure that Prince Steffanov, of whom they had heard, was to be the right man in the right film.

"How strange the way one event influences another,' Alexis thought in his false-fluent manner. "First the address of the doctor-face-changer, and now the offer from the film company."

He believed a great deal in luck and chance, in fate, destiny and all the rest of it.

He memorised the name of a luxurious London hotel and took it as his official address, and then he found out about a cheap lodging-house where he could afford to sleep, and in a mood of unbalanced optimism he set out for London.

The plastic surgery had been set up to impress, but the doctor himself contrasted with his surroundings in a way that compelled an instant belief in his ability. The operation, he said, was only a simple matter of grafting some skin from the leg on to the face and then the scar would be out of sight for ever.

White-coated and over-confident, he had a common sense handshake and smelt as much of antiseptic soap as any honest-to-goodness medical man.

* * * *

ALEXIS, delighted that it was going to be so smooth-simple to have his face made possible for photographs, was not over-troubled about the cost. It was true that he "had not the money on him at the moment," but then his whole life had been a series of incidents linked together by his never "having the money on him at the moment."

"When I am a film star," he thought, "what some people have lost on me in the past, others will gain in the future."

Alexis knew nothing about anæsthetics. He fell asleep under the compulsion of chloroform and awoke in strange surroundings. He thought, groping in his mind for an answer, "Where am I—where, who, and why?" The boasting about money he had not got, the resounding name to which he had no claim, the grand hotel where he had never slept and the scar which had been a birthmark and now was gone altogether to set up a confusion in his mind. His thoughts—like a bicycle without brakes going down a hill—took a perilous uncontrolled course.

In his still troubled mood, he found the film studio and after a short complicated journey through the suburbs, reached the place.

The director was a thick-set, shirt-sleeved man, whom nothing could make shy, shouting in the centre of a large dirty floor surrounded by well-dressed Yes-men.

"You aren't this Prince Alexis Steffanov?"

"Yes, I think so," Alexis answered the film director, the long built-up grand manner had deserted him and now he felt lonely without it.

* * * *

"WELL, you see," the director shouted on, "we want you to play the rebel who's been wounded by the tyrant of this imaginary country. It's a swell story." He slapped his knee and laughed like a man who has knocked down all the coconuts at one throw at a fair. "It's a honey," he said. "The scar on his face reminds this guy of how he was tortured and keeps him revengeful."

He stared, the shouting ceased for a moment and was taken up again. "Say, you haven't got a scar, have you?"

"No."

"Oh, well—what the hell—we wanted a man with a scar to play this part. Anyhow, we can't waste time here all day. We've got to get on with the picture. You're no good without a scar."

A Yes-man handed the director a megaphone which, fearing that it might lessen the force of his voice, he used to wave people this way and that. Camera men rushed here and there, actors and actresses stood still, looking with their red-brown faces, like so many student-hoaxed statues.

Forgotten by all around him Alexis waited by a studio lamp. The scar which might have made his fortune had gone. He remembered the words written on his passport, "Peculiarities—scar on left side of face."

He took his place in the group of well-dressed forgotten Yes-men.

History In Surnames

The Mackays and Their War-Cry

ALTHOUGH Mac is a great prefix there appears no rule as to when it should be Mac or Mc. Choice of either form has been individual. So there are Mackays who so write their names; and there are McKays who can none the less make good claims to being of the clan. Nor is this the only variation, as we shall see.

The Highland form of the name is Mackay. The Scots Lowland form is Mackie. But McKay is to be found in Highlands and Lowlands and well distributed over Britain and the Britains overseas. Further the Irish name of Magee is often to be traced to the same old clan.

If there is a difference among them it lies in the claim made by the Mackays and McKays that they and they alone have a title to the clan war cry, "The white banner of the Mackays." It may be challenged. For the fact is that even the Mackays did not begin as such. There was a clan of Morgans in the eleventh century, and it is actually their descendants who are the Mackays of to-day. Their original native soil was Sutherlandshire and Argyllshire.

* * * *

The Mackay Regiment, commanded by members of the clan, were fighting in the Netherlands a little more than a century after then branching off from the Morgans. The clan received a charter from Donald, Lord of the Isles, in the fifteenth century; this, it may be mentioned, was recalled about a hundred years ago, when the prolific poet Charles Mackay wrote his "Legends of the Isles."

Although the Mackays lost their ancient territories it was not by conquest. The chieftain, Lord Reay, began the transfer by sales in the seventeenth century.

One of the most noted bearers of the name in later times was Alexander Murdock Mackay, the Aberdeen boy who began life as an engineer in Leith, and became "Mackay of Uganda," the celebrated pioneer missionary. The novelist Marie Corelli, it may be recalled, used to claim descent from the Mackay clan.

* * * *

Some time ago there was a remarkable official rally of the clan in Amsterdam, when a replica of the flag of the Mackay Regiment was solemnly placed in the English Reformed Church there to commemorate war services rendered from 1572 until 1782. On that occasion Dr. George Mackay, of Edinburgh, carried the flag, escorted by thirty-one members of the clan, including Baron A. W. K. Mackay, a brother of Lord Reay, the chieftain.

There is also a clan society. It was founded in the last century, revived fifty years ago, and still has headquarters at Glasgow.

A PLAIN MAN'S SERMON

Whose Sermon Is It?

IT is perhaps inevitable, and only to be expected., that religion should be peculiarly liable to produce popular fallacies concerning it. There are certainly very many in existence, and some of them seem to be deep-rooted and long-lived. One such fallacy is the widespread idea that Christianity consists of what is known as the Sermon on the Mount.

The Sermon on the Mount is a summary of Christ's teaching about Christian conduct and behaviour, which occupies three consecutive chapters in St. Matthew's Gospel. It was not necessarily all given at the same time and place, for it was St. Matthew's habit to group together Christ's teaching in somewhat large sections.

In these three chapters he has brought together most of what Christ had to say about the principles which should govern Christian conduct. Naturally enough, this part of Christ's teaching is predominantly of a strictly practical character.

And because this is so, the fallacy has arisen that the Sermon on the Mount comprises the whole of Christ's teaching, or, at all events, the only part which really matters. In a word, it is a commonly accepted idea that the Sermon on the Mount is all that we really need, and that all the rest of the teaching which goes to make up what is known as the Christian faith is largely superfluous.

★

LAST THING THEY WANT.

IT is quite the usual thing to hear people say, "What is the good of creeds and doctrines, which do not seem to matter very much? Give me the Sermon on the Mount! There you have got something practical which a man can understand — plain, straight-forward Christian morality, without either theology or anything miraculous."

How many times have parishioners said to me, "Vicar, why don't you let doctrine alone and preach us the Sermon on the Mount?" What is the answer to this?

In the first place, it is remarkable that just those people who clamour so loudly to be given the Sermon on the Mount are the very people who, when you do give it to them, invariably show that it is the very last thing which they actually wish to have.

If you say to them, "Very well, then, let me see you starting at once and doing what it says" they immediately begin to explain to you that of course one cannot take the Sermon on the Mount literally, and that the things which it demands of one are really quite impracticable and not possible to carry out.

"You cannot," they say, "literally turn the other cheek, or hand your cloak to the man who has just stolen your coat, or refrain from ever asking your debtors to pay up the money which they owe you. This kind of conduct is all very well as an ideal; but it is not, of course, practical politics."

CHRIST THE PHILOSOPHER.

WE cannot have it both ways. Either we really do want the Sermon on the Mount or we do not. But if we do not mean to make the faintest attempt to do what it says, then let us at least be sincere and honest and give up talking such nonsense as to say, "Give me the Sermon on the Mount," when actually it is the very last thing that we want!

And secondly, when you have, as you think, boiled down Christianity into the Sermon on the Mount, you have not by any means got rid either of theology or of the supernatural. For—to take a single point—you have to start by asking the question, Who is this Teacher, Who, on His own bare authority, lays down laws for the world, and Who does not hesitate to say, "The Bible says so-and-so, but I say unto you?" Who is this Who calmly dares to talk in this way, and Who claims for Himself an authority which He does not expect to be questioned? Is He just some good, well-meaning man who is expressing his opinions, or is this Someone Who speaks with the authority of God Himself, and with Whom, for that reason, we find it impossible to argue, and before Whose commands we are forced to remain dumb, because we know that He has spoken the last word?

It is easy enough to make much of the Sermon on the Mount, but without Christian theology and doctrine to tell you that the Author of it was One Whose voice is the voice of God, it becomes no more than the utterance of a good man, to whose opinions we need not attach any more weight than to those of Plato, Marcus Aurelius or any other merely human teacher.

Unless behind the Sermon on the Mount there lies the truth embodied in the Christian creed—"Who for us men and for our salvation came down from Heaven, and was incarnate," it loses all its authority for us, and is no more binding upon our consciences than any other similar utterance.

So a very little thought will show us that we cannot really isolate the Sermon on the Mount from the rest of the Christian faith; because, until we have first settled the question as to whether He from Whose lips it came was the Divine Son of God, or merely a human teacher, we cannot even say what claim it has upon our obedience.

It is all very well to say, "Give me the Sermon on the Mount," but, if we discard the rest of the teaching of the Christian faith, how do we know whose "Sermon" it is?

REV. L. B. ASHBY.

THE DOCTOR'S CORNER.

KNEE-CARTILAGE INJURIES

IF the knee is simultaneously twisted and straightened as when kicking a ball, a cartilage may be displaced, and when this happens there is pain in the knee and the joint is locked.

The cartilage can be returned to its normal position by skilled manipulation, or this may occur as the result of the patient's movements.

After an accident of this kind the knee-joint should be supported by a firm bandage or knee-cap and strenuous exercise avoided. If the condition becomes chronic, the cartilage may slip out with any slight twist, and it may then be necessary to have it removed by a surgeon.

GREAT GERMAN POGROM

No Sign Of Relenting

SCHOOL ATTENDANCE BAR

NO LONGER "CHOSEN RACE"

THEIR PAPERS PROHIBITED

ALL orders in regard to Jewish activities issued during the anti-Jewish demonstrations on Thursday are (says Reuter's Berlin correspondent) to remain in force until the position of the Jews is definitely regulated.

JEWISH THEATRE, CONCERT, CINEMA, AND SIMILAR PERFORMANCES WHICH IN THE PAST WERE IN THE HANDS OF THE "JEWISH CULTURAL LEAGUE" REMAIN PROHIBITED.

JEWISH NEWSPAPERS ARE ALSO PROHIBITED AND JEWISH SCHOOLS REMAIN CLOSED.

The few Jewish children who until recently were admitted to Aryan schools are not allowed to enter these buildings.

Aryan school teachers in Nuremberg have decided to teach the children henceforth only on the basis of the New Testament.

References to Jews as the "chosen race" will no longer be made.

Jews are forbidden to visit theatres, concerts, cinemas, music-halls, dancing performances, or exhibitions of any kind by orders of Dr. Goebbels, Propaganda Minister.

CARDINAL'S HOME ATTACKED.

The windows at the residence of Cardinal Faulhaber, Archbishop of Munich, were smashed in the early hours of this morning by an excited mob.

Cardinal Faulhaber last Sunday upheld the right of the individual to choose his religion. Last night Herr Wagner, Minister of the Interior, criticised the Cardinal for protesting against mass anti-Jew meetings in Munich being advertised as "a mass demonstration against world Jewry and their clerical allies."

Cardinal Faulhaber's protest included a request for police protection for the Church.

FRANKFORT JEWS ROUNDED UP.

In Frankfort-on-Main all Jewish men between the ages of 18 and 60 who are German subjects are being rounded up by the police and being taken to a concentration camp.

HITLER'S NEW STEPS AGAINST JEWS.

CAPITAL AND PROPERTY

TO BE CONFISCATED.

GHETTO BEING BUILT.

While anti-Jewish action continued in Germany yesterday Herr Hitler and his advisers considered the new "laws and decrees" by which it is proposed to "regulate" the future position of Jews, states the "Daily Telegraph and Morning Post" Berlin correspondent.

I am reliably informed that two measures will certainly be included in them. These will be:—

Wholesale confiscation of Jewish property and capital and establishment of ghettoes on the pattern of the 16th century. It is understood that a system of buildings for this purpose is already under construction on the outskirts of Weisensee, a suburb in the extreme north-east of Berlin. This district is chiefly remarkable for its exceptional number of sewage farms.

Most of the prisoners are being drafted to the concentration camp at Buchenwald, near Weimar, and Sachsenhausen, near Oranienburg.

20 YEARS' SENTENCES.

About 8,000 Jews are now believed to have been arrested in Berlin alone. The total in the whole Reich is put at about 35,000.

The system on which the arrests are being made is not clear, and some elderly men who were detained have already been released. It is believed that many Jews are being given a 20 years' term of confinement in the concentration camp, on the pretext that some form of weapon was found in their possession.

The main shopping streets of Berlin look as if they had been hit by a typhoon.

It is almost certain that none of the shops will ever open again under Jewish ownership. Many have already been bought by Aryans at knockdown prices.

Inquiries which I have made prove conclusively that outrages in Thursday's pogrom were by no means confined to German Jewish citizens and their property. Apart from the incidents involving foreign diplomats and the revolting cruelty to a Roumanian citizen of Dortmund, personal assaults and damage, totalling many thousands of pounds, have been suffered by nationals of at least half a dozen important countries.

BRITISH STORE SACKED.

The department store of Messrs. Israel, which is owned by a British citizen, was sacked and gutted, the loss in this single case amounting to tens of thousands of pounds. It is understood that the store was insured with a London firm.

The United States Consular authorities have been notified of at least three or four cases, in which shops owned by Americans have been smashed to atoms and the stock ruined. They have also been informed of episodes involving the arrest of Americans by the police.

The Czech diplomatic authorities have also been informed of outrages to Czech-owned shops. I personally witnessed the sacking of a large and fashionable shop owned by a Hungarian citizen.

Dutch subjects appear to have been among the severest sufferers. The assistance of the Netherlands Legation in Berlin has been invoked by Dutch subjects all over Germany, whose premises have been plundered and ruined, or who have been physically assaulted. It was while attempting to defend Dutch property in Berlin that the Netherlands Consul-General and a Dutch diplomat were nearly lynched by the mob and were extricated only by police intervention.

It is believed that Polish citizens were also badly hit.

TRAMPLED TO DEATH.

Apart from the numerous cases of Nazi cruelty, I can now state that an elderly Jew was trampled to death on the Lehnienerplatz, off the Kuerfuerstendamm in the West End of Berlin.

BRITISH CRITICISM RESENTED.

"MIND OWN BUSINESS."

POLICY IN PALESTINE

MUCH MORE SEVERE, THEY SAY.

BERLIN, Saturday.—British critics of the recent anti-Jew disturbances in Germany are condemned in the German Press to-day.

The line of attack is in most cases the same—depreciation of British policy in Palestine, which is represented as being much more severe in its attitude to the Arabs than any measures taken against the Jews in Germany.

"Put your own house in order before you criticise others," is the advice freely and unanimously given to Britain.

No fresh measures against the Jews have so far been announced, but small examples of individual enterprise in anti-Jewish measures by Nazi leaders continue.

In the local papers of Hanover, for instance, the Reich leader of the Guild of Automobile Engineers publishes a proclamation declaring:

"In view of the cowardly murder of Herr von Rath, it has become a duty, as a matter of course, for all workers in the automobile and accessory industries to refuse in future to work for Jews or to sell to them.

It is probable that the announcement of the new laws against the Jews will be made with considerable ceremony.

REICHSTAG AND PALESTINE.

What may possibly be a hint that consideration is now being given to the question of holding a Reichstag meeting in which the Jewish question and the situation in Palestine could be considered is continued in the "Lokal-Anzeiger," which says:

"Should the British House of Commons, for purposes which are obvious, occupy itself with events in Germany, then we can conceive that the German Reichstag might take an opportunity to consider for instance the British atrocities in Palestine."

Other comments are:—The "Volkischer Beobachter" says:

"British sympathy with the Jews in Germany would not even be timely if they had healed those bloody wounds in Palestine which British severity and force had caused."

"Berliner Tageblatt":

"Is it particularly humane to fight Arab nationalism by means of executions and the blowing-up of whole blocks of houses? Or does humanity only cease to exist the moment that another defenceless German falls a victim to Jewish murder agitation."—Reuter.

VON RATH MURDER.

ATTACKS ON BRITISH STATESMEN.

PROTEST TO BERLIN.

PARLIAMENT MAY HEAR REPLY.

I understand (states the "Daily Telegraph and Morning Post" diplomatic correspondent) that Sir George Ogilvie-Forbes, the British Charge d'Affaires in Berlin, has received instructions to draw the German Government's attention to the regrettable attempt of a semi-official German newspaper to implicate prominent British politicians in the murder of Herr von Rath.

On Tuesday the "Angriff," with which Dr. Goebbels, the German Propaganda Minister, is closely associated, published an attack on Mr. Churchill under the headings, "The Work of the Instigator-International. A Straight Line from Churchill to Grynszban." "It is no coincidence," the article maintained. "Grynszban took the same line as is pursued by Messrs. Churchill, Eden, Duff Cooper, and their associates."

The charge was emphasised by the publication of photographs of Mr. Churchill, Mr. Duff Cooper, and Mr. Attlee.

This extravagant attack is highly resented in Britain. In all probability the British Commons will be informed of the reply to the Government's representations in Berlin.

"A WOLF IN SHEEP'S CLOTHING."

"OFF TO THE WARS."

Under the headings of "A Wolf in Sheep's Clothing," "Churchill's Off to the Wars," "First-class War Mongers," and "Character Sketch of a Windy Political Adventurer," the official "National Socialist Party Correspondence" on Friday night attacked Mr. Winston Churchill in language, remarkable even by the standards of Nazi journalism, states the "Daily Telegraph and Morning Post" Berlin correspondent.

The author of the article, Herr Franz Rose, described Mr. Churchill as "an arch-liar" and 'a bellicose swashbuckler"—to choose only two of the more choice epithets.

"Only the Democracies," he remarked, "with their generosity, freedom—and forgetfulness—can put up with such babblers, shams, and political chameleons as Churchill, who has run through every phase of political quick-change artistry."

He referred to Mr. Churchill's replies to Herr Hitler's Weimar speech as a "cowardly attempt to slink away from the Fuhrer's attack," and as "a cheap evasion and hypocritical disavowal."

"ISOLATION AND INVASION."

The remainder of the article consisted mainly of quotations from Mr. Churchill's books and speeches, diversified with insulting comment. Herr Rose concludes with a furious denunciation of Mr. Churchill's alleged desire to destroy Germany. "It is all perfectly clear," he says, "Encirclement, isolation, and invasion on all fronts, with Churchill as international adventurer and strategist."

Having referred to Mr. Churchill as "this Marlborough, who would like to go off to the wars again," Herr Rose declared, "To think that under the ægis of the Parliamentary system such a man can come to power again! It baffles our imagination."

In referring to the Marlborough who would like to go off to the wars again, Herr Rose applied to Mr. Churchill the song which was inspired in France by his ancestor, John Churchill, the great Duke of Marlborough. Sung to the tune, now known as "We Shan't Go Home Till Morning," or "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow," the song began:

Marlborough s'en va-t-en guerre,
Mironton, mironton, mirontaine.
Marlborough s'en va-t-en guerre,
Ne sait quant reviendra.

HINT TO GERMAN LEADERS.

STUDY BRITISH OUTLOOK.

RIGHT OF SELF-DEFENCE.

"The German leaders are constantly complaining that we do not understand the German outlook. It is time that they gave more study to the British outlook," said Mr. Robert Bernays, Parliamentary Secretary to the Ministry of Health, speaking at Holbeach (Lincolnshire) last night.

The German leaders, he said, would not then denounce our renewed efforts to make good the gaps in our defences as "war agitation."

"We are only exercising for ourselves that elementary right which Herr Hitler has always claimed for Germany of self-defence.

"Weakness in armed strength means weakness in negotiating strength, not merely to resist intolerable demands, but to secure a disarmament agreement. One of the main reasons for the disastrous failure of the disarmament conference was the fact that Great Britain having already sunk to the fifth Power in air strength, had nothing further to give away. We are determined that we shall never enter into a disarmament conference under such conditions again.

"Yet I see all too few signs that in our rearmament efforts we shall get even now any real help from the Labour opposition. Their main weapon of propaganda is a repetition of the untruth that the social services are to be cut to pay for increased armaments. The King's Speech is a smashing answer to that, for it contains proposals not merely for maintaining the social services, but for increasing them."

Mr. Bernays went on to refer to the "new attack on the ravages of disease" which was to be made this session. One of the great obstacles in the way of reducing the alarming mortality rate from cancer was that too often the disease was only made known to the doctor when it was too late for him to take effective action.

In its new Bill the Government intended to establish cancer clinics accessible to every man and woman in the country, where expert diagnosis and treatment would be immediately available.

MORE NAZI POGROM HORRORS.

SUDETENLAND THIS TIME.

SHOCKING TREATMENT OF JEWS.

The German pogrom horrors were repeated on Friday night in all parts of the Sudeten areas, states the "Daily Telegraph and Morning Post" Prague correspondent. Refugees from Carlsbad relate shocking details of the beating and torture of Jews. Many women were among the victims who, after ill-treatment, were carried off to concentration camps. The burning of the synagogue in Reichenberg is described as follows by a Reichenberg correspondent of the "Narodni Politika":—

"At 1-15 a fire brigade car drove slowly across the main square, the chauffeur grinning cheerfully. Around the burning synagogue were huge shouting crowds. The fire brigade men looked on, but did not lift a finger to extinguish the flames. Reichswehr officers, soldiers and Henleinist Storm Troopers stood around photographing the scene. Shouts of the mob against the Jews grew even louder.

"A horse-drawn cart approached with a fire ladder coming very slowly. The crowd shout to the driver to decrease his speed. Everybody roars with laughter at the joke—the driver, the mob, and the fire brigade men. Here and there a fireman makes a dash into the synagogue, the flames burn brighter as he comes out. As the flames lit the cupola the crowds eagerly watch to see the Star of Zion on the top crash into the flames. It does not do so until 2-40, when shouts of triumph and "Heil" break out, which continue for many minutes."

Similar scenes, reports the "Narodni Listy," were witnessed in Jagerndorf and Troppau.

CZECHS SUCCOUR REFUGEES.

Large numbers of Jewish refugees, most of whom had been badly injured by Sudeten Nazis, arrived in Louny from the Sudeten territories now annexed by Germany. Most of them had been arrested in Komotau and Saaz by Henleinist Storm Troopers and shockingly beaten and maltreated by large mobs.

They had been robbed of all their property, brought in German army lorries to the new Czecho-Slovak frontier, and forced to creep into Czecho-Slovakia on hands and knees, being warned never to return to Germany.

The Czech police summoned all available doctors to attend the wounded, who included many women and elderly people, and have found them provisional shelter.

MISTAKEN FOR JEWS.

VIENNA, Friday.—It has been disclosed that during the disorders yesterday in Vienna two Egyptian visitors, whose names are withheld, who were mistaken for Jews, and attacked in the Cathedral Square, gave such a good account of themselves that with their fists they knocked out two of their assailants before being overpowered. They were themselves only slightly hurt.

MR. E. SHINWELL'S ATTACK.

Mr. E. Shinwell, M.P., speaking at New Seaham, Co. Durham, to-day, said:

"The more I hear of the events in Germany the more convinced I am that the democratic nations will one day, and that perhaps soon, have to make a stand."

There could be few people in this country, he said, who were not horrified by the outrages committed in Germany.

"That the rulers of a nation should permit these terrible things to happen places them outside the pale of civilisation. No nation has the right to call itself civilised which denies freedom of speech, resorts to persecution of a helpless people and deprives them either of the right to live in decency or to leave the country with their possessions."

"We hate war and armaments and desire only to live on terms of peace with all nations, but we can no longer delude ourselves there is a mentality in Germany to-day which seeks to dominate the world.

"If there seemed any hope that the domination would bring blessings to the people it would hardly matter, but as things are it would prove a curse and it is the duty of everyone who values liberty and hates persecution to prevent it."

SETTLE JEWS IN N. RHODESIA.

NEW YORK, Saturday.—Captain Victor Zazalett, M.P., suggested that the 1,000,000 Jewish refugees should be settled in Northern Rhodesia over the next ten years.

He thought this might provide a solution for the problem of Jewish persecution in Europe and of the Arab-Jewish conflict in Palestine.

With regard to Palestine, he suggested that Britain should maintain her mandate for ten years, and guarantee a ration of 40 per cent. Jews to 60 per cent. Arabs.—Reuter.

COMING OF GHETTO

PLACES OF ENTERTAINMEN

FORBIDDEN TO PEOPLE OF RACE.

Action which appears to be aimed at the segregation of Jews from Aryan stock and which may herald the introduction of the ghetto was taken in Germany to-day.

Dr. Goebbels, Propaganda Minister, made an order forbidding Jews to visit places of entertainment and threatening severe punishment both to Jews breaking the order and amusements caterers who permitted them to do so.

In Frankfort-on-Main all Jewish men between the ages of 18 and 60 and Jewesses with police records were rounded up by the police and taken to concentration camps.

If they cannot pay for their accommodation themselves they will be made a charge on the Jewish community.

BAVARIAN TERROR.

THE ARRESTS IN MUNICH.

ALL MEN OF GOOD POSITION.

The Nazi terror against the Jews still continues, states the "Daily Telegraph and Morning Post" Munich correspondent. Many more Jewish professional and business men have been arrested, including Herr Wolfsheimer, a former British subject, who lost his British nationality owing to long residence in Germany.

It is estimated that about 1,000 Jewish residents, in fact all who have held any prominent position in Munich, are now under arrest. Some have been sent to the Dachau concentration camp. There is also a number of women among the prisoners.

The state of terror and destitution among Jews in Munich and all over Bavaria is indescribable.

SLEPT IN WOODS.

Many of them have already been evicted from their homes, and some, including aged men and women, mothers and children, spent the night in the parks and woods. A similar fate awaits thousands of others whose expulsion orders expire at midnight. They have no passport or means of leaving the country. Not even the aged and bedridden have been spared.

A tragic case is that of an elderly Jewish woman who is suffering from an incurable heart disease. The wife of an Aryan, she has been ordered to leave the country by midnight. Her husband and daughter were informed that they would not be molested.

GHETTOES OF 16TH CENTURY.

The Jewish ghetto system, which existed throughout the Middle Ages in a loose form, was regularised by the Pope in 1555 when compulsory segregation was enjoined in a Bull.

The ghettoes were surrounded by walls, and the gates were locked at night and during Church festivals. Jews going outside them had to wear special hats or badges.

CZECH PARTITION.

HUNGARIAN CAVALRY IN RUTHENIA.

CHANGE IN AREAS.

LAST PHASE IN SEPARATION.

The last phase in the partition of Czecho-Slovakia has been reached with the occupation of Eastern Slovakia and Southern Ruthenia by Hungarian cavalry brigades commanded by Colonel Beody, the former Hungarian Military Attache in Prague. The cavalry were supported by infantry.

It was stated in Prague that the occupation, including that of the capital of Ruthenia, Uzhorod, passed off without incident, and that the Hungarian troops behaved correctly towards the inhabitants. A temporary capital for Ruthenia has been established in the tiny town of Khust, but later the capital will probably be Dovhoje.

According to the newspaper, "Slovak," Czecho-Slovakia has been reduced by the partition from an area of 57,796 square miles, with 14,727,000 inhabitants, to an area of 40,982 square miles with 9,981,000 inhabitants.

The Hungarian share in the annexation of territory increases the area of that country from 37,210 square miles, with 8,600,000 inhabitants, to 42,000 square miles, with 9,710,000 inhabitants. Hungary is now 978 square miles bigger than Czecho-Slovakia and with 270,000 inhabitants fewer.

GERMAN DEMAND FOR COLONIES.

COMING VISIT TO BERLIN.

OF S. AFRICAN DEFENCE MINISTER

BERLIN, Friday. — It is officially announced that Mr. Oswald Pirow, South African Minister of Defence and Industry, will arrive in Berlin about the middle of next week and will remain in Germany for some days. It is anticipated that he will sound official German quarters on the subject of the Reich Colonial claims (wires the "Daily Telegraph and Morning Post" correspondent).

The Berlin "Lokalanzeiger" this evening gives a short biography of Mr. Pirow, and declares that he has the reputation of being a "magnificent administrative expert," and that the manner in which he has dealt with South Africa's rearmament problem shows his "exceptional vigour."

The "Boersen Zeitung" to-day devotes a long leading article to Germany's colonial demands, repeating that "a people of 80,000,000 cannot be perpetually held up to infamy in Africa," or be deprived for ever of the colonial empire, which is her "right."

GERMAN ADMIRALTY'S NEW HOME.

BERLIN, Friday. — The German Admiralty will, for the first time, be given a home of its own as a result of the latest rebuilding plans for Berlin announced to-day. Previously it has been treated as part of the War Ministry (wires the "Daily Telegraph and Morning Post" correspondent).

The new building, which will be erected in the Moabit district in Central Berlin, will be on the usual gigantic Nazi scale. It will have a frontage of 1,080 feet, a depth of 445 feet, and a height of 215 feet.

ANGLICAN PRIMATE GIVES HIS VIEWS.

"SINISTER SIGNIFICANCE."

"FIERCE, CRUEL AND VINDICTIVE."

The Archbishop of Canterbury in a letter to the "Times" says:

"I believe that I speak for the Christian people of this country in giving immediate expression to the feelings of indignation with which we have read of the deeds of cruelty and distruction which were perpetrated last Thursday in Germany and Austria.

"Whatever provocation may have been given by the deplorable act of a simple, irresponsible Jewish youth, reprisals on such a scale, so fierce, cruel, and vindictive, cannot possibly be justified.

A sinister significance is added to them by the fact that the police seem either to have acquised in them or to have been powerless to restrain them."

U.S. RADIO PROTEST.

"DICTATORSHIP GONE MAD."

"STAND APPALLED," SAYS DEWEY.

NEW YORK, Saturday.—Two protests were made in broadcasts in the United States last night against the treatment of the Jews in Germany—by Mr. Thomas Dewey, the New York district attorney, and by Mr. Alfred Smith, a former governor of New York State.

"I wish to appeal to world opinion to rebuke dictatorship gone mad," declared Mr. Dewey.

"We stand appalled at the sight of what is happening in Germany.

"No amount of lame explanation by the German Ministry of Propaganda can make the picture any different."

Mr. Smith said "Hitler's challenge is not against the Jewish people alone but against the Catholics and the Protestants and everyone else."

Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, noted American pacifist, led the National Council of Women in telegraphing the State Department asking the United States Government to protest against the persecution of the Jews in Germany and Palestine.

The "New York Times" in a leading article says:—

"The present leaders of Germany can have learned nothing from the doom which befel their predecessors 20 years ago this week."

"IN MOMENT OF TRIUMPH."

Referring to the National Socialist Government, the writer adds:—

"It has chosen in the very moment of its triumph (meaning the Munich Agreement) to outrage every civilised instinct."

Quoting remarks from various London papers condemning Jewish persecution in Germany, the "New York Times" adds:—

"These are the opinions of people who were willing to go half way—or the whole way—towards conciliation with Germany.

"They are the opinions of decent men and women everywhere. They destroy whatever shadow of goodwill may have been established by handshaking at Munich."—Reuter.

UNKNOWN WARRIOR MAY BE JEW

"NAZI TYRANNY WILL BREAK."

Paying tribute to the "courage and human insight" of the Dean of Westminster, who interpolated a special prayer for the Jews at the Armistice Service in Westminster Abbey, the Rev. M. L. Perlzweig, speaking to-day at an intercession service at the North-Western (Reform) Synagogue, Golder's Green, London, said that he wondered how many who heard that petition, realised that the Unknown Warrior in the Abbey might conceivably be a Jew.

The Rabbi, who is a member of the World Jewish Congress, stated that, schooled in adversity, the Jews knew that they would outlive the Nazi tyranny, which was destined to break under the weight of its own follies and iniquities.

"The Nazi menace has followed the Jews to Palestine," said Rabbi Perlzweig. "If the German Government could be induced to close the office in Berlin from which subversive activities in Palestine are directed, there would be a complete change in the situation."

GIRLS' AUXILIARY.

SERVICE THE WATCHWORD.

WORLD NEEDS MORE PRAYER.

The twenty-fifth conference of the Girls' Auxiliary to the women's missionary work of the Presbyterian Church of Ireland, was held in the Assembly Building last evening. Miss Elsie Patterson, outgoing president, was in the chair, and the Moderator of the General Assembly, Rt. Rev. W. J. Currie, D.D., was the only non-member speaker.

He conveyed the greetings of the Church to the G.A. Conference. The work done by the G.A. was greatly appreciated, not only in connection with missionary work abroad, but also on account of the service at home. His personal experience of the work was that the finest girls in the various congregations belonged to the G.A.

"Service" was the watchword to-day. Everyone was intent on doing things, the Church was intent on doing things. In all its history the Church had never been so busy as at present nor engaged in such multifarious activities. Yet little seemed to be accomplished. They appeared to be making but little impression upon the world. It would almost seem as though the world were slipping away from the influence of the Church.

Church members were inclined to wonder what would be the future of the Church and what would be the future of the cause of Christ. To revive hope and courage they must remember it was God who worked in them. To lose sight of that fact was to grow doubtful, to remember was to become strong and full of courage.

Sometimes one might wonder whether present ineffectiveness was not due in large measure to the fact that they were depending upon their own ability, talent and skill. What they needed more than anything else was to make room for God. They needed less fussiness and more prayer. He refused to believe that the world was rushing to destruction. To talk of war next year or in the course of a few years was, in his opinion, worse than pessimism, it was sheer atheism. The ultimate issue rested with God, and He would bring about the triumph by working in and through His people.

RETIRING ADDRESS.

Miss Patterson, in her retiring address, said that the title, "I have chosen you," had been given to that conference because the committee were convinced of the necessity of impressing upon every member of the organisation the personal responsibility of the G.A., especially that of personal allegiance to Jesus Christ.

She had gained a greater insight into the G.A. during the past year, and she had been forcibly struck by the fact that many girls joined its ranks, but did not come face to face with this challenge. Twenty-seven years ago girls embarked on this great adventure, who had a vision of what the G.A. might become. What account could they give of their stewardship to-day? After 27 years there were only branches in about half of the congregations of the Church. Their present task was to recapture the vision, enthusiasm and courage of the pioneers of the G.A., and create a new enthusiasm and endeavour. The challenge of the G.A. sent them back to a closer examination of their own lives.

She was grateful for having had the opportunity of serving the G.A. as president, and thanked all the members for their kindness to her. She had great pleasure in introducing the new president, Miss Hannah Bell, Bloomfield, who had been an energetic member of the Executive Committee, and she wished her a very happy year as president.

Miss Bell said that words were inadequate to express her thanks to her many friends in the G.A. for the honour conferred on her. She hoped their trust in her had not been misplaced, and congratulated her predecessor for her work during the past year.

Reports presented by Miss Agnes M'Gregor and Miss Sophie M'Roberts showed that there were 284 senior and 135 junior branches of the G.A. in 527 Presbyterian churches in Ireland. The aim of the committee was to have a branch in every church.

The conference was continued to-day. Miss Rose O'Neill and Miss Bertha Williamson, both of whom are missionaries in India, addressed a meeting, dealing with "Stewardship," in the Minor Hall this afternoon. These ladies also spoke last evening. The "visitors' session" will take place this evening.

THE WASTE OF WAR.

PACIFIST POINT OF VIEW

DISCUSSED AT CLARENCE PLACE.

The opinion that taking any part in war was inconsistent with Christianity was expressed by Mr. C. R. Williams in an address given in Clarence Place Minor Hall, on Friday evening, in connection with the Church of Ireland Young Men's Literary and Debating Society. There was a good attendance. Mr. A. W. M. Kerr occupied the chair.

Mr. Williams observed that wars frequently arose out of disputes which could be easily settled by negotiation over such matters as economic problems. As a member of a youth organisation he had come in contact with young people of all nationalities, who had all been on the most friendly footing together, and he was painfully impressed by the possibility that a disagreement between the governments of their respective countries might result in their being engaged in mutual slaughter. He proceeded to argue at length that passages taken from the New Testament, such as the description of Christ driving the money-changers out of the precincts of the Temple at Jerusalem, had been wrested from their context and made into a justification of war. What was done in the Temple might be compared to a police measure, and Pacifists did not exclude action of this sort for the redress of injustice. The purpose of the intervention of the law in case of wrong-doing was not only the correction but the redemption of the offender, but the purpose of war was purely destructive.

The doctrine of Pacifism was that inculcated by the Sermon on the Mount, and if this spirit could be made to influence all the peoples of the world wars, with their widespread destruction, loss of human life and the maiming of many thousands whose future careers were blighted, would be impossible.

Mr. Williams said that the Munich Agreement was welcomed as having prevented a great war. At the same time, they could not feel proud of the settlement made on that occasion which gave up Czecho-Slovakia to dismemberment. It was as if Mr. Chamberlain had agreed with Mr. De Valera to hand over Northern Ireland to Eire without consulting the will of the people. The real cause of the avoidance of war, as the result of the conference at Munich, was that Herr Hitler and the representatives of the other nations realised that they were on the edge of a precipice, and resolved to draw back before it was too late.

Pacifists desired to educate the people as to the waste and suffering connected with war, as well as its uselessness so far as attaining any definite result was concerned.

STAMPED NOTEPAPER AND ENVELOPES. Embossed, Plain, or in Colour. Dies at nominal prices.—W. & G. BAIRD, LTD., Royal Avenue, Belfast.

DEATH OF MR. J. W. FETHERSTON.

HEAD OF ALBION, LTD.

WITH 2,500 EMPLOYES.

DUKE OF WINDSOR VISIT RECALLED

The clothing and woollen trade of Ulster has lost an outstanding figure in the person of Mr. John Wm. Fetherston, chairman of Albion Ltd., Wellwood Street, Belfast, whose death took place on Friday at his residence, Montono, Malone Park.

The late Mr. Fetherston was a native of Longford, where he was born in 1869. He served his apprenticeship in Mohill, Co. Leitrim, and then came to Belfast. Shortly afterwards he took up the agency for some of the largest woollen houses in the trade. In 1886, when still in his 'teens, he entered the clothing business, which was then new to city, starting in a small way in premises off Donegall Street with his partner, Mr. E. H. Sharman, of Leeds, who predeceased him three months ago. The business made an immediate appeal and grew so rapidly that extension after extension had to be made.

A few machines were installed in the Donegall Street premises, and, as connections were established with wholesale houses, the undertaking soon experienced a satisfactory amount of prosperity. As orders grew, the goods then consisting solely of boys' sailor suits, more machines were brought in until they totalled about 20, giving employment to some 40 workers.

At the end of the first year enlarged accommodation was taken at the Citadel Buildings, Dublin Road, but increasing trade necessitated a further removal at the end of three years, by which time more than 100 machines were providing work for over 200 hands. Several new styles were added to the output and new avenues of business were being constantly opened up.

The next move was to Brewery Buildings, Sandy Row, where it was not long until 270 machines, employing nearly 500 hands, ere operated in full commission. With this move another era of prosperity had dawned for the firm, which was converted into a limited liability company in 1900.

In turn the Sandy Row premises, large as they were, like the others proved inadequate, and to provide for all the requirements of their growing trade the directors saw that they must secure larger and more up to date headquarters.

PRESENT MAGNIFICENT FACTORY.

A site was selected off Great Victoria Street, in the same neighbourhood, and the dwellings upon it were purchased and demolished. Here the present magnificent factory was raised and great and continuous as has been its output it was not sufficient to cope with the ever-expanding demand upon the company.

Hence the acquisition of auxiliary factories in Leeds, Dublin, Carrickfergus, and Comber, bringing the number of employes up to 2,500.

The Belfast factory is a model of its kind, and a monument to the foresight of Mr. Fetherston. In 1934 the Duke of Windsor, then Prince of Wales, paid a visit to the factory, and was pleased to learn of the volume of the company's exports to British possessions overseas as supplementing its big business with its leading market in England, as well as the extent of its trade with South America and other foreign countries.

For the past 24 years Mr. Fetherston had been chairman of the Irish Wholesale Clothing Manufacturers' Association, and during the war he held the position of Government Controller for the civilian Irish standard clothing.

He was a member and former warden of St. John's Parish Church, Malone, where there is a memorial window to a son who died while serving with the Navy during the ar.

Mr. Fetherston was a Unionist but did not take an active part in politics.

In his early days he was a familiar figure at the meetings of the old Irish Cyclists' Association. He was also a pioneer motorist and a keen golfer, having been a member of several clubs. He was also a member of the Prince of Wales Masonic Lodge.

The sympathy of a wide circle of friends will be extended to Mrs. Fetherston and the members of the family in their bereavement. Three of his sons are connected with the company, one, Mr. W. S. Fetherston, being a director. His brother, Mr. Seward Fetherston, is also a director.

THE BRITISH MUSIC SOCIETY.

BELFAST SONG RECITAL.

A GREAT ARTIST.

The song recital by Engel Lund in the Smyth Hall, Belfast, on Friday night will be remembered as one of the most pleasurable events in the calender of the British Music Society of Northern Ireland. It was artistry in excelsis. Miss Lund has assimilated the folk songs of many lands in the course of her travels, and she brought them home to her listeners as if they were direct from their native environment. Her voice is flexible, sweet and true, and the accents of her delivery were tempered with unfeigned feeling. The occasional exaggerations were not an effort at burlesque but faithful interpretations. The versatility of this charming artist is probably her greatest accomplishment. Her songs were reminiscent of countryside in Germany, Czecho-Slovakia, France, England, Denmark, Sweden and Iceland, supplemented by Yiddish numbers, which were the most impressive of all. In this group the meditation was imbued with spiritual intensity, and the cradle songs had a lilt of rhythm and a spontaniety peculiar to the race.

In all respects the themes revealed that a melody is the heritage of almost every country and that it is the natural channel for the expression.

FINANCIAL REVIEW

FROM STAGNATION TO ACTIVITY

GROWTH OF CONFIDENCE

LONDON, Friday Night.—In the past week the markets of the Stock Exchange have been transformed from a condition of stagnation to one of considerable activity and buoyancy. The main factors responsible for this volte face are, in chronological order if not in order of importance:—

1—The public interest aroused by the huge sum subscribed for the "new" Woolworth shares.

2—The repeated prediction of an improvement in British trade made by the Prime Minister.

3—The strength of Wall Street in anticipation and following the Republican election gains. The public on both sides of the Atlantic seem now to be confident that the international barometer is "set fair."

ENCOURAGING DIVIDENDS.

Several good dividend announcements have also had a cheering effect, while the sharp increase in the October output of iron and steel has naturally had an encouraging effect on the share market.

The large increase projected in aeroplane manufacture has not been ignored, and this section is at last appealing to investors after a recommendation which has been fairly general. All round the markets may be said to have responded well to the better conditions.

British Government stocks show little change on the week, though the early downward trend of prices has been corrected

Home Rails have moved irregularly. The Southern Railway stocks have improved on the traffic increase of £15,000 reported for the past week, but other stocks, notably Great Westerns, reflect the disappointment with the further decrease in their "gross" takes.

ARGENTINE EXCHANGE.

Argentine Rails have weakened on the decree announcing an increase in the number of pesos which must be surrendered in exchange for the £1 sterling. It is not quite clear yet whether this will apply to the Argentine Railway Companies, but the fear that it will do so has resulted in the depression of this market. Sao Paulo (Brazil) Rails have weakened. The coffee situation is unsatisfactory, and there is in general an uneasy feeling about Brazil, due no doubt largely to the continued silence of the Government concerning the resumption of interest payments upon its foreign obligations.

In the Foreign Bond department there have been some fairly good recoveries in some of the Central European bonds, but no movement of any great importance.

INDUSTRIAL RECOVERY.

The Industrial share market has in the past day or two more than recovered the declines recorded at the beginning of the week, and only in one or two cases are prices now lower than they were a week ago.

The rather sharp decline in "Daily Mail" shares is of course directly attributable to the big reduction reported in the company's earnings in the past year.

Against this must be set the fine increase in the earnings of John I. Thornycroft & Co. of £160,006, as against £109,422, and the 100 per cent. increase to 8 per cent. in the total dividend of the P. and O. Companies resulting in a rise in that company's Deferred shares of 3s to 25s 3d.

South Durham Steels have eased somewhat in an otherwise firm market owing to the reduction of the company's final distribution from 13 per cent. to 10 per cent., and on the "B" Ordinary from 7 to 4 per cent.

Imperial Airways have fluctuated somewhat sharply and closed the day 3s 7½d up at 1 15-32 on the news that the Government will introduce legislation setting up a public corporation to acquire the undertaking.

John Browns and Associated Electric shares have been supported on the news that these companies have jointly purchased a 70 per cent. interest in Westland Aircraft.

MINING SHARE MARKET FIRMER.

The Mining share market as a whole has presented a firmer appearance during the past week. Kaffir shares have attracted attention on both Paris and Cape account, Robinson Deep B's being particularly favoured. Durban Deeps and Simmer and Jacks have also moved ahead. Central Minings, however, have fallen sharply on the lowering of the dividend. West Africans incline harder as compared with a week ago, notably Ashantis. Coppers have attracted attention on better New York advices, and the rise of £1 5s per ton in the price of the metal. Miscellaneous Mines have strengthened, Marsham Investments and Champion Reefs being raised to 18s 9d and 11s 1½d respectively. Diamonds show some improvement. Tin shares have moved against holders.

OILS AND RUBBERS IRREGULAR.

Some irregularity has been noticeable in the Oil share market during the past week. Royal Dutch have risen on Amsterdam support, but Anglo-Iranians have fallen away.

The Rubber share market has presented an irregular appearance during the past week. Business has been small and changes have not been of outstanding interest. The price of the commodity has improved to 8 7-16d per lb. Allied Sumatras and Malaccas have been offered.

TEA SHARES DULL.

Dull conditions have prevailed in the Tea share market during the past week, share values being lowered for want of fresh support.

A £60,000 GOLD MINE.

Reference has been made to the Luiri Gold Areas, Ltd., under the above title. The last news from the Rhodesian mine was received on October 18, when driving on the fourth level had commenced. It is learned from a cable that the East Drive has been extended 94ft., the average value being 27dwts. over a width of 26 inches. The winze from the third level to the fourth gave average assays of 24dwts. per ton. There is another ore body termed "new," but it was discovered some years ago. It has been driven on for 47ft., and it averages 4.8dwts. over 5ft. This body is at right angles to the old ore body, and the driving is merely a crosscut indicating its width, which is still undetermined. The Luiri is opening up well, and while it is realised that most mining swans turn out geese, there is justification for being optimistic concerning the mine. By March next the profits should be running at £3,000 monthly.

CONSERVATIVE DIRECTORS.

Reference has been made to the dividend of the Coventry Gauge & Tool Co., Ltd., but the report for the year to August 31 deserves further comment. The net profits amounted to £131,218, as compared with £45,531. As announced, the dividend on the Ordinary shares is increased by 2½ per cent. to 15 per cent., and the directors have been extremely cautious. In view of the experience of the past decade they are entitled to be. They remark that the recent expansion has been abnormal and the rate can hardly be expected to be maintained, but the demand for the company's products remains unabated. The taxation reserve receives £54,773, against £14,200, and the balance forward is £78,795, against £31,927. It is quite a good plan to leave a large proportion of the profits in the business in order to finance expansion, and this can be capitalised if all goes well.

SATISFACTORY BREWERY DIVIDENDS.

The return of confidence has soon had its effect on Brewery Ordinary shares, which to-day have experienced appreciation all round. Despite N.D.C., which seems the main cause of a shrinkage in net profits, they are showing up wonderfully well.

Warwicks & Richardsons, Ltd., of Newark-on-Trent, earned £89,571 during the year to September 30, as compared with £81,216 in the preceding year. The dividend on the Ordinary shares is increased from 15 per cent. to 16 per cent., and the special reserve again receives £8,000, and the general reserve £12,000.

The net profits of Carter's Knottingley Brewery, Ltd., for the same period were £32,697, as against £31,913. The dividend is increased from 9 per cent. to 10 per cent., and the carry forward is maintained.

100 PER CENT DIVIDEND.

Radcliffe's Edible Products, Ltd., a Manchester concern, has further increased its ordinary distribution, announcing a final dividend of 80 per cent., making 100 per cent. for year ended October 31 last, as compared with 60 per cent. for 1936-37. The usual half-yearly dividend on the Preference shares is declared at the rate of 6 per cent. actual, together with an additional dividend thereon of 4½ per cent. actual.

"SLUBBERS" MAKE A LOSS.

Things have gone so badly with the British Cotton and Wool Dyers Association in the half-year ended September 30 last that the trading profit amounted to only £22,092 as compared with £57,684 in the first half of 1937-38, resulting, after providing for debenture service and making the usual transfer of £17,500 to depreciation fund, which now stands at £316,875, in a net loss of £8,466 against a net profit of £27,093. Some comfort will be extracted from the directors' statement that in September there was an improvement in some sections of the business, which they hope will soon extend throughout the Association.

ROAD CONTRACTORS' INTERIM.

The director of Asphaltic Roadways Limited have declared an interim dividend of 5½ per cent, the same as a year ago.

The Wigan Coal and Iron Company give notice that they are not in a position to pay an interim dividend for the half-year ended June 30, 1938.

PREF. DIVIDEND HELD UP.

The Board of the Guildhall Property Company intimate that the Preference dividend has been earned, but that by reason of the international situation and the stringency of the money market generally it has been decided to conserve the company's resources and to postpone temporarily the payment of the dividend on the Preference shares, which normally would have been paid on November 1. They add that the audited accounts will be submitted to the shareholders within the next two or three weeks.

NATIONAL OMNIBUS CAPITAL ISSUE.

The Board of the National Omnibus and Transport Company have decided, in addition to the issue of 150,000 bonus Ordinary shares, already announced, to offer 100,000 Ordinary £1 shares at par to Ordinary shareholders at the rate of 1 in 10 (excluding the bonus shares). The new shares will rank for dividend as from January 1, 1938, and also in all other respects will rank pari passu with the existing issued Ordinary shares.

BELFAST EXCHANGE

THE WEEKLY REVIEW.

MORE ACTIVE DEALINGS.

PRICES INCLINED TO HARDEN.

During the past week there were signs that the public was taking more interest in the markets, and more active dealings were marked on the local Exchange. Prices in most sections were inclined to harden.

British Government securities were quietly firm. War Loan commenced at 99⅞—100, receding to 99⅝—¾, but recovering to close at 99 13-16—99 15-16. 2½ per cent. Consols were dealt in at 72⅜, 72 9-16 and 72 19-32. 3½ per cent. Conversion Loan marked 99⅞, 100 and 100 5-16. 4 per cent. Funding Loan fetched 109 7-16 and 4½ per cent. Guaranteed Bonds 111½.

Bank shares were firmer in tone and business showed a slight improvement. Midland Bank Parts brought 9 23-32 and £9 13s 4½d, £1 Fully Paid shares 85s 3d. Northern Bank "A" were done a number of times at 83s, 83s 6d, and left off with buyers bidding the latter price and sellers holding for 90s. "B" shares after being recorded at 40s improved to 41s 6d and closed with this price bid, sellers at 42s 6d. Provincial Bank of Ireland changed hands at 52s 6d, Westminster Bank Parts at 93s and 93s 6d, and Fully Paid shares at 66s 6d.

Corporation stocks came in for more attention. Belfast 3½ per cent. 1940 brought 99⅛ and 3½ per cent. 1973 stock 101⅛. 5 per cent. 1946-56 stock was done at 110¼ and 4½ per cent. 1951 issue at 107. 3 per cent. Mortgage 1955 marked 93⅞. Harbour Commissioners 3½ per cent. 1953-58 and 1961-68 stocks are bid for at 98. Belfast Water Commissioners 5 per cent. 1946-61 stock changed hands at 160⅞ and 3½ per cent. 1953-63 stock at 100⅜.

MAN AND WIFE KILLED.

IN CAR-LORRY COLLISION.

A man and his wife were fatally injured when the car in which they were travelling along the Liverpool to Manchester arterial road was in collison with a motor-lorry at Astley, near Leigh, yesterday.

They were Lawrence Jennings, 35, a painter, of Greenleach Lane, Worsley, near Manchester and his wife, Alice Holroyd Jennings, 40

The man was killed outright, and his wife died from her injuries in hospital without regaining consciousness.

The driver of the lorry, John William Littler, of Vista Road, Earlestown, was thrown out of the lorry, which was overturned. He escaped with bruises and shock.

JUST A "POOR SOLDIER."

"NEGLECTED AND SHUNNED."

"As he lived so he died—a poor soldier neglected and shunned and not cared for at all."

Sobbing a woman at a St. Pancras, London, inquest, yesterday spoke these words which might serve as an epitaph for her brother, Charles Samuel James (46), who died in hospital "in an almost helpless condition."

Since his discharge from the Army after the war he had been in and out of hospital and unable to work.

A doctor said that James died from acute bronchitis, but probably his war wound had led to his death.

YOUNG COUPLE'S LOT.

THREE LIVE ON 15s A WEEK.

A 19-year-old wife and mother sat in the waiting-room at West Ham Juvenile Court yesterday and wrote a note to the magistrates before whom was her 16-year-old husband, who admitted the theft of a bicycle.

He took it, he said, so that he could go farther afield in his search for work.

He had been out of work for some time, and was maintaining his wife and baby on 15s a week.

The husband, whose age was given as a month under 17, was discharged with a caution

The Chairman, commenting on the wife's note pleading for another chance for her husband, said:—

"She says that you are a good husband and father, that she believes you love her and the baby, and that she is sure you would not have taken the cycle had it not been that you wanted to secure work and help her."

The Chairman described the young couple's responsibilities as "very heavy on so young shoulders."

KING AND QUEEN JOIN IN SINGING.

8,000 EX-SERVICEMEN

AT ALBERT HALL ASSEMBLY

FESTIVAL OF REMEMBRANCE.

The King and Queen and Queen Mary on Friday night sang wartime songs again when they attended the Festival of Empire and Remembrance at the Royal Albert Hall, London.

Eight thousand ex-soldiers, members of the British Legion, were gathered in the great hall, and gave the King and Queen and Queen Mary an enthusiastic welcome when they walked into the Royal box.

The King was wearing a grey lounge suit, with his war medals on his breast and the badge of the British Legion in his buttonhole.

The Queen was dressed in dove grey, while Queen Mary was in black, with a black and white spray in her hat.

Immediately their Majesties appeared in the box the National Anthem was played by the massed bands of the Brigade of Guards, with the whole of the audience singing.

The King stood with the Queen on his left and his mother on his right for several minutes after the anthem, while cheers were called in turn for their Majesties and Queen Mary.

Immediately the Royal party had taken their seats the chorus "Pack Up Your Troubles" was begun, and then the procession of Legion standards into the hall took place.

The standards were carried down the centre of the hall to either side of the organ.

The procession across the hall occupied several minutes, lively regimental marches, such as "The British Grenadiers," being played as the standards were carried into position.

UNDER AGE DRIVER IN CRASH.

FIVE YEARS' BAN ON GIRL.

MAN FINED £8-10 FOR AIDING.

A 16-year-old girl was at Dartford yesterday disqualified from driving for five years and placed on probation for three years when she pleaded guilty to driving a car without due care, without an insurance policy, driving when under 17, and failing to stop after an accident.

John Myatt Urion (42), described as an auctioneer and land agent, of Lowfield Street, Dartford, pleaded guilty to aiding and abetting or permitting the offences, and ws fined a total of £8 10s and disqualified for 12 months.

Superintendent William Austin, of Dartford, said that a car driven by the girl collided with the first of a convoy of Army lorries and did not stop. Some one took the number, and a complaint was made to the police.

When Urion was seen he immediately admitted he was the owner, and that the girl was driving. He also said he knew her age, and that she had not got a licence, and that his certificate of insurance did not cover her.

Mr. Banks, defending, said that Urion had a bad headache, and on the spur of the moment let the girl drive.

A report on the girl stated that she was unemployed, and was quite beyond her parents' control.

FIVE PEOPLE KILLED

WHEN BRITISH PLANE CRASHES.

STAFFORDSHIRE ACCIDENT.

SPORTING KIT IN THE WRECKAGE.

Five people were killed when an aeroplane making a false landing at Rugeley (Staffs.) burst into flames.

The machine was an R.A.F. bomber belonging to the 139th Squadron.

Boxing and hockey kit was found in the 'plane.

It is assumed the airmen were on their way to the South of England for a sporting engagement.

HAMMOND'S MEN IN THE FIELD.

WESTERN PROVINCE GAME.

ON FAMOUS NEWLANDS GROUND.

CAPETOWN, Saturday.—Hammond lost the toss, and Western Province batted first in their three-day match against the M.C.C., which opened here to-day. The match is being played at the famous Newlands ground, one of the prettiest grounds in the world and usually a batsman's wicket. To-day the pitch looked faster than for a long time.

Van Der Byl, the Western Province captain and an old Oxford Blue, who is in the running for a place in the South African Test side, and K. Dimbleby opened the batting against the fast bowling of Farnes and Perks. Both bowlers occasionally made the ball get up. Dimbleby was twice struck by Farnes, who opened with two maiden overs.

The batsmen, both of whom are of the stolid type, gradually took the sting out of the speed bowling, and Hammond made a double change, bringing on his spinners Wright and Goddard. Wright was very accurate, and, with Goddard also striking a length, a wicket looked like falling at any moment.

At 41 both batsmen were dismissed. Dimbleby snicked a ball from Goddard into the slips, where Hammond brought off a brilliant catch, and Edrich, who had taken over from Wright, sent Van der Byl back with his first ball, which rose sharply.

It was not long before another wicket fell, Bond hitting over a ball which kept low. In the last few overs before lunch Farnes and Edrich bowled very well and at a good pace. They had the batsmen completely on the defensive.

SCHOOL'S SCORING RECORD.

TOPPED HUNDRED POINTS MARK.

Coleraine A.I. to-day topped the hundred points mark in matches this season when they defeated Royal Academy, Belfast, by 10 tries (30 points) to nil. The match was played in wretched conditions at Coleraine.

In the first half the home side scored 21 points, but in the second Academy improved, and Coleraine only crossed their line on three subsequent occasions.

Marshall and Hyndman, who each scored three tries for Coleraine, were always a source of danger to the defence. Kane, Gregg, Condy, and M'Kay were the other scorers.

THE RECHABITE ORDER.

VICTORIA JUVENILE TENT No. 1106.

Under the auspices of Victoria Juvenile Tent No. 1106 of the Independent Order of Rechabites, Belfast, a social meeting was held on Friday evening, Br. E. Smyth, D.C.R., presiding over a full attendance.

An interesting programme was given by the concert party of Lily of the Valley Juvenile Tent in charge of Br. M'Cullough.

SOCIETY WEDDING POSTPONED.

The wedding of Lord George Scott, brother of the Duchess of Gloucester, which is expected to be an important event of the Society season, will have to be postponed because of the illness of his fiancee, Miss Molly Bishop, daughter of Colonel and Mrs. H. O. Bishop, of Andover Down, Hampshire.

The Duke and Duchess of Gloucester are expected to attend the wedding.

Miss Bishop is well known as a portrait painter.

Mrs. Bishop told a reporter to-day:

"My daughter is in a London nursing home after catching a very bad chill in Scotland.

"A doctor has advised her to rest and she will probably leave the nursing home soon to spend a week at the seaside.

"This will mean the postponement of the wedding for 10 days or a fortnight."

The marriage had been arranged for Monday, November 28, at St. Margaret's, Westminster.

SPECIAL STUDENT SERVICES.

Special student services will be held to-morrow at 11-30 in All Saint's Parish Church, Belfast. Rev. P. J. Brazier, B.A., of Ruanda, will be the speaker, and at 7 in May Street Presbyterian Church, Rev. Hugh A. Evan Hopkins, M.A., will give the address. Students connected with the Queen's University Bible Union will also take part.

Mr. Evan Hopkins is the travelling representative of the Inter-Varsity Fellowship of Evangelical Unions, and with Mr. Brazier will be taking part in meetings in the University this coming week.
